CMAC Core/Discipline History

CMMC 353 - Media Industries

This course investigates the range of organizations and economic forces involved in media production. Includes diverse production models, from mainstream and corporate, to public sector, to alternative, and comparisons with media industries in other cultural settings. The course focuses on business and policy issues and considers examples of media practice from broadcast and cable news, advertising, Hollywood and independent cinema, public media, and new media industries. The course includes a final research project. Formerly CM 260

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to College of Media and Communication students.

MMDI 141 - Collaboration and Spontaneity

Through a series of exercises, class discussions, and readings, students explore what it means to work as part of a team. Students learn to develop environments in which the creative process is encouraged to unfold. The basic assumptions that affect the formation of collaborative groups, such as personal responsibility, authority relations, leadership issues, individual differences, competition, the development of norms, and the generation and uses of power, are experienced, explicated, and examined. Students work within this collaborative environment to explore the connections between spontaneous verbal and nonverbal communication. Formerly MM 150

WRIT 141 - Storytelling: Theory and Practice

This course introduces students to storytelling as a way of structuring communication. Course material ranges from annual reports to ad campaigns to greeting cards to rap music to political campaigns, offering students an introduction to the many ways narrative can be exploited for a powerful effect. Students learn to apply theory and to explore the relationship of different types of media to different narrative forms. Formerly CMMC 141.

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to CMAC students.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Skill-Based Courses

CMMC 103 - Sound Communication

This introduction to the field of sound communication enables students to conceptualize the importance of sound in cultural life and prepares them in practical approaches to field recording and working with various types of sound. A survey of approaches to sound as a social communication through readings and a broad range of audio examples, including documentary, journalistic, theatrical, and experimental approaches. Training in digital and audio field and post-production equipment and complete practical field exercises and an intensive sound project. Formerly CM 120

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Communication and Film/Digital Video majors; and Narrative Video and Documentary Video minors.

CMMC 205 - Webcasting

Webcasting is a production workshop that introduces students to the world of streaming media (audio and video transmitted over the Internet). The course balances the technical elements of Webcasting with the creative aspects of content production, distribution, and community. Students work in teams and individually to produce pre-recorded and original material for archives and live Webcasts.

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Communication majors.

CMMC 324 - Introduction to Public Relations

The fundamentals of public relations, viewed as a marketing communications tool, with special attention to its role in the non-profit sphere. Reviews the functions of a wide range of marketing communications tools and explores how PR can be used in conjunction with them to achieve an organization's objectives, helping students to come to understand the role of public relations in the overall marketing communications plan. Students learn how to coordinate messages in order to allow the company to speak with one voice and reinforce one overall corporate identity, with special attention to social marketing and the public. A series of projects culminates in students developing a public relations proposal for a non-profit organization. Formerly CM 373

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Communication majors and Strategic Advertising minors.

MAPH 221 - Introduction to Documentary Photography

Introduces students to documentary photography as it exists in the digital age. Topics covered include the history of documentary photography, 35mm camera operation, digital camera operation, and the ethical, legal, and strategic issues of contemporary journalism. Students create documentary photographic projects utilizing both traditional and digital photographic techniques. Formerly PF 220

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Communication majors. Not open to Photography majors or Foundation majors.

MMDI 101 - Visual Communication Studio

All communication takes place through language. However, not all language uses words. This course allows students to harness the power of visual language in order to convey messages and meaning. The elements of drawing and two-dimensional design that are covered include point, line, shape, composition, texture, color, type, and image. Although non-digital mediums are addressed, the exploration of digital tools for the screen is a primary goal. Individual creativity is stressed. Formerly MM 110

MMDI 111 - Introduction to Interface Design

The software interface represents the focal point of user interaction with the various modes of multimedia communication. Readings by interface theorists inform discussions on the evolution of the software interface, conceptual models, prototypes, interaction design, deliverables, and basic concepts of human-computer interaction. Avenues for pursuing interactive media design in entertainment, publishing, and education are also addressed. Current technologies, including the trend from soft to hard interfaces are studied, in terms of their potential short- and long-term influence on communication and multimedia. Basic methods for rapid prototyping and testing are considered. Formerly MM 121

MMDI 131 - Introduction to Interactive Programming

This course is an introductory programming class, appropriate for students with no prior programming experience. Traditionally, introductory programming teaches algorithmic problem-solving, where a sequence of instructions describe the steps necessary to achieve a desired result. In this course, students are trained to go beyond this sequential thinking – to think concurrently and modularly. By its end, students are empowered to write and read code for event-driven graphical user interfaces, client server chat programs, networked video games, and user interfaces. Formerly MM 101

WRIT 220 - Writing for Film

A writing class introducing students to the basic elements of screenwriting. These include three act structure, creating a character, act design, and scene structure. Students complete a short screenplay by the end of the semester. Formerly WM 219

Prerequisites & Notes

Not open to Writing for Film and Television majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 4 hrs

CMMC 313 - Digital Editing

This course, building on the skill set of video production workshop, will introduce students to the theory and practice of digital video editing.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: CMMC 102

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAPH 201 - Introduction to Photography I

Introduction to basic concepts, processes, and techniques of black-and-white photography, including camera operation, exposure, darkroom procedures, lighting, and their controlled applications of these techniques. Emphasis is upon the normative standard of photographic rendering. Formerly PF 211A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite for all upper-level photography courses. Priority enrollment to Media Arts majors; Multidisciplinary Fine Arts, Photo and Photo Studio minors. Not recommended for Foundation students.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Students will be required to take both courses:

LALL 807 - Spanish I

This introduction to Spanish is open to students who have had little to no previous Spanish language experience. In this course, the fundamentals of Spanish grammar, pronunciation and Spanish culture are introduced. Students will develop listening comprehension, speaking and writing skills. Emphasis on conversational Spanish.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LALL 907 - Spanish III

An accelerated course which reviews the basic principles of the Spanish language for students with some background of high school Spanish or Spanish I and II at UArts. Spanish grammar and culture are introduced in the context of short literacy readings, and articles from newspapers and periodicals. This course helps students develop listening comprehension, speaking, reading, and writing skills. It is given predominantly in Spanish.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102, LALL 808 or permission from the department.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Select any two of the following courses:

LALL 875 - Fiction Writing

This course focuses on writing short fiction. Students study the elements of creative writing, experiment with several forms, and develop a clear voice. The goal is to produce a portfolio of finished pieces. Formerly HU 325

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LALL 873 - Playwriting

This workshop course introduces students to the discipline of writing for theater and radio. Focusing on the elements necessary for the creation of producible scripts, the student develops practical skills leading to the creation of a short work for stage or radio by the end of the semester. Formerly HU 322

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LALL 871 - Poetry Writing Workshop

Students' poems are discussed, criticized, revised, and improved. Principles governing the decision to change a poem in various ways, the study of poems by American and English poets, the reading of some criticism, and concentration on the basic principles of craft are all included. Theories involve sound, content, meaning, and purpose of student poems and of poetry in general. The poet's sense of an audience also figures in the discussion. Formerly HU 313

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Select any two of the following courses:

THST 181 - Acting for Non-Majors I

This course introduces the non-actor to improvisation, character development, and the basic idea of action and objective in performance. The first four weeks acclimate the new actor to being expressive in a group using body and voice through improvisation, theater games, and movement; breathing and relaxation techniques are also taught. The student is introduced to script analysis and asked to write and develop monologues to create dramatic characters for performance. Grading is based on class participation and progress with the work on monologues. Formerly TH 100A

THST 182 - Acting for Non-Majors II

This course introduces the non-actor to improvisation, character development, and the basic idea of action and objective in performance. The first four weeks acclimate the new actor to being expressive in a group using body and voice through improvisation, theater games, and movement; breathing and relaxation techniques are also taught. The student is introduced to script analysis and asked to write and develop monologues to create dramatic characters for performance. Grading is based on class participation and progress with the work on monologues. Formerly TH 100B

Media Studies Courses

CMMC 350 - Gender Images in Media

Explores representation of gender and sexuality in the media over the past century and how images of male and female both follow and create social change. Formerly CM 350

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

CMMC 352 - Communication Theories and Culture

An intellectual history of influential 20th-century theories of communication, with a focus on the relationships between media and culture. This course reviews critical intellectual developments in the field against the backdrop of public events, social movements, and the changing daily lives of people in diverse places. How communication systems shape the course of public and private lives and how changes in communication reshaped the way we theorize about the world and the field are examined. Students read primary material in its original form, view media examples, write short position papers reflecting communication theory and culture, and complete a term paper. Formerly CM 251

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Communication majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

CMMC 460 - Current Issues in Communication

Explores the changing landscape of ethical and policy issues in communication from a critical and intellectual perspective, with a focus on emerging issues driven by the shift to digital media (image ethics and manipulation, intellectual property, changing nature of distribution, etc.). Building on previous coursework and studio experiences, students read material from current literature and write reflective and research-based papers on selected issues. Guest speakers in the various industries and independent sectors provide a real-world perspective on how these issues affect professional practice. Formerly CM 435

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Priority enrollment to Communication majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MMDI 150 - Information Concepts

Emphasis is on the importance of organizing and communicating information in a digital world. Students acquire a basic understanding of how computers operate and communicate with each other, as well as an understanding of the evolution of the personal computer and the industries that have spun out of this technology. Student assignments include readings, database projects, and written analyses. Formerly MM 130

MMDI 250 - Survey of Multimedia

Examines the chronological evolution of digital technology and its inevitable application by the aesthetic community. Beginning with the development of digital technology in the mid-1940s, the course discusses the convergence of the scientific, military, and political environments that spawned the employment of digital technology, including the path that led to the digital dominance over analog. Includes the enhancement, exploitation, and embracing of digital technology by the corporate and aesthetic communities, the invention of the personal computer and its ancillary products, and the application of digital technologies in fields as diverse as medicine, communications, manufacturing, cognitive psychology, and in particular, the arts. Pioneers in all fields are identified and examined. Formerly MM 271

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 101

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MMDI 353 - Psychology of Human/Computer Interaction

Students explore the ways humans perceive interacting with computers. How do humans treat computers? Why? Should we interact with them the same way we do with other humans? The reasons behind why some computer interfaces work and some do not are discussed in depth. Should computers be able to perceive our emotions? Or should computers themselves have emotions? The final for this course allows students to take part in designing an original interface solution. Formerly MM 360

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 101

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MMDI 354 - Game Play

A lecture-based focus on the human behavior in the how and why of play and creativity. Course material examines the relationship between creativity and play, the effects of reward and punishment, cultural notions of play, and the integration of play with design play. Students examine the differences between informed and uninformed play as well as the phenomenon of flow. Formerly MM 342

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 101

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

WRIT 242 - Film Story Analysis

The course examines various narrative film genres, identifying the unique and distinctive qualities of screenwriting conventions utilized. Screenings and analysis highlight the devices employed by screenwriters to tell a good story. Weekly screenings followed by critical papers of each screening. Formerly WM 343

WRIT 251 - Narrative Cinema I

A two-part chronological film history course of various schools of film, styles, and genres from both the domestic and international film community that are studied chronologically, emphasizing the influence and integration of the various forms with one another. The course requires bi-weekly screenings of the work being studied. Formerly WM 251

WRIT 252 - Narrative Cinema II

A two-part chronological film history course of various schools of film, styles, and genres from both the domestic and international film community that are studied chronologically, emphasizing the influence and integration of the various forms with one another. The course requires bi-weekly screenings of the work being studied. Formerly WM 252

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

WRIT 253 - History of Television

Provides an overview of the medium of television. The impact of television since its inception has become increasingly pervasive and has influenced an entire society through its ability to educate and entertain. Video examples of the medium are supplemented by class discussion and reading assignments. Formerly WM 253

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to CMAC majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

WRIT 261 - Cinema Arts

Introduction to the various cinematic production values, which directly influence the character of the dramatic product. Topics of study include cinematography, art and production design, editing, and sound as they relate to the writer's intention, and the quality of the final product. Formerly WM 241

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LALL 835 - American Politics and Culture: 1945-1975

The interaction of politics and culture from 1940 to 1975. Course material includes fiction and poetry, history and journalism, and film. Formerly HU 422

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Among the authors to be considered are Dashiell Hammett, Raymond Chandler, and Ross MacDonald; among the films are The Maltese Falcon, The Big Sleep, and The Long Goodbye. Formerly HU 412

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LALL 961 - Avant Garde Cinema

A examination of the arts and history of experimental film and video. The development of non-traditional forms and structures is emphasized, specifically the exploration of mental states, visual metaphors and process.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LALL 963 - American Film Genres

A consideration of a particular film genre and style in cinema, which may include film noir, horror, comedy, political film and independent film, and varying from semester to semester.

Prerequisite: LACR 102 Repeatable once for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASM 951 - Technology, Culture and Society

This course explores the complex relationship among technology, cultural paradigms, and popular consciousness. We study and analyze such questions as “What is technology?”; “Does technology necessarily imply progress?”; and “How does technology define reality?” Students examine these and other related themes through readings and other media. Formerly HU 396

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 810 - Modern American History

A study of contemporary developments, values, and issues as a product of twentieth century phenomena. The course seeks to understand the dramatic changes that have occurred in American society over the last fifty years. Formerly HU 264

Prerequisites: LACR 102 or WRIT 111

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 831 - Money Matters

Explores issues in economics and business by working out from the roles and interests of individual agents and groups. We look at economic dynamics in artistic and cultural work in the present, and at different historical moments, to explore further the nature of these relationships and their meanings. Students are exposed to economic and business discourse, provided with a broad and intensive understanding of economic and business language and logic, given experience in the application of these concepts to the issues in their field of interest, and provide a foundation for thinking through the economic and ethical dimensions of their work. Formerly HU 272

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Priority enrollment to Communication majors.

LASS 854 - Analyzing Talk

This course asks: what can be learned by listening, recording, and analyzing human communication. Much like the interdisciplinary course "Observing Humans," "Analyzing Talk" will involve student-led field work in a location chosen by the student. This is a course primarily about the study of power and culture; the students will be learning about patterned power dynamics through the frameworks of gender, race, ethnicity, class and age. Speech, para-linguistics, gesture, and posture are the focus as the course introduces classics in sociolinguistics, semiotics, and video ethnography. Like music, drama, and choreography, and visual art, human talk can be analyzed both aesthetically and structurally. Framed by the media available of its time, "Analyzing Talk" will cover speech and gesture research and will ask how media extends and limits the questions of a particular age. Classics in documentary film will augment the course.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 922 - Politics and the Media

This course analyzes how political and social forces interact with the American community and how that interaction affects government structure and policy. Factors such as population profiles, suburbanites, elite groups, public opinion, party organization, elections, and reform movements are studied. Formerly HU 359

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 925 - Mass Media and the Arts

The purpose of this course is to develop an understanding of mass media and popular culture, primarily in the United States since the 1890s. Various forms of mass media are defined and the shared techniques by which these forms seek to communicate are analyzed. Finally, the values, both aesthetic and social, embodied in both these media and popular culture are examined in relation to social and economic change. Formerly HU 390

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Areas of Application

Majors in Communication must take two of the following areas of application (9 credits each; 18 credits total)

Advertising

Prepares students to be copywriters, creative directors and producers.

CMMC 221 - Advertising: Creative Concepts I

Whether an advertisement appears in print, on television or radio, or on the Internet, it is built around an idea. Students learn to recognize and create strong advertising ideas that are relevant to the product and the audience, with an emphasis on print advertising. Students learn how to allow their creativity to be guided by strategy. Students are exposed to outstanding creative work and readings in their texts and from studying professional work. They then apply these principles as they create advertising of their own. Formerly CM 271

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Priority enrollment to Communication majors and Strategic Advertising minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CMMC 321 - Advertising Strategy Development

The business side of creative advertising. Examines the functions of the various departments within an advertising agency, focusing on strategic development, and introduces the three key steps in that development-market segmentation, brand positioning, and research. Students learn a variety of qualitative and quantitative research methods and analytical methods and apply what they have learned by developing and presenting an advertising strategy for an actual product. Formerly CM 371

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Priority enrollment to Communication majors and Strategic Advertising minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

CMMC 322 - Advertising: Creative Concepts II

Having learned how to create strong individual concepts, students create broader and deeper concepts that can form the basis for a number of ads and learn how to execute an idea in more than one medium. The course begins by examining award-winning print campaigns in order to recognize suitable ideas for multi-ad campaigns; to identify elements and themes and their grounding in research; and to understand the consumer. The course then examines how interactive media are being used to build customer relationships and brand identities, and explores the strategic functions of these new media. Students develop storyboards for a product or service that reinforces that product's existing brand personality. Formerly CM 372

Prerequisite: CMMC 221

Priority enrollment to Communication majors and Strategic Advertising minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Documentary Video

Prepares students for careers in documentary production, educational media, news feature production, corporate media, and television commercial production.

CMMC 341 - Documentary Media Production I

The conceptual, aesthetic, and pragmatic dimensions of producing video documentaries. Students are exposed to examples of a variety of documentary approaches through screenings and readings, which illustrate the range of choices and creative possibilities of communicating information and emotion through this form. They are also introduced to advanced digital video technologies as they work through a series of structured exercises and later work in teams to develop documentary projects. Project work includes pre-production research, interviews, original shooting in small crews, editing, and presenting finished work. Formerly CM 391

Prerequisite: CMMC 102

Priority enrollment to Communication majors and Documentary Video minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CMMC 342 - Documentary Media Production II

Develops a deeper understanding of the pragmatic, conceptual, and aesthetic dimensions of producing documentary video and audio. Contemporary issues and approaches in documentary media-making through screenings and readings. Students achieve increased mastery of advanced digital video technologies and work through a series of project stages for a medium-length documentary. Students are responsible for completing their own projects, presenting them to their colleagues, and collaborating on other students' projects. Formerly CM 392

Prerequisite: CMMC 341

Priority enrollment to Communication majors and Documentary Video minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CMMC 313 - Digital Editing

This course, building on the skill set of video production workshop, will introduce students to the theory and practice of digital video editing.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: CMMC 102

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Game Design

Prepares students for online advertising, interactive Web drama and interactive art, electronic publishing, and the game industry.

MMDI 212 - Game Design Studio

This course focuses on creating interactive games and exploring the concepts and practical application of game design. Games are developed for the Web, computer, and nondigital mediums. Course activities include lectures and studio practice, including completion of assignments, exercises, and projects. Individual creativity is stressed, as well as collaborative game development skills. Students leave the course having produced several games. Formerly MM 222

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 111

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MMDI 245 - Writing for Games

A writing laboratory that allows students to develop competency in writing rule-based procedural description as well evocative storylines for games and user/play scenarios. Special emphasis is placed on the difference in writing required between game types (chance, puzzles, and strategies) as well as game genres such as role-playing, twitch, and games of perfect information. Formerly MM 240

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 101

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MMDI 335 - Programming for Games

An introduction to programming for interactive game environments. Students learn techniques and theory through exercises and applications that they construct. The programming language studied can change each semester and may include: FlashAction Scripting, Advanced Lingo for Games, C++, or Java. Formerly MM 341

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 111

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Media Studies

Prepares students to develop critical skills addressing issues in media.

Select one course from the following list of courses:

CMMC 351 - History of Documentary

Introduces the historical and aesthetic sweep of approaches to documentary film and video. Through extensive screenings and readings, this survey opens the range of choices and creative possibilities for documentary while understanding aesthetic conventions, technological limitations, and social history. In addition to attending screenings and discussion, students write two short papers and one longer term paper. Formerly CM 293

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Communication majors and Documentary Video minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MMDI 250 - Survey of Multimedia

Examines the chronological evolution of digital technology and its inevitable application by the aesthetic community. Narrative Video

Prepares students to be editors, producers, and directors for television, film, and commercials, sound recordists, and production managers.

CMMC 311 - Narrative Video Production Workshop

An opportunity to develop an understanding of and experience in producing narrative-based video projects. Students begin by reading essays and articles, screening scenes from films and television shows, and reviewing technical language and concepts. They learn to translate script ideas into production proposals, making clear how story ideas, characters, action, and point of view will be rendered in sound and image. Working both on their own projects and as team members, they plan production specifics and shoot/record and edit short narrative pieces in their medium and style of choice. Students present stages of production work, from planning to script to rushes to stages of edited material. Formerly CM 295

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: CMMC 101 or CMMC 102

Priority enrollment to Communication majors and Narrative Video minors. Repeatable for credit

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CMMC 312 - Advanced Narrative Video Production

Students complete a twenty-minute narrative film, emphasizing their role as director and storyteller. A script must be submitted and approved before entering the course.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: CMMC 311, WRIT 220, or THEA 152

A script must be submitted and approved before entering the course.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CMMC 313 - Digital Editing

This course, building on the skill set of video production workshop, will introduce students to the theory and practice of digital video editing.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: CMMC 102

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Professional Writing

Prepares students to be writers in non-fiction for publication in magazines and the Web.

CMMC 460 - Current Issues in Communication

Explores the changing landscape of ethical and policy issues in communication from a critical and intellectual perspective, with a focus on emerging issues driven by the shift to digital media (image ethics and manipulation, intellectual property, changing nature of distribution, etc.). Building on previous coursework and studio experiences, students read material from current literature and write reflective and research-based papers on selected issues. Guest speakers in the various industries and independent sectors provide a real-world perspective on how these issues affect professional practice. Formerly CM 435

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Priority enrollment to Communication majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

WRIT 381 - Writing for the Web

Students address the special opportunities and challenges of writing for online publication. In addition to developing the general skills of writing, editing and re-writing, they develop those writing skills particularly useful for web-based self-publishing (building one's own Website) and publishing through existing Internet publications. Through a series of exercises, they write features and "soft" news, Op-Ed letters, first-person essays, profiles, and reviews fitted for an online audience, while also learning how to pitch story ideas and work under deadlines. They also learn how to take advantage of the collaborative processes by experiencing the brainstorming process of editorial meetings. Formerly CMMC 381.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: WRIT 204

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

WRIT 382 - Writing for Magazines

This course develops the skills of writing for print publications, especially magazines. Students write and edit articles of the following types: features and "soft" news, Op-Ed letters, first-person narrative essays, profiles, and reviews. In addition to working on their writing through revision, editing, and collaboration, they learn how to identify a target magazine, how to brainstorm publication ideas, make a pitch, meet deadlines, as well as be introduced to the business life of the freelance writer. Formerly CMMC 382.

Prerequisite: WRIT 381

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hr

Screenwriting

Prepares students to be screenwriters, producers, story analysts, and film/TV executives, corporate videographers or producers in advertising and the media.

WRIT 212 - Screenwriting II

An intensive screenwriting workshop where, in the first semester, students study scene structure and dialogue, and write a series of outlines for an hour-long screenplay. In the second semester, students write an hour-long screenplay and revise the script. Formerly WM 215

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: WRIT 211 or WRIT 220

Priority enrollment to Writing for Film and Television majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 4 hrs

WRIT 241 - Screenplay Analysis

A course devoted to the critical analysis of screenplays. Students are required to read numerous scripts and write critical papers on various dramatic structural principles highlighted. Formerly WM 243

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: WRIT 211 or WRIT 220

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

WRIT 327 - Episodic Television Writing I

An intensive writing class that analyzes the specific genre of episodic television writing. Students view examples of various genres in the form, and work in teams to create original written work. Three major projects are completed over the course of the semester, including creating an original series pilot. Formerly WM 317

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: WRIT 212 or WRIT 220

Priority enrollment to Writing for Film/TV majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 4 hrs

Web Design

Prepares students to work in advertising agencies and in corporate and institutional settings.

MMDI 202 - Web Design Studio

The World Wide Web is a medium where anyone with an internet connection can view and interact with websites. This course focuses on the creation of such sites through concepts and practical application of interactivity. Comprised of both lecture and practical exercises. Individual creativity is stressed as well as understanding and use of interactive devices in the communication of ideas. Both collaborative and individual exercises are assigned. Formerly MM 221

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 111

May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MMDI 241 - Interactive Narrative

Introduces students to new ways of thinking about interactivity and storytelling. Students analyze how the interactive structure of an experience creates narrative. Short readings discussed in class range from Surrealist Dada and Fluxus language games to the experimental literature of Joyce and Burroughs to the literary theory of Barthes and Eco. Students examine contemporary examples of interactive media such as avatars, virtual realities, role-playing games and Internet sites. Formerly MM 223

MMDI 315 - Advanced Interface Seminar

A seminar course that builds on Introduction to Interface Design. Focuses on the issues involved in creating user interfaces in today's development platforms (hardware, software, input devices, cell phones, etc.). Lectures, discussions, readings, research, and writing constitute the body of this course. In addition to current interface trends, the process of developing the interfaces of tomorrow is addressed. Formerly MM 320

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 111

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Webcasting

Prepares students to develop media strategies for digital distribution.

CMMC 206 - Webcasting II

WEBCASTING II is a production workshop that offers an advanced level of media production methods for different online distribution methods. Students will learn to develop all aspects of interactive streaming, from media production, to server configuration, to front-end programming and social networking. The course will focus more on the technology rather than the content. We will be experimenting with various new technologies such as FLASH Movies, JAVA based players, and VideoLAN. We will also be incorporating alternative input devices for the streaming part of the class such as wireless video cameras, simple FLASH-based animation, and other methods that expand the type of streaming experience that can be created.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: CMMC 205

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

CMMC 3XX - Digital Distribution

Take one Digital distribution course.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs.

MMDI 250 - Survey of Multimedia

Examines the chronological evolution of digital technology and its inevitable application by the aesthetic community. Beginning with the development of digital technology in the mid-1940s, the course discusses the convergence of the scientific, military, and political environments that spawned the employment of digital technology, including the path that led to the digital dominance over analog. Includes the enhancement, exploitation, and embracing of digital technology by the corporate and aesthetic communities, the invention of the personal computer and its ancillary products, and the application of digital technologies in fields as diverse as medicine, communications, manufacturing, cognitive psychology, and in particular, the arts. Pioneers in all fields are identified and examined. Formerly MM 271

Crafts - Bachelor of Fine Arts

Program Total Credits: 123

The Crafts curriculum has been designed to give the student flexibility in his or her choice of media concentrations. Some students may enter the Crafts Department knowing the specific medium in which they wish to concentrate. Other students may elect to divide their media-specific coursework between two areas of potential concentration. Still others may want to pursue a mixed media approach to their Crafts education. All are possible, but careful attention must be paid to meeting departmental, college, and University requirements while pursuing personal interests.

Of the 42 credits required for a Crafts major, 18 of these credits are devoted to the core of Project Courses. The remaining 24 credits are to be taken elsewhere in the Crafts Department. However, it is important to note that 12 of those credits must be at the advanced (300-400) level.

Core Studio Projects Courses

Each semester all Crafts students take Projects, a core studio course. These courses provide aesthetic structure and involve discussion and investigation of broader Crafts issues, with critiques of the student's work. Students then have the freedom to choose from a variety of technique-based courses, which aid in developing that aesthetic. Emphasis is placed on the interdependency of all the arts, with particular attention given to the unique contribution of Crafts ideology and practice. As a corequisite for Projects, each student must be enrolled in at least one core media-specific course in a major area of concentration: ceramics, fibers, jewelry, metalsmithing, and wood/furniture. These corequisites must be at the appropriate 200 or 300 level. Glass is currently offered as a department elective.

Single Medium Concentration

Students entering the department knowing the specific medium in which they wish to concentrate from sophomore through senior year take one three-credit media-specific course in that concentration each semester of the three-year journey through the department. Four media-specific courses must be at the advanced level.

Dual Concentration

It is possible to have a dual concentration within the Crafts Department. If the student enters the sophomore year with an interest in two distinct media then, by taking the prerequisite of two courses at the 200 level early on, in the sophomore and junior years, the student can continue at the advanced level in these same two media during the junior and senior years. Two three-credit courses at the advanced level in each concentration will fulfill the 12-credit advanced-level requirement.

Multiple Media Concentration

It is possible to take courses during the sophomore and junior years in three or more media. However, this will require the greatest vigilance on the part of the student to meet all the requirements for graduation. Having sampled an array of introductory courses, the student must then take an additional introductory course in at least one medium in order to proceed to the advanced level. To meet the advanced level requirement as a multiple media student, it will be necessary to (a) take all 12 advanced credits in one medium or (b) use studio elective credits to take advanced-level courses in additional media.

CRFT 201 - Projects I

Students make art that deals with crafts issues and concepts. Individual project consultations are supplemented by lectures, visiting artists, and group critiques. As this course is content based, students use any/all crafts studios during in-class work time and open studio hours. (Students have access to crafts studios where they have completed or are currently taking a media-specific course.) Formerly CR 200A

Select one course from the following two:

LACR 210 - Texts & Contexts: Perspectives on the Humanities

Perspectives on the Humanities addresses significant works from the ancient world, the Renaissance, the Enlightenment and Romantic periods, and the present day. The course serves five functions: to help students develop their skills in critical reading and writing; to introduce study of traditionally defined periods in the history of culture; to introduce a thematic approach to Humanities topics; to examine key primary texts from various periods and consider them alongside comparable art works; to explore the possibility that conventional ideas of period studies are open to challenge and reinterpretation.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 22X - Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT)

The Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT) serves as a foundation for future studies in the natural and social sciences, in mathematics, and for life-long learning. Scholarship in these scientific disciplines has influenced our culture in significant ways — both directly as a result of ongoing research and indirectly as new scientific ideas and theories are developed and applied within the context of important issues and concerns in the larger society.

Prerequisites & Notes

For all SIFT courses, student must have first matriculated at UArts after Fall 2005. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam. Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

This is a description of the SIFT course category. Any course numbered LACR 22- will meet this requirement. For example:

CRFT 401 - Projects III

Student selects a topic and produces a body of work for the crafts Senior thesis exhibition. Part of this course is Senior Seminar, a forum for the discussion of ideas and issues through student participation, guest lecturers, and professional offerings. The modern craft aesthetic is examined in terms of late nineteenth- and twentieth-century ideas and issues. Emphasis on the interdependency of all the arts with an eye to the unique contribution of crafts ideology and practice. Topical discussions encourage students to find contemporary relevancy and validity in an analysis of historical precedents. Other topics include: making an artist's presentation, resume preparation, writing an artist's statement, recordkeeping and taxes, grant writing, and career opportunities. Particular attention is paid to the style and survival techniques of contemporaries working in craft media. Formerly CR 400A

CRFB 212 - Introduction to Color and the Loom

Students explore the potential of two- and three-dimensional forms in preparation for versatile approaches to the fibers media. Loom, woven structures, tapestry, and woven color are covered. Formerly CR 221B

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRFB 222 - Introduction to Constructed Surface

Through a series of developmental assignments, students are provided with a solid technical and conceptual base in the fabric media. Non-loom constructions, color, and multifiber dye techniques are covered. Formerly CR 222

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRFB 311 - Advanced Fibers Mixed Media

Through a series of developmental assignments with a conceptual emphasis and by using acquired knowledge from previous semesters, students are encouraged to explore forms that reveal the inherent physical qualities and potential image-making possibilities of fabric. Loom-woven and mixed-media fabric techniques are used as appropriate, depending on the student's interest in the development of a diverse range of two-dimensional constructions, sculptural forms, costume, etc. Formerly CR 322A

Metals and Jewelry

CRMT 211 - Introduction to Jewelry

An exploration of notions of jewelry and body adornment as a means of personal expression. Projects range from precious jewelry making to adornment that extends into performance. Basic goldsmithing skills are taught as essential, while three-dimensional sketching and experimentation in mixed media are encouraged. Successful integration of design, material, and process is the goal. Projects provide students with broad exposure to the many possibilities inherent in jewelry and ornament as related to the human form. Formerly CR 241A

CRMT 221 - Introduction to Metalsmithing

Metal is an extremely versatile material; though hard and durable, it is quite malleable and easily worked. This course covers direct working of metal. Sheet, wire, bar, and rod are given form by hammering, seaming, and bending, etc. The majority of work is done in bronze, brass and copper, though steel, stainless steel, aluminum, and precious metals may be used as well. Contemporary issues addressed include the object as sculpture, process as a source material, the importance of surface and detail, and functional objects made by artists. Formerly CR 242

CRMT 311 - Advanced Jewelry/Metals

Builds upon a basic grounding in jewelry concepts and techniques. Lectures, technical demonstrations, and conceptual projects vary from year to year so that students retaking the course will not find it redundant. The goals of the course are to increase awareness and understanding of jewelry as a component of our culture, aid the student in the development of a personal aesthetic, and develop thinking and problem-solving abilities. More experienced students are encouraged to focus on one specialized area of the jewelry field. Senior Crafts majors taking this course may choose to spend all or part of their time producing thesis work to supplement the thesis component of Craft Projects III. Formerly CR 380A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: 6 credits from courses: CRMT 211, CRMT 212, CRMT 221
Priority enrollment to Crafts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Wood

CRWD 211 - Introduction to Woodworking

Introduction to basic woodworking skills and processes, including sharpening and setting up hand tools and machinery, theory of solid wood joinery, and construction. In addition to building technical skills, emphasis is on contemporary and historical furniture design issues. Formerly CR 261A

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRWD 212 - Introduction to Woodworking

Introduction to basic woodworking skills and processes, including sharpening and setting up hand tools and machinery, theory of solid wood joinery, and construction. In addition to building technical skills, emphasis is on contemporary and historical furniture design issues. Formerly CR 261B

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRWD 221 - Introduction to Furniture

This course presents a series of design problems emphasizing exploration of ideas through drawing and model making. Historic and contemporary examples are studied. Fundamental joinery techniques are covered, but the emphasis is on design exploration, imagination, and inventiveness. Students provide their own materials and some hand tools. Formerly CR 285

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRWD 311 - Advanced Wood

Covers tools, joinery, methods, and materials. Content progresses with increasing complexity, involving machining, hand tools, finishing, and surface treatments. Senior Crafts majors taking this course may choose to spend all or part of their time producing thesis work to supplement the thesis component of Crafts Projects III. Formerly CR 386

Prerequisites: 6 credits from courses: CRWD 211, CRWD 212

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRWD 321 - Advanced Furniture

Continuation of CRWD 223 (Introduction to Furniture) involving more complex design projects, combinations of objects, and advanced model making and finishing techniques. Emphasis on imagination, inventiveness, and depth of content. Senior Crafts majors taking this course may choose to spend all or part of their time producing thesis work to supplement the thesis component of Crafts Projects III. Formerly CR 385A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: CRWD 221

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRWD 322 - Advanced Furniture

Continuation of CRWD 223 (Introduction to Furniture) involving more complex design projects, combinations of objects, and advanced model making and finishing techniques. Emphasis on imagination, inventiveness, and depth of content. Senior Crafts majors taking this course may choose to spend all or part of their time producing thesis work to supplement the thesis component of Crafts Projects III. Formerly CR 385B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: CRWD 221

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Note:

Electives must include at least nine studio credits outside of the Crafts offerings.

Additional Media Specific Course OfferingsCrafts*CRFT 224 - Art for the Body

This introductory mixed-media course focuses on the body as the site-specific locus for a variety of art forms. Looking at a range of cultural and historical examples, students gain an appreciation for the personal and social influences that underlie our conception of the human body and how we construct for it. Studio work in an array of media, with specific emphasis on the use of metal, paper, fabric, and leather. Technical information includes flat pattern making, piecing and sewing; forming and fabrication; mixed-media construction; and systems of attachment, linkage, and closure. Emphasis on the student's ability to generate unique solutions to the physical challenges imposed by the human body on the content of attire. Formerly CR 245

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRFT 281 - 3-D Computer Modeling

An introduction to the use of 3-D modeling software for visualization, design, production, and presentation of Craft objects. Through tutorial exercises and individual projects, students become fluent in the use of this important tool. One piece of software (such as formZ, Rhino, etc.) that is both CAD accurate and affordable to individual artists is covered. As students gain proficiency, they apply the techniques to problems addressed in their major studio classes. Students taking the course for a second time explore the capabilities of the software in more depth and focus on intelligent sequencing of operations and using the tools in context. Formerly CRFT 381

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors. May be taken four times for credit. Computer literacy required.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

Ceramics

CRCM 220 - Ceramics

Through lecture and demonstration, students learn basic skills such as handbuilding, throwing, and press molding with an introduction to loading and firing kilns. Mixing clay, slips, and glazes is also being covered. Graduate students may register for this course under GRGR 660. Formerly CR 256

Prerequisites & Notes

May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

CRCM 221 - Introduction to Molding & Casting

A course in modelmaking, moldmaking, and casting techniques using plaster and synthetic compounds. Emphasis is on developing proficiency in slip casting for use in the artist's studio and in industry for serial production. Formerly CR 251

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRCM 222 - Plaster Workshop

An introductory course in modelmaking, moldmaking, and casting techniques, using plaster and synthetic compounds. This course emphasizes the usefulness of these media to designers and artists. Formerly CR 252

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

CRCM 223 - Ceramic Technology

A lecture and laboratory course designed to investigate basic clay and glaze materials. Students gain an intuitive understanding of ceramic materials, their practical and aesthetic properties, and develop a series of personal glazes. The nature of clays and the relationship among clay bodies, slips, sigillatas, and glazes is also explored. Formerly CR 253

Prerequisites & Notes

May be taken four times for credit.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

CRCM 224 - Large Scale Handbuilding

The fundamentals of large-scale handbuilding in clay in two specific areas: a) building a three-dimensional form, using proper clay bodies, building interior support systems, building and drying methods for large work, and moving, loading, and firing techniques; b) covering large areas with smaller parts and exploring fitting and interlocking systems of wall relief or free-standing form. Problems are given with an emphasis on developing potential for personal expression and artistic invention. Formerly CR 255

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

Fibers

CRFB 221 - Fabric Resist & Embellishment

Extends students' basic color and drawing vocabulary through exposure to ancient techniques and tools of Indonesia, Japan, and Africa. Fabric dyeing and resist methods are addressed, including drawing and stamping with waxes, stitching and binding with threads, etc. Students acquire a broader sense of "mark-making," an understanding of the special color properties of dyes, and an ability to use non-Western traditional craft methods to create contemporary art fabric. Formerly CR 277

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRFB 223 - Fabric Printing

Focuses on the fundamental principles of translating drawings and photographs into designs and images for screen-printed fabric, using a fine art approach. Exploration of myriad possibilities in creating fabric using silkscreen and fabric pigments. Formerly CR 278

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

CRFB 227 - Experimental Costume and Performance

The garment provides a tangible yet pliable boundary between the space of self and the space of the world. In this introductory fibers studio, students learn costume construction fundamentals (hand and machine sewing, millinery, flat pattern design, etc.) and explore the garment as a vehicle for personal expression. Students are encouraged to experiment with technique, and a variety of both traditional and unconventional materials are used. Concurrent with studio work, students are introduced to the cultural, political, social, historic, and aesthetic dimensions of costume as it relates to contemporary art. The semester concludes with a collaborative performance. Formerly CR 229

Prerequisites & Notes

May be taken three times for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRFB 322 - Advanced Textile Design

This course uses the computer in the study of woven textile design. An introduction to fabric structures from simple, plain and rib weaves, through twills, satins, waffle weaves, double-cloth, composite structures, and color effects. Students learn the language of cloth through the incremental development of structures, first making notation of those structures by hand on point paper, and then using various computer software programs to develop a wide range of fabric structures. At least one structure is realized through weaving on a 32-harness handweaving computer loom. Formerly CR 329

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: 6 credits from courses: CRFB 211, CRFB 212, CRFB 222

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

GlassCRGL 211 - Introduction to Glass Blowing

Through demonstrations, assignments, and tutoring by the instructor, students are guided toward mastery in off-hand blowing. Blowing of well-balanced functional and non-functional forms is emphasized. Topics covered include the use of color in glass, two- and three-dimensional surface treatment, the relationship between volume and skin of forms, blowing into molds, and working in a variety of scales. The aesthetics of contemporary and historical glass are investigated as they relate to the student's work. Formerly CR 231A

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRGL 212 - Introduction to Glass Blowing

Through demonstrations, assignments, and tutoring by the instructor, students are guided toward mastery in off-hand blowing. Blowing of well-balanced functional and non-functional forms is emphasized. Topics covered include the use of color in glass, two- and three-dimensional surface treatment, the relationship between volume and skin of forms, blowing into molds, and working in a variety of scales. The aesthetics of contemporary and historical glass are investigated as they relate to the student's work. Formerly CR 231B

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRGL 221 - Stained Glass

Students work with transparent and opaque glass sheet to produce both two- and three-dimensional artwork. Techniques include glass cutting and grinding, use of coming and copper foil, soldering, enameling, sandblasting and carving, and kiln-firing. Typical projects include stained glass windows or panels, containers, and shallow bowls. Formerly CR 232

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRGL 311 - Advanced Glass

Glass is considered as an expressive medium, and development toward a personal style is encouraged. Students work with hot glass in advanced offhand work, blowing into molds, casting, and enameling, as well as advanced stained glass work and incorporation of blown and cast pieces into two- and three-dimensional structures. Formerly CR 331

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: 6 credits from courses: CRGL 211, CRGL 212, CRGL 221

Priority to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken four times for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Metals and Jewelry

CRMT 223 - Jewelry Rendering and Design

Students explore two-dimensional pencil and gouache techniques effective in creating the illusion of finished pieces of jewelry. Emphasis is on the skill development necessary to communicate and evaluate ideas prior to making. Presentation and development of a portfolio are an integral part of the course. Formerly CR 243

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

CRMT 225 - Enameling

Enameling is the art of firing colored glass onto metal. The transparent, opaque, and opalescent enamel colors are layered to produce richness, detail, depth, and brilliance in this durable and painterly medium. Traditional techniques such as cloisonné, grisaille, Limoges, basse taille, plique-à-jour, and champlevé, as well as contemporary and experimental processes are explored. Once they have gained a facility with the medium, students produce jewelry or small jewel-like paintings. Formerly CR 249

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRMT 226 - Introduction to Metal Casting

Wax working for jewelry and small-scale sculpture, rubber molding processes, and lost wax/centrifugal casting of bronze and (optional) sterling silver and karat golds. Extensive technical information for students who are design-oriented. Assignments allow projects in all formats (design, one-of-a-kind jewelry, fine art, etc.) and students are encouraged to use techniques innovatively and expressively. Students taking the course a second time choose one aspect of the course (wax carving, wax modeling, wax impressions, vulcanized rubber molding, etc.) and produce a small body of work investigating that aspect in depth. Procedures for sending out work to professional contract casters are also covered. Formerly CR 280

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRMT 227 - Introduction to Electroforming

Electroforming is the process of electrically depositing (plating) metal onto a non-metallic surface or object. Metal may be built up on non-porous materials such as wax, plastic, Styrofoam, glass, stone, etc. Wax or foam may be removed from electroformed objects to leave a strong, lightweight, self-supporting metal shell. Students work in electroformed copper; assignments are structured to allow students to work in accustomed formats and/or combine electroforming with other materials or processes. Formerly CR 281

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRMT 228 - Metal Furniture

This course questions our cultural assumptions about furniture. Are common furniture forms dictated by functional requirements or arbitrary choices that have become traditional? Metal (steel, aluminum, bronze) is used for its strength and versatility; other materials are combined with metal according to student ideas and interests. Techniques include bending/forming of rod, tube and plate, oxyacetylene welding, brazing, mechanical fasteners/tap and die, riveting, and light blacksmithing. Typical student projects include small tables, lamps, chairs, outdoor/public furnishings, and experimental forms. Formerly CR 282

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRMT 229 - Small Scale Steelworking

This course covers light blacksmithing, thin-sheet welding, and other techniques suitable for working steel at tabletop size. Aluminum and other metals may also be used where appropriate. The focus is on the possibilities of metal for the contemporary craftsperson. Contemporary issues include the functional object, the decorative impulse, process as a source of inspiration, and the importance of surface detail. Formerly CR 283

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

WoodCRWD 221 - Introduction to Furniture

This course presents a series of design problems emphasizing exploration of ideas through drawing and model making. Historic and contemporary examples are studied. Fundamental joinery techniques are covered, but the emphasis is on design exploration, imagination, and inventiveness. Students provide their own materials and some hand tools.

Formerly CR 285

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRWD 224 - Low-Tech Furniture

Using materials gathered from both nature and the urban environment, students make chairs, tables and other functional objects. Inspired by the design inherent in natural materials, branches and twigs, artifacts, and found objects, the class conceives and executes a series of projects. Basic, non-technical construction methods and simple hand tools are stressed. Formerly CR 287

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Creative Writing MinorRequirements of the Minor

The Creative Writing Minor, offered through the Liberal Arts Division, invites dedicated students to develop their writing skills across the several genres: poetry, fiction, playwriting and/or film writing. Students may apply to enter the minor after successfully completing a workshop in any one of the three genres. A limited number of students, approximately five per year, will be admitted by the Creative Writing Faculty. To fulfill the minor, students must take all three introductory workshops and any two of the advanced workshops.

Students may withdraw from the minor - or be asked to withdraw - at any time without penalty. Completed courses will then be counted as Liberal Arts electives, free electives, or, in some cases, major requirements or electives.

Two of the five courses required for the minor may concurrently serve as Liberal Arts electives.

Introductory Workshops

Take all three of the following courses:

LALL 875 - Fiction Writing

This course focuses on writing short fiction. Students study the elements of creative writing, experiment with several forms, and develop a clear voice. The goal is to produce a portfolio of finished pieces. Formerly HU 325

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LALL 871 - Poetry Writing Workshop

Students' poems are discussed, criticized, revised, and improved. Principles governing the decision to change a poem in various ways, the study of poems by American and English poets, the reading of some criticism, and concentration on the basic principles of craft are all included. Theories involve sound, content, meaning, and purpose of student poems and of poetry in general. The poet's sense of an audience also figures in the discussion. Formerly HU 313

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LALL 873 - Playwriting

This workshop course introduces students to the discipline of writing for theater and radio. Focusing on the elements necessary for the creation of producible scripts, the student develops practical skills leading to the creation of a short work for stage or radio by the end of the semester. Formerly HU 322

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Advanced Workshops

Taks two from the following list of courses:

LALL 973 - Advanced Playwriting

A follow-up to Playwriting. Students further develop their writing and revising skills. In addition, the class analyzes selected contemporary plays and writes playwrights' critiques of modern theatrical practices. Students complete a polished one-act or radio drama.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LALL 873

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LALL 974 - Advanced Poetry Writing Workshop

An extension of the knowledge and experience of reading and writing poetry that students gained in the Poetry Writing Workshop. Students write, revise, and critique original poems, review individual books of poems, and survey the broad sweep of contemporary poetry.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LALL 871

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LALL 975 - Advanced Fiction Writing Workshop

A follow-up to the Fiction Writing Workshop. Students produce, critique, read, and revise short stories in a more inviting intensive environment. Goals are to hone critical skills, develop and refine students' individual voices, and provide a portfolio of finished pieces.

Prerequisites & Notes

Instructor permission required.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

WRIT 220 - Writing for Film

A writing class introducing students to the basic elements of screenwriting. These include three act structure, creating a character, act design, and scene structure. Students complete a short screenplay by the end of the semester. Formerly WM 219

Prerequisites & Notes

Not open to Writing for Film and Television majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 4 hrs

Dance Education - Bachelor of Fine Arts

Program Total Credits: 130

Bachelor of Fine Arts in Dance Education The Bachelor of Fine Arts (BFA) in Dance Education is a program designed specifically for students whose primary intention is to enter the profession as a teacher of dance. Although there is currently no Pennsylvania state certification for dance teachers, this program includes supervised class teaching in schools and/or private dance studios. The BFA in Dance Education is designed as a four-year program of full-time study with a total requirement of 130 credits. Students choosing to pursue the Bachelor of Fine Arts in Dance Education continue dance technique studies in one major area and one non-major area of concentration. The culmination of the program is an internship as a student teacher.

Junior Year Credits: 34

Fall Credits: 18

- DAPF 3X1 - Major Technique Credits: 4 cr
- DAPF XXX - Dance for Non-Majors Credits: 1 cr

- Electives Credits: 2 cr

May be taken in any term. LASS 871 or LASS 872 is the prerequisite to LASS 975.

LASS 871 - Child & Adolescent Psychology

This course is developmentally oriented and focuses on Erikson's psychosocial stages of life from birth to adolescence. Major topics include pregnancy, the birth process, and the physical, intellectual, emotional, and social development of the child. Family life and parent-child relationships are also examined, with particular attention given to the impact of our social institutions upon parents and children. Formerly HU 181A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Priority enrollment to Art Education, Art Therapy concentration and Dance Education.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 872 - Adult Psychology

An overview of adult stages of psychological development throughout early, middle and late adulthood. An eclectic variety of perspectives citing psychoanalytic, cognitive and humanistic orientations are considered.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Priority enrollment to Art Therapy concentration and Dance Education.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Spring Credits: 16

- DAPF 3X2 - Major Technique Credits: 4 cr
- DAPF XXX - Dance for Non-Majors Credits: 1 cr
- Electives Credits: 1 cr
- Liberal Arts Credits: 3 cr

DACR 362 - Dance Composition: Group Forms

Continuation of DACR 261. Problem-solving and analysis of materials through individual projects. Special emphasis on group choreography. Formerly DA 317B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: DACR 261

Open to majors in the School of Dance only.

Credits: 2 cr, 3 hrs

DACR 375 - Theater Functions

A basic production course dealing with concepts of lighting and set design for dance. Students are required to gain practical experience by working in the theater on dance concerts during the year. Formerly DA 319

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to majors in the School of Dance only.

Credits: 1 cr, 1.5 hrs

LASS 975 - Educational Psychology

An introduction to educational psychology for potential educators. The basic principles of learning theory and education are presented and critically examined. Using a psychosocial orientation, the developmental stages of the human life cycle are explored, as well as the needs of a variety of special populations, e.g., those with learning disabilities or physical disabilities. Considerable attention is given to increasing awareness and understanding of communication, group dynamics, and organizational behavior. Formerly HU 484

DACR 441 - Dance Symposium I

Designed specifically for dance education majors who will be completing their student teaching requirement in the following semester. The course includes curriculum and instruction materials, professional preparation, and evaluation criteria. Discussion centers on the application of dance principles to the learning situation. The role of dance teacher is examined. Formerly DA 408A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: DACR 242

Open to Dance Education majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

DAPF 481 - Dance Production I

Designed to assist senior students in meeting their graduation performance requirement. Each student participates in the rehearsal, performance, and technical aspects of the senior graduation concerts. Students are expected to take major responsibilities for the production of these programs. Formerly DA 419A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: DAPF 312, DAPF 332 or DAPF 322

Open to majors in the School of Dance only.

Credits: 2 cr, 3 hrs

Spring Credits: 15

- Electives Credits: 1 cr

DACR 442 - Dance Symposium II

This course is designed to complement the actual student teaching experience. Specific situations, problems, and achievements of the student teaching process are discussed and evaluated. Networking and employment opportunities are integral to the course. Formerly DA 408B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: DACR 242 Corequisite: DACR 449
Open to Dance Education majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

DACR 449 - Student Teaching

Students teach under supervised direction for one semester in a public or private school. If placement for student teaching is not within a school system, arrangements are made for the student to do this supervised teaching through local dance studios. Formerly DA 410

Prerequisites & Notes

Corequisite: DACR 422
Open to Dance Education majors only. Student must have completed the first semester of their Junior year (75 credits).

Credits: 7 cr, 14 hrs

DACR 470 - Survey of the Business of Dance

Emphasizes the development of tools and skills necessary for realizing individual professional goals, vehicles and processes for change in the various fields of dance within our society. This course develops an awareness of managing life and work as a professional in dance. Topics include basic business principles as well as career self-management and an overview of career opportunities. LACR 101 - First-Year Writing I

First part of a year-long writing, reading and research course that teaches the fundamental skills of the responsible student-scholar. Students practice the kinds of academic writing, textual analysis, and library and Internet research required of university students and curious learners of any age. The first term explores writing from literature, philosophy, and art.

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 102 - First-Year Writing II

Continuation of LACR 101. During this term an inquiry-based research paper is the focus. A similar curriculum is examined in the context of history, literature, theory, philosophy, and art from a chosen period.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 101 or LACR 009

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 210 - Texts & Contexts: Perspectives on the Humanities

Perspectives on the Humanities addresses significant works from the ancient world, the Renaissance, the Enlightenment and Romantic periods, and the present day. The course serves five functions: to help students develop their skills in critical reading and writing; to introduce study of traditionally defined periods in the history of culture; to introduce a thematic approach to Humanities topics; to examine key primary texts from various periods and consider them alongside comparable art works; to explore the possibility that conventional ideas of period studies are open to challenge and reinterpretation.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 22X - Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT)

The Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT) serves as a foundation for future studies in the natural and social sciences, in mathematics, and for life-long learning. Scholarship in these scientific disciplines has influenced our culture in significant ways — both directly as a result of ongoing research and indirectly as new scientific ideas and theories are developed and applied within the context of important issues and concerns in the larger society.

Prerequisites & Notes

For all SIFT courses, student must have first matriculated at UArts after Fall 2005. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam. Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

This is a description of the SIFT course category. Any course numbered LACR 22- will meet this requirement. For example:

- LACR 221 SIFT: Problem Solving

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPI 8XX - Liberal Arts Period Interpretation - Pre-20th Century

Period Interpretations are an array of interdisciplinary courses that explore the process by which we understand cultural areas. Students consider both conventional and innovative interpretations of cultural history. All students are required to take two Period Interpretation courses, one 20th Century, and one pre-20th Century. Most students will take PI courses in the junior and/or senior years.

Digital Fine Arts Concentration

This concentration is designed for students grounded in traditional two- and three-dimensional art and design principles who wish to incorporate digital tools and technology to create highly personalized artistic statements. While conceptually and procedurally digitally based, the Digital Fine Arts concentration provides for physical output in two-, three- and four-dimensional realms as well as combined formats. Working closely with advisors, the student selects 15 credits from categories I and II, with a six-credit minimum in each category.

Requirements for the Minor

I. Imaging, Interactivity, and Sound Options:

EMDI 210 - Digital Multimedia

The elements of digital multimedia production techniques address the integration and creation of digital media for websites and alternative delivery processes such as podcasting. This course involves hands-on production experience as well as perspective on developments in this rapidly growing field through the readings and lectures. Students create projects involving digital imagery, video and sound, and animation. The first half of the semester is dedicated to creating video pieces utilizing either digital video or animating still imagery. Creation of effective sound tracks will be an important part of this process. The second half of the semester is dedicated to creating a website and utilizing compressed digital video on the Web. Software to be utilized include Photo to Movie, iMovie, Amadeus Pro, Garageband, iDVD, and Dreamweaver. There is considerable emphasis on new utilizations of digital media such as podcasts and VODcasts (video on demand) and cell phone multimedia. Graduate students may register for this course under GREM 610. Formerly EM 210

MAAN 231 - Introduction to Computer Animation

This introductory course develops the student's understanding of digital movement and imaging through animation exercises using a variety of 2D software programs on the PC platform. No previous computer experience is required. Formerly PF 216

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Animation majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAPH 311 - Digital Photography Workshop

Concentrates on the production of creative digital photography; students are encouraged to experiment with new tools and techniques. Film and print scanners, CD-ROM discs, and digital cameras are used to produce images that are critiqued on the basis of both technical proficiency and aesthetic accomplishment. Portfolios are printed on digital output machines and four-color offset. Frequent readings, lectures, and site visits expand the ongoing studio experience. Formerly PF 315

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAPH 202

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MUSC 163 - Aural Concepts

For non-music majors. An introduction to the use of music and sound components of multimedia and their potential for enhancing communication. Recognizing the special background and needs of the non-music major student, the course examines the production of musical sound, basic notation and theory practices, and an in-depth overview of disparate musical styles illustrating the variety and depth of musical thought from around the world and its potential relationship to the visual image. Formerly MU 149A

Prerequisites & Notes

Not open to majors in the School of Music. Priority enrollment to Multimedia majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MUSC 460 - Introduction to MIDI and Electronic Technology

A detailed "hands-on" examination of the use of computers in the present-day composition environment. The course includes the uses of a computer, the language of MIDI, sequencing, audio sampling, analog, digital, and other forms of synthesis, and a survey of currently available music software. Strategies and technology of scoring and synchronizing to the visual image is emphasized through a final project. No prior computer or synthesis experience is needed. Formerly MU 415A

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Music and Multimedia majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

II. Digital Expression and Output Alternatives:FAPR 411 - Digital Printmaking

This course offers the students an opportunity for continued investigation within the various printmaking processes. Photoshop is introduced with an emphasis on using the computer as an imagemaking tool within the context of printmaking. The emphasis is on the integration of idea and process. Graduate students may register for this course under GRPR 633. Formerly PR 412

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Printmaking majors; Book Arts and Digital Fine Arts minors. Computer literacy required. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FAPR 434 - Book Production

This advanced course focuses on the development and production of a printed book or portfolio of works: design and formatting of a publication including the investigation of sequence, page design, and binding possibilities; hands-on experience in the preparation of images for press production, pre-press techniques; and assisting the Master Printer in the printing. All work is produced in the Borowsky Center for Publication Arts, the University's offset lithography facility. Students may choose to collaborate on projects or work independently. Formerly PR 425

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to majors in the College of Art and Design only. Student must have completed the first semester of their Sophomore year (45 credits). May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 1.5-3 cr

MAFL 331 - Experimental Video

An intermediate-level course in digital audio and video production. In the context of screenings and readings drawn from the history of experimental media, students learn to use various digital and optical strategies to approach a variety of thematic issues. This course is a venue for the production of short, aesthetically energized works for a variety of screening environments, and encourages collaboration with Dance and Music majors. Formerly PF 322

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 202

Open to Film/Digital Video majors and minors; and Film/Animation majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Diploma in Music in Jazz Studies-CompositionProgram Total Credits: 104

This four-year program is designed primarily for students who wish take the entire musical portion of the undergraduate curriculum without liberal arts courses. Students wishing to transfer from this program to the bachelor's degree program may apply to do so in any year of their matriculation and will be required to obtain the approval of both the Director of the School of Music and the Dean of Liberal Arts. Diploma in Music in Jazz Studies-Vocal Performance

Program Total Credits: 104

This four-year program is designed primarily for students who wish to take the entire musical portion of the undergraduate curriculum without liberal arts courses. Students wishing to transfer from this program to the bachelor's degree program may apply to do so in any year of their matriculation and will be required to obtain the approval of both the Director of the School of Music and the Dean of Liberal Arts. The Diploma program is ideal for students who have already earned a degree in a field other than music but who want the benefit of a complete undergraduate training and education in music.

Documentary Video Minor

The minor in Documentary Video provides instruction in the making of creative non-fiction stories, essays, and informational programs, primarily in video form. It is designed for students who wish to augment their studies in a related field. Through this minor, students learn to document the lives and narratives of people and places, portray historical, political and contemporary events, present information in accessible and stimulating forms, and make persuasive arguments, as well as learn the skills related to documentary production. Communication majors may not declare a Documentary Video minor.

Requirements for the Minor

- Elective Credits: 3 cr
(To be determined with minor advisor)

CMMC 341 - Documentary Media Production I

The conceptual, aesthetic, and pragmatic dimensions of producing video documentaries. Students are exposed to examples of a variety of documentary approaches through screenings and readings, which illustrate the range of choices and creative possibilities of communicating information and emotion through this form. They are also introduced to advanced digital video technologies as they work through a series of structured exercises and later work in teams to develop documentary projects. Project work includes pre-production research, interviews, original shooting in small crews, editing, and presenting finished work. Formerly CM 391

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: CMMC 102

Priority enrollment to Communication majors and Documentary Video minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CMMC 342 - Documentary Media Production II

Develops a deeper understanding of the pragmatic, conceptual, and aesthetic dimensions of producing documentary video and audio. Contemporary issues and approaches in documentary media-making through screenings and readings. Students achieve increased mastery of advanced digital video technologies and work through a series of project stages for a medium-length documentary. Students are responsible for completing their own projects, presenting them to their colleagues, and collaborating on other students' projects. Formerly CM 392

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: CMMC 341

Priority enrollment to Communication majors and Documentary Video minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CMMC 351 - History of Documentary

Introduces the historical and aesthetic sweep of approaches to documentary film and video. Through extensive screenings and readings, this survey opens the range of choices and creative possibilities for documentary while understanding aesthetic conventions, technological limitations, and social history. In addition to attending screenings and discussion, students write two short papers and one longer term paper. Formerly CM 293

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Communication majors and Documentary Video minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Select one of the following:

CMMC 103 - Sound Communication

This introduction to the field of sound communication enables students to conceptualize the importance of sound in cultural life and prepares them in practical approaches to field recording and working with various types of sound. A survey of approaches to sound as a social communication through readings and a broad range of audio examples, including documentary, journalistic, theatrical, and experimental approaches. Training in digital and audio field and post-production equipment and complete practical field exercises and an intensive sound project. Formerly CM 120

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Communication and Film/Digital Video majors; and Narrative Video and Documentary Video minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 5 hrs

MAFL 311 - Sync-Sound for Narrative Film

Students in this course explore creative sound design in finished films with instruction and practice in the use of sound recording equipment, sound transfers, building and editing multiple synchronous sound tracks, and preparing for the sound mix. Students work in groups to create and complete a five-minute sync sound film that incorporates the concept of "sound design." Formerly PF 320

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 202

Open to Film/Digital Video and Film/Animation majors; and Narrative Video minors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

E-Music Minor - CMAC

The minor in E-Music offers students majoring in either Multimedia or Music an opportunity to create electronic and experimental music, to develop skills that allow them to produce, package, and distribute music by using internet technologies, and to design electronic instrumental interfaces. The minor prepares students for a variety of highly entrepreneurial careers ranging from entertainment and product development to creative and production work in the recording and musical fields. This minor is only available to students majoring in Multimedia or Music. Specific requirements for Music majors can be found in the School of Music section of this catalog.

Requirements for the Minor

Requirements for Multimedia students:

MMDI 330 - E-Music Thesis Project

A culminating course for students in the E-Music minor in which they develop an application. Students develop a proposal for an application and carry the idea through research implementation, execution, and presentation. With the consent of the instructor, projects may be the work of one student or that of a group of students, be in a variety of shapes, and in a variety of media. Students must have completed E-Music minor requirements. Formerly MM 370

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: Completion of other Minor courses.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MMDI 405 - Innovative Interfaces

The notion of the digital environment transcends the concept of the computer as we know it. These addresses and environments, although supported by digital technology, are non-computer-like in many respects. Building them calls for changes in the choice of interaction devices (using touch, voice, gestures, and possibly just user's intent as a basis for interaction), shape and size of computers (no boxes, but interactive surfaces), their location (floor, wall, pocket), as well as change in content structure. Using cross-disciplinary data from cognitive and computer sciences and social psychology, the students in this research/studio course focus primarily on the design and development of innovative ways of interacting with digital technology. Formerly MM 440

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 111

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MUNM 123 - Piano Class for Non-Majors

One-hour class of piano instruction in traditional beginning piano. Coursework includes basic technique including scales, chords, and chord melodies. Formerly MU 130A

Prerequisites & Notes

E-Music Minor - CPA

The minor in E-Music offers students majoring in both Multimedia and Music an opportunity to create electronic and experimental music, to develop skills that allow them to produce, package, and distribute music by taking advantage of digital technology, and to design (electronic) instrumental interfaces. The minor prepares students for a variety of highly entrepreneurial careers ranging from entertainment and product development to creative and production work in the recording and musical fields. This minor is only available to students majoring in Multimedia or Music. Please note that this minor requires 17 credits for Music majors. Specific requirements for Multimedia majors can be found in another section of this catalog.

The College of Performing Arts offers minors that enable a student to focus on a specific discipline through organized electives.

Students wishing to include a minor are governed by the following guidelines:

1. Students must meet eligibility requirements, which may include a satisfactory grade-point average, prerequisites, and departmental portfolio review.
2. An intent to complete a minor is declared by filing the completed Minor Declaration Form with the Office of the Registrar. The forms are available in the Office of the Registrar.
3. A student may not major and minor in the same program, except where indicated.
4. Courses applied to the minor may only be applied toward elective requirements.
5. All minors require a minimum of 15 credits, with the exception of E-Music for Music majors. Generally, no substitutions to the minor requirements are allowed. In exceptional situations where substitutions are granted, they must have the approval of both the major and minor program advisors.
6. The requirements of the minor must be completed prior to graduation.
7. A student pursuing a minor may be required to complete more than the minimum number of credits required to complete the undergraduate degree in order to also complete the minor.
8. Minors are available only to undergraduate students.

Requirements for the Minor

Courses required for Music students:

MMDI 101 - Visual Communication Studio

All communication takes place through language. However, not all language uses words. This course allows students to harness the power of visual language in order to convey messages and meaning. The elements of drawing and two-dimensional design that are covered include point, line, shape, composition, texture, color, type, and image. Although non-digital mediums are addressed, the exploration of digital tools for the screen is a primary goal. Individual creativity is stressed. Formerly MM 110

MMDI 111 - Introduction to Interface Design

The software interface represents the focal point of user interaction with the various modes of multimedia communication. Readings by interface theorists inform discussions on the evolution of the software interface, conceptual models, prototypes, interaction design, deliverables, and basic concepts of human-computer interaction. Avenues for pursuing interactive media design in entertainment, publishing, and education are also addressed. Current technologies, including the trend from soft to hard interfaces are studied, in terms of their potential short- and long-term influence on communication and multimedia. Basic methods for rapid prototyping and testing are considered. Formerly MM 121

MMDI 330 - E-Music Thesis Project

A culminating course for students in the E-Music minor in which they develop an application. Students develop a proposal for an application and carry the idea through research implementation, execution, and presentation. With the consent of the instructor, projects may be the work of one student or that of a group of students, be in a variety of shapes, and in a variety of media. Students must have completed E-Music minor requirements. Formerly MM 370

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: Completion of other Minor courses.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MUCP 322 - Analysis and Composition of Contemporary Music

An examination of compositional techniques used in pop songs, jingles, soundtracks, and underscores for radio, TV, records, films, shows, and industrials. Students investigate the ways in which music serves to enhance the overall goals of the product or project. Musical analysis serves to demonstrate how each style is created. Students produce their own musical compositions in each media context. Formerly MU 308A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: MUSC 204, MUSC 206

Priority enrollment to majors in the School of Music.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 1.5 hrs

MUCP 323 - Analysis & Composition of Commercial Music

Continuation of MUCP 322. Formerly MU 308B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MUCP 322

Priority enrollment to majors in the School of Music.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 1.5 hrs

Select one of the following Multimedia Studios:

MMDI 202 - Web Design Studio

The World Wide Web is a medium where anyone with an internet connection can view and interact with websites. This course focuses on the creation of such sites through concepts and practical application of interactivity. Comprised of both lecture and practical exercises. Individual creativity is stressed as well as understanding and use of interactive devices in the communication of ideas. Both collaborative and individual exercises are assigned. Formerly MM 221

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 111

May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MMDI 212 - Game Design Studio

This course focuses on creating interactive games and exploring the concepts and practical application of game design. Games are developed for the Web, computer, and nondigital mediums. Course activities include lectures and studio practice, including completion of assignments, exercises, and projects. Individual creativity is stressed, as well as collaborative game development skills. Students leave the course having produced several games. Formerly MM 222

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 111

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MMDI 301 - Interactive Sound and Video

The course deals with the experience of producing complete multimedia installation works in a project-based environment focusing on interactive sound and video. Lectures and meetings augment this studio course. Individual creativity is stressed as well as collaboration in the creation of works through individual and group projects. Assignments vary in scale, and focus on appropriate planning and information architecture, as well as acquisition and creation of content in various media. Authoring environments used include but are not limited to MAX MSP, Isadora, and Macromedia Director. Previously introduced concepts and technology are re-explored with an emphasis on integration and effectiveness in the communication of the concept of the piece. Formerly MM 310

Prerequisite: MMDI 111

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MMDI 405 - Innovative Interfaces

The notion of the digital environment transcends the concept of the computer as we know it. These addresses and environments, although supported by digital technology, are non-computer-like in many respects. Building them calls for changes in the choice of interaction devices (using touch, voice, gestures, and possibly just user's intent as a basis for interaction), shape and size of computers (no boxes, but interactive surfaces), their location (floor, wall, pocket), as well as change in content structure. Using cross-disciplinary data from cognitive and computer sciences and social psychology, the students in this research/studio course focus primarily on the design and development of innovative ways of interacting with digital technology. Formerly MM 440

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 111

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

E-Publishing Minor

The minor in E-Publishing provides students with skills connected to both the craft and business of writing and publishing online. This minor provides students with an opportunity to strengthen their journalistic and expository writing styles especially as used in electronic media, while also learning the basics of the business of establishing a Website, Webzine, Web radio, or Weblog. The skills learned are useful for students who are interested in online publishing as an independent publisher or freelance writer, as well as those who wish to work with online publishing enterprises. Majors in Communication may not declare an E-Publishing minor.

Requirements for the Minor

- Elective Credits: 3 cr
(To be determined by minor advisor)

CMMC 331 - Digital Journalism I

The primary skills and practices involved in constructing news for the online environment. Begins with an exploration of the evolution of journalism from print to online and digital forms. By looking critically at a range of journalistic examples and reading about the changing work of reporting, students grapple with the differences between traditional and new media forms of journalism and begin to learn the practice of reporting online. They work through a set of exercises researching story ideas, pitching them to the class, conducting interviews, and writing, designing, and posting short pieces for the Web, introducing them to the possibilities and constraints of working in this medium. Formerly CM 381

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Priority enrollment to Communication majors and E-Publishing minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CMMC 415 - E-Publishing Thesis Project

This studio class allows students to complete a project and publish it online. Students examine the sub-field of e-publishing that their project fits within, researching relevant models and examples, write a business plan for their project, consider intellectual property questions raised by their project, complete and present their thesis project, and write a reflective paper about their project. Formerly CM 340

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: Completion of minor

Open to students in the E-Publishing minor only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 831 - Money Matters

Explores issues in economics and business by working out from the roles and interests of individual agents and groups. We look at economic dynamics in artistic and cultural work in the present, and at different historical moments, to explore further the nature of these relationships and their meanings. Students are exposed to economic and business discourse, provided with a broad and intensive understanding of economic and business language and logic, given experience in the application of these concepts to the issues in their field of interest, and provide a foundation for thinking through the economic and ethical dimensions of their work. Formerly HU 272

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Priority enrollment to Communication majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Select one of the following:

MMDI 131 - Introduction to Interactive Programming

This course is an introductory programming class, appropriate for students with no prior programming experience. Traditionally, introductory programming teaches algorithmic problem-solving, where a sequence of instructions describe the steps necessary to achieve a desired result. In this course, students are trained to go beyond this sequential thinking – to think concurrently and modularly. By its end, students are empowered to write and read code for event-driven graphical user interfaces, client server chat programs, networked video games, and user interfaces. Formerly MM 101

MMDI 202 - Web Design Studio

The World Wide Web is a medium where anyone with an internet connection can view and interact with websites. This course focuses on the creation of such sites through concepts and practical application of interactivity. Comprised of both lecture and practical exercises. Individual creativity is stressed as well as understanding and use of interactive devices in the communication of ideas. Both collaborative and individual exercises are assigned. Formerly MM 221

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 111

May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Not applicable as minor credit for Multimedia majors

Figurative Illustration Minor

The focus of this minor is on enhancing skills and knowledge related to figurative drawing, painting and general image making. This is accomplished by working with the figure and the figure in space and through introduction to various media and picture making issues. Academic figure anatomy, old master and other traditional drawing and painting techniques are demonstrated and utilized. The minor is especially beneficial for students in Painting or Animation. Illustration majors may not declare a Figurative Illustration minor.

ILUS 201 - Pictorial Foundation

Introduction to drawing and painting skills as they relate to illustration. Objective visual perception, clarity in drawing, and technical facility are stressed. Students are exposed to visual communications, strategies, and design concepts through exposure to art history and the field of contemporary illustration. Formerly IL 200A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: FNDP 111, FNDP 121

Priority enrollment to Illustration majors and Figurative Illustration minors.

ILUS 202 - Pictorial Foundation

Introduction to drawing and painting skills as they relate to illustration. Objective visual perception, clarity in drawing, and technical facility are stressed. Students are exposed to visual communications, strategies, and design concepts through exposure to art history and the field of contemporary illustration. Formerly IL 200B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: ILUS 201

Priority enrollment to Illustration majors and Figurative Illustration minors.

ILUS 211 - Figure Anatomy

Focus on the investigation and application of line, plane, mass, light and shade, shadow, perspective, anatomy, and proportion as they relate to figure drawing. Weekly sessions include a lecture, demonstrations from the skeleton, and drawing from life. Formerly IL 202A

Prerequisite: FNDP 111

Priority enrollment to Illustration majors and Figurative Illustration minors. May be taken twice for credit.

ILUS 212 - Figure Anatomy

Focus on the investigation and application of line, plane, mass, light and shade, shadow, perspective, anatomy, and proportion as they relate to figure drawing. Weekly sessions include a lecture, demonstrations from the skeleton, and drawing from life. Formerly IL 202B

Prerequisite: ILUS 211

Priority enrollment to Illustration majors and Figurative Illustration minors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

ILUS 312 - Figure Utilization

Studies of the figure in narrative contexts are explored, as is work from single and grouped models, nude and costumed. Concentration is on developing compositions and concepts from different and often combined resources. Drawing and painting techniques are utilized. Formerly IL 303

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: ILUS 321

Priority enrollment to Illustration majors and Figurative Illustration minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Film/Animation - Bachelor of Fine Arts

Fall Credits: 18

WRIT 251 and WRIT 252 Narrative Cinema I and II are required of all Film/Animation majors as part of the total Liberal Arts distribution.

ILUS 285 - Drawing for Animators

Focuses on introducing and developing the skills and disciplines needed for good figurative animation drawing. The primary issues of anatomical figure drawing with a strong emphasis on the structure and solidity of the figure, good proportions, and specific movement and gesture as they relate to the model. Topics also covered: two-dimensional versus three-dimensional ways of translating form; how perspective and viewpoint are used with the figure and their effect on scale; exaggerated foreshortening techniques; diagrammatic and expressive line quality; facial expressions; hand and foot studies; capturing movement through gesture; and introduction to animal drawing for animation. Formerly IL 205

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FNDP 111

Priority enrollment to Animation and Film/Animation majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Can be taken either fall or spring semester.

MAAN 201 - Introduction to Animation I

Through a series of drawn exercises concentrating on timing, movement, and weight, the student acquires an understanding of fundamental animation principles. Formerly PF 212A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FNDP 111, FNDP 121 or MMDI 101

Priority enrollment to Media Arts and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors and Animation minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Can be taken either fall or spring semester.

MAFL 201 - Introduction to Film I

A hands-on introduction to the principles and techniques of media production: shooting 16mm film and digital video, developing a sensitivity to the nuances of movement, understanding lighting and exposure, composition, and the logic of editing. We also survey the historical and aesthetic development of the medium in order to expand the students' sense of the possibilities of the medium. Formerly PF 210A

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Media Arts and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors, Film/Digital Video minors. Not recommended for Foundation students.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAPH 201 - Introduction to Photography I

Introduction to basic concepts, processes, and techniques of black-and-white photography, including camera operation, exposure, darkroom procedures, lighting, and their controlled applications of these techniques. Emphasis is upon the normative standard of photographic rendering. Formerly PF 211A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite for all upper-level photography courses. Priority enrollment to Media Arts majors; Multidisciplinary Fine Arts, Photo and Photo Studio minors. Not recommended for Foundation students.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Can be taken either fall or spring semester.

WRIT 251 - Narrative Cinema I

A two-part chronological film history course of various schools of film, styles, and genres from both the domestic and international film community that are studied chronologically, emphasizing the influence and integration of the various forms with one another. The course requires bi-weekly screenings of the work being studied. Formerly WM 251

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Select one course from the following two:

LACR 210 - Texts & Contexts: Perspectives on the Humanities

Perspectives on the Humanities addresses significant works from the ancient world, the Renaissance, the Enlightenment and Romantic periods, and the present day. The course serves five functions: to help students develop their skills in critical reading and writing; to introduce study of traditionally defined periods in the history of culture; to introduce a thematic approach to Humanities topics; to examine key primary texts from various periods and consider them alongside comparable art works; to explore the possibility that conventional ideas of period studies are open to challenge and reinterpretation.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 22X - Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT)

The Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT) serves as a foundation for future studies in the natural and social sciences, in mathematics, and for life-long learning. Scholarship in these scientific disciplines has influenced our culture in significant ways — both directly as a result of ongoing research and indirectly as new scientific ideas and theories are developed and applied within the context of important issues and concerns in the larger society.

Prerequisites & Notes

For all SIFT courses, student must have first matriculated at UArts after Fall 2005. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam. Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

This is a description of the SIFT course category. Any course numbered LACR 22- will meet this requirement. For example:

- LACR 221 SIFT: Problem Solving

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Spring Credits: 15

WRIT 251 and WRIT 252 Narrative Cinema I and II are required of all Film/Animation majors as part of the total Liberal Arts distribution.

MAAN 202 - Introduction to Animation II

Students are introduced to under-the-camera animation using varied mediums such as puppets, cut-outs, and painting-on-glass. Special attention is given to non-narrative approaches to animation. A final project is created using one or more of the techniques explored during the semester. Formerly PF 212B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAAN 201 or MAFL 201

Priority enrollment to Media Arts and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors and Animation minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAAN 231 - Introduction to Computer Animation

This introductory course develops the student's understanding of digital movement and imaging through animation exercises using a variety of 2D software programs on the PC platform. No previous computer experience is required. Formerly PF 216

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Animation majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Can be taken either in the fall or spring semester.

MAFL 202 - Introduction to Film/Digital Video

This course offers an introduction to the basic practices of digital video editing and further creative exploration of the art of moving images. Students perform timing, staging, and blocking exercises to develop a feel for direction, experiment with more advanced film strategies, learn to edit digital video, and investigate relationships between sound and image. A final project integrates these explorations creatively. Formerly PF 210B

Prerequisite: MAFL 201

Priority enrollment to Media Arts and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors, Film/Digital Video minors. Not recommended for Foundation students

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

WRIT 252 - Narrative Cinema II

A two-part chronological film history course of various schools of film, styles, and genres from both the domestic and international film community that are studied chronologically, emphasizing the influence and integration of the various forms with one another. The course requires bi-weekly screenings of the work being studied. Formerly WM 252

- LACR 221 SIFT: Problem Solving

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Junior Year Credits: 36

Fall Credits: 18

- Liberal Arts Credits: 6 cr

MAAN 301 - Junior Animation Workshop I

The first half of this course is devoted to the creation of a short, client-based project. The second half involves an interdisciplinary group project aimed at refining students' knowledge of animation movement design. Formerly PF 312A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAAN 202

Open to Animation majors and minors; Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors and Film/Animation majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAFL 301 - Junior Cinema Production I

First part of a year-long film and digital video production class emphasizing independent filmmaking techniques and concepts. Students explore cinematic ideas through structured and personal filmmaking assignments that emphasize keen visual thinking, story development, and an understanding of film form and film language. Students are taught professional lighting, 16mm sync sound camera technologies, editing and soundtrack strategies, and laboratory procedures. Students also view and analyze significant films. Formerly PF 310A

Prerequisite: MAFL 202

Open to Film/Digital Video majors and minors; and Film/Animation majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAFL 311 - Sync-Sound for Narrative Film

Students in this course explore creative sound design in finished films with instruction and practice in the use of sound recording equipment, sound transfers, building and editing multiple synchronous sound tracks, and preparing for the sound mix. Students work in groups to create and complete a five-minute sync sound film that incorporates the concept of "sound design." Formerly PF 320

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 202

Open to Film/Digital Video and Film/Animation majors; and Narrative Video minors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Select one course from the following two:

MAAN 232 - 2-D Computer Animation

Using both raster- and vector-based programs, students explore how to build 2D animation sequences in the computer and how to translate hand-drawn animation into digitally composited animated pieces. Traditional animation principles are expanded upon and reinforced using 2D computer graphics and editing programs. Digital imagery and sound are integrated in class assignments designed to explore a wide variety of 2D styles. Formerly PF 316

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAAN 231 or MMDI 102

Priority enrollment to Animation majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAAN 331 - 3-D Computer Animation

Using industry-standard 3D computer software, students learn basic modeling, texturing, lighting, movement, and rendering techniques. This course prepares students for further 3D computer coursework and allow them to utilize 3D software in the development and creation of their Junior and Senior thesis work. Formerly PF 326

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAAN 231 or MMDI 102

Open to Animation majors and minors; Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors and Film/Animation majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Spring Credits: 18

- Liberal Arts Credits: 6 cr

MAAN 302 - Junior Animation Workshop II

This course focuses on the creation of a personal, 1.5 minute animated piece, starting from initial conception and ending with final output to digital of film media. Stages in the production cycle include storyboarding, animatics, animation, inking and painting, sound image editing, and final output. Formerly PF 312B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAAN 301

Open to Animation majors and minors; Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors and Film/Animation majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAAN 341 - Moving Art: Animation Theory and Production

The aesthetics of animation design and the structural elements of frame-by-frame filmmaking have evolved over time. Analytical, procedural, and historical approaches are brought to bear in the study of animation principles and their development in cinematic history. Formerly PF 327

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAAN 202

Open to Animation majors and minors; and Film/Animation majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAFL 302 - Junior Cinema Production II

Second part of a year-long film and digital video production class emphasizing independent filmmaking techniques and concepts. Students explore cinematic ideas through structured and personal filmmaking assignments that emphasize keen visual thinking, story development, and an understanding of film form and film language. Students are taught professional lighting, 16mm sync sound camera technologies, editing and soundtrack strategies, and laboratory procedures. Students also view and analyze significant films. Formerly PF 310B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 301

Open to Film/Digital Video majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAFL 331 - Experimental Video

An intermediate-level course in digital audio and video production. In the context of screenings and readings drawn from the history of experimental media, students learn to use various digital and optical strategies to approach a variety of thematic issues. This course is a venue for the production of short, aesthetically energized works for a variety of screening environments, and encourages collaboration with Dance and Music majors. Formerly PF 322

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 202

Open to Film/Digital Video majors and minors; and Film/Animation majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Senior Year Credits: 33

Fall Credits: 18

- Electives Credits: 3 cr
- Liberal Arts Credits: 6 cr
- MAAN 401 - Sr. Animation Workshop I Credits: 3 cr

MAFL 401 - Senior Cinema Production I

First part of a year-long course in which students produce their own thesis film or video. The students are also introduced to contemporary professional practices including resume writing, applying to film festivals, readings contracts, dealing with copyrights, and financing and distributing independent films. Formerly PF 410A

Prerequisite: CMMC 311 or MAFL 302

Open to Film/Digital Video and Film/Animation majors; and Narrative Video minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Select one course from the following two:

MACR 443 - Time: A Multidisciplinary Seminar

The concept of Time considered from a multidisciplinary perspective, drawing on readings in philosophy, literature, psychology, sociology, and film theory. Relevant works in film and video are screened. Students are responsible for a final term paper that interrelates two or more of the readings with one of the screened works. Formerly PF 424

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 302 or MAAN 302

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

WRIT 220 - Writing for Film

A writing class introducing students to the basic elements of screenwriting. These include three act structure, creating a character, act design, and scene structure. Students complete a short screenplay by the end of the semester. Formerly WM 219

Prerequisites & Notes

Not open to Writing for Film and Television majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 4 hrs

Spring Credits: 15

- Liberal Arts Credits: 3 cr
- MAAN 402 - Sr. Animation Workshop II Credits: 3 cr

MACR 499 - Internship

Internship program in which the student, working closely with the Media Arts Department internship advisor, is placed in one of several professional situations. Placements include assisting in professional studios, practice in biomedical photography laboratories, and working for commercial and non-profit galleries, among others. Placements in film and animation are sponsored by local independent production houses and television stations, design firms, and free-lance artists; students of film may assist in location shooting, set production, editing, casting, scripting, and a myriad of other practical tasks. Formerly PF 499

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 202, MAPH 202 or MAAN 202

Open to Media Arts majors only. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAFL 320 - Film Forum: Selected Topics

Concentrated study of a particular area of film, video, or animation. Courses deal with specific issues and have included: film theory; seminars in sound and installation; studies in Japanese media; the history of video art; and the history of animation. Formerly PF 324

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 202 or MAAN 202

Open to Media Arts and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors only. Repeatable for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAFL 402 - Senior Cinema Production II

Second part of a year-long course in which students produce their own film or video. The students are also introduced to contemporary professional practices including resume writing, applying to film festivals, readings contracts, dealing with copyrights, and financing and distributing independent films. Formerly PF 410B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 401

Open to Film/Digital Video and Film/Animation majors; and Narrative Video minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Liberal Arts Distribution

Note all Liberal Arts courses are 3 credits.

- Liberal Arts Electives Credits: 15 cr

LAAH 111 - Art History Survey I

A survey of Western visual arts and architecture from the earliest extant examples, cave painting and sculpture from Austrian and southern Europe, to the arts of the Renaissance in Europe in the fourteenth-fifteenth centuries. Students will be asked to visit and do research on the art in local museums and galleries in order to gain a foundation for the work from their textbook, and asked to place, evaluate, and comprehend the history of the world in which many of them make their art. Formerly HU 140A

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 112 - Art History Survey II

Following the first half of the Survey of Western Art, this course will consider Western visual arts and architecture from the Renaissance in Europe in the fourteenth-fifteenth centuries to the present. As in the first semester, students will be asked to visit and do research on the art in local museums and galleries, and consider this more modern world as it relates to their own art and thought. They will be tested regularly and expected to write short essays about the work they have studied firsthand. Formerly HU 140B

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 101 - First-Year Writing I

First part of a year-long writing, reading and research course that teaches the fundamental skills of the responsible student-scholar. Students practice the kinds of academic writing, textual analysis, and library and Internet research required of university students and curious learners of any age. The first term explores writing from literature, philosophy, and art.

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 102 - First-Year Writing II

Continuation of LACR 101. During this term an inquiry-based research paper is the focus. A similar curriculum is examined in the context of history, literature, theory, philosophy, and art from a chosen period.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 101 or LACR 009

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 210 - Texts & Contexts: Perspectives on the Humanities

Perspectives on the Humanities addresses significant works from the ancient world, the Renaissance, the Enlightenment and Romantic periods, and the present day. The course serves five functions: to help students develop their skills in critical reading and writing; to introduce study of traditionally defined periods in the history of culture; to introduce a thematic approach to Humanities topics; to examine key primary texts from various periods and consider them alongside comparable art works; to explore the possibility that conventional ideas of period studies are open to challenge and reinterpretation.

Scholarship in these scientific disciplines has influenced our culture in significant ways — both directly as a result of ongoing research and indirectly as new scientific ideas and theories are developed and applied within the context of important issues and concerns in the larger society.

Prerequisites & Notes

For all SIFT courses, student must have first matriculated at UArts after Fall 2005. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam. Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

This is a description of the SIFT course category. Any course numbered LACR 22- will meet this requirement. For example:

- LACR 221 SIFT: Problem Solving

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPI 8XX - Liberal Arts Period Interpretation - Pre-20th Century

Period Interpretations are an array of interdisciplinary courses that explore the process by which we understand cultural areas. Students consider both conventional and innovative interpretations of cultural history. All students are required to take two Period Interpretation courses, one 20th Century, and one pre-20th Century. Most students will take PI courses in the junior and/or senior years.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 and LACR 210

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR*102 and LACR*210

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

WRIT 251 - Narrative Cinema I

A two-part chronological film history course of various schools of film, styles, and genres from both the domestic and international film community that are studied chronologically, emphasizing the influence and integration of the various forms with one another. The course requires bi-weekly screenings of the work being studied. Formerly WM 251

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Note:

Electives must include nine studio credits taken outside the Film/Animation offerings.

Film/Digital Video - Bachelor of Fine ArtsProgram Total Credits: 123

The Filmmaking major provides students with a background in all phases of film and video production, including film cinematography, videography, film and video editing, and sound/image manipulation. As in still photography, filmmaking students acquire a strong background in criticism, theory, and history of media. All Film/Video majors pursue at least one practical internship as part of the degree requirements.

Foundation Year - Film/Digital Video Sequence - credits: 33

The Foundation Film/Digital Video Sequence is a track for self-declared Film and Digital Video majors. Foundation students are eligible to select any College of Art and Design major program regardless of the Foundation sequence they attend.

FNDP 111 - Drawing

Drawing is approached as a process by which the student examines and investigates the visual world. Line, mark, and shape are among the drawing elements emphasized in the first semester. Students observe the form and structure of various subjects while they improve their skills, strengthen their vision, and begin to define their drawing vocabulary. Graphite pencils and a range of appropriate papers are the most frequently used materials. Focus is on the challenges and rewards of developing perceptual skills. Formerly FP 110

Prerequisites & Notes

Instructor permission required. Open to Foundation majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FNDP 151 - Two-Dimensional Design

This course introduces the fundamental language of the visual arts within the two-dimensional plane. The first semester defines and investigates the visual elements of point, line, shape, pattern, and value. These fundamental elements are analyzed as independent units and brought together supporting and animating one another in a variety of formats. The investigation of compositional forces, interactions of shape with format, historic origins, mathematical structures, and time-based and sequential concepts are explored. Perceptual skills are developed using a variety of traditional and digital media. Examination of principles of movement in two-dimensional space using animated imagery and digital animation software is incorporated. The discovery of the power of the underlying fundamentals and their application defines the more complex subject of this class. Formerly FNDP 121

Prerequisites & Notes

Instructor permission required. Open to Foundation majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FNDP 161 - Three-Dimensional Design/Time Motion

An introduction to the fundamental principles of three-dimensional and time-based work. Concepts of space, movement, mass, volume, the qualities and properties of materials as well as kinetic works are explored using traditional and digital processes. As the semester progresses the construction of three-dimensional objects emphasizing serial and sequential concepts combines with the use of video for motion capture and other means of exploring fundamental time-based works. The course emphasis is on processes of thinking and planning, thoughtful articulation of form, principles of perception and an appreciation and refinement of acuity in regards to static and kinetic forms. Formerly FNDP 131.

Prerequisites & Notes

Instructor permission required. Open to Foundation majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FNDP 171 - Time and Motion

Building on the concepts and sensibilities of FNDP 151 Two-Dimensional Design Principles and FNDP 161 Three-Dimensional Design/Time Motion, students undertake an expanded exploration of time-based art. Students develop works that explore mechanical and digital animation devices, kinetics, and the cinematic language. Projects that focus on the controlled movement of objects, the positioning of the viewer and the use of sound prepare the students for the development of increasingly complex narrative works. Students experiment with a variety of materials and media.

Prerequisites & Notes

Instructor permission required. Open to Foundation majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

LAAH 111 - Art History Survey I

A survey of Western visual arts and architecture from the earliest extant examples, cave painting and sculpture from Austrian and southern Europe, to the arts of the Renaissance in Europe in the fourteenth-fifteenth centuries. Students will be asked to visit and do research on the art in local museums and galleries in order to gain a foundation for the work from their textbook, and asked to place, evaluate, and comprehend the history of the world in which many of them make their art. Formerly HU 140A

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 101 - First-Year Writing I

First part of a year-long writing, reading and research course that teaches the fundamental skills of the responsible student-scholar. Students practice the kinds of academic writing, textual analysis, and library and Internet research required of university students and curious learners of any age. The first term explores writing from literature, philosophy, and art.

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Spring Credits: 15

FNDP 112 - Drawing

Building on the sensibilities, skills, and information of FNDP 111, students refine their perceptual abilities, utilize a wider range of media, and develop additional drawing strategies. Students study complex natural and organic form, including the human figure in both line tone. Controlling proportion, building volume, engaging the illusion of space, while at the same time developing the desired quality of light and illumination are issues explored in this semester. Faculty bring skills, projects, and information developed in the two- and three-dimensional classes into the service of drawing. Formerly FP 111

Prerequisites & Notes

Instructor permission required. Prerequisite: FNDP 111

Open to Foundation majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FNDP 152 - Two-Dimensional Design

This course builds on the projects and skills established in FNDP 151. The majority of FNDP 152 is devoted to the study of color. With color comes additional visual enrichment, light and luminosity, a specialized language and the necessity to mature manual and digital skills, and control new media and concepts. The major works of the semester are based in the use of digital media as well as acrylic paints that require skills of mixing and application. Color theories are discussed, projects requiring tinting, shading, and toning clarify these basic concepts and master works are studied. Ideas developed in the class are shared with the other Foundation courses and skills from 3D and Drawing are imported to support current 2D projects. As the semester progresses, representational and non-representational images are developed as students work to integrate past experience, refine their skills of observation and explore more complex principles of organization. Instructor permission required. Formerly FNDP 122

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FNDP 151

Open to Foundation majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FNDP 162 - Three-Dimensional Design

Building on the skills, language, and sensibilities of FNDP 161, the second semester undertakes more complex projects. Some projects often involve the combining of several materials and require the assembly of multiple parts. The semester explores the challenges of scale and engages time and movement as ideas. The introduction of environmental works, setting in place new principles of three-dimensional organization, researching the order in nature and taking up the challenge of representation in three dimensions are some of the arenas in which students work. Faculty relate works and share principles with either the two dimensional, drawing, or time motion classes and attempt to harvest skills and sensibilities developed in those classes to inform of projects in Three-Dimensional Design. Formerly FNDP 132

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FNDP 161

Open to Foundation majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAFL 102 - Video: Strategies and Tactics

Building on the skills and concepts introduced in Time/Motion, (FNDP *161) this course introduces the student to the creative and expressive possibilities of film and video. The course surveys a variety of approaches to film from narrative to documentary to experimental, fosters more critical viewing habits, and provides the student with basic production skills in digital video and audio.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FNDP 111 FNDP 151 FNDP 161 FNDP 171

Open to Foundation majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 112 - Art History Survey II

Following the first half of the Survey of Western Art, this course will consider Western visual arts and architecture from the Renaissance in Europe in the fourteenth-fifteenth centuries to the present. As in the first semester, students will be asked to visit and do research on the art in local museums and galleries, and consider this more modern world as it relates to their own art and thought. They will be tested regularly and expected to write short essays about the work they have studied firsthand. Formerly HU 140B

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 102 - First-Year Writing II

Continuation of LACR 101. During this term an inquiry-based research paper is the focus. A similar curriculum is examined in the context of history, literature, theory, philosophy, and art from a chosen period.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 101 or LACR 009

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Sophomore Year Credits: 30

Fall Credits: 15

WRIT 251 and WRIT 252 Narrative Cinema I & II are required of all Film/Video majors.

CMMC 103 - Sound Communication

This introduction to the field of sound communication enables students to conceptualize the importance of sound in cultural life and prepares them in practical approaches to field recording and working with various types of sound. A survey of approaches to sound as a social communication through readings and a broad range of audio examples, including documentary, journalistic, theatrical, and experimental approaches. Training in digital and audio field and post-production equipment and complete practical field exercises and an intensive sound project. Formerly CM 120

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Communication and Film/Digital Video majors; and Narrative Video and Documentary Video minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 5 hrs

MAFL 201 - Introduction to Film I

A hands-on introduction to the principles and techniques of media production: shooting 16mm film and digital video, developing a sensitivity to the nuances of movement, understanding lighting and exposure, composition, and the logic of editing. We also survey the historical and aesthetic development of the medium in order to expand the students' sense of the possibilities of the medium. Formerly PF 210A

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Media Arts and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors, Film/Digital Video minors. Not recommended for Foundation students.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAPH 201 - Introduction to Photography I

Introduction to basic concepts, processes, and techniques of black-and-white photography, including camera operation, exposure, darkroom procedures, lighting, and their controlled applications of these techniques. Emphasis is upon the normative standard of photographic rendering. Formerly PF 211A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite for all upper-level photography courses. Priority enrollment to Media Arts majors; Multidisciplinary Fine Arts, Photo and Photo Studio minors. Not recommended for Foundation students.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

WRIT 251 - Narrative Cinema I

A two-part chronological film history course of various schools of film, styles, and genres from both the domestic and international film community that are studied chronologically, emphasizing the influence and integration of the various forms with one another. The course requires bi-weekly screenings of the work being studied. Formerly WM 251

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Select one course from the following two:

LACR 210 - Texts & Contexts: Perspectives on the Humanities

Perspectives on the Humanities addresses significant works from the ancient world, the Renaissance, the Enlightenment and Romantic periods, and the present day. The course serves five functions: to help students develop their skills in critical reading and writing; to introduce study of traditionally defined periods in the history of culture; to introduce a thematic approach to Humanities topics; to examine key primary texts from various periods and consider them alongside comparable art works; to explore the possibility that conventional ideas of period studies are open to challenge and reinterpretation.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 22X - Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT)

The Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT) serves as a foundation for future studies in the natural and social sciences, in mathematics, and for life-long learning. Scholarship in these scientific disciplines has influenced our culture in significant ways — both directly as a result of ongoing research and indirectly as new scientific ideas and theories are developed and applied within the context of important issues and concerns in the larger society.

Prerequisites & Notes

For all SIFT courses, student must have first matriculated at UArts after Fall 2005. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam. Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

This is a description of the SIFT course category. Any course numbered LACR 22- will meet this requirement. For example:

- LACR 221 SIFT: Problem Solving

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Spring Credits: 15

WRIT 252 Narrative Cinema II can be counted as a studio elective or liberal arts course.

- Liberal Arts Credits: 3 cr

MAAN 202 - Introduction to Animation II

Students are introduced to under-the-camera animation using varied mediums such as puppets, cut-outs, and painting-on-glass. Special attention is given to non-narrative approaches to animation. A final project is created using one or more of the techniques explored during the semester. Formerly PF 212B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAAN 201 or MAFL 201

Priority enrollment to Media Arts and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors and Animation minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAFL 202 - Introduction to Film/Digital Video

This course offers an introduction to the basic practices of digital video editing and further creative exploration of the art of moving images. Students perform timing, staging, and blocking exercises to develop a feel for direction, experiment with more advanced film strategies, learn to edit digital video, and investigate relationships between sound and image. A final project integrates these explorations creatively. Formerly PF 210B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 201

Priority enrollment to Media Arts and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors, Film/Digital Video minors. Not recommended for Foundation students

MAFL 301 - Junior Cinema Production I

First part of a year-long film and digital video production class emphasizing independent filmmaking techniques and concepts. Students explore cinematic ideas through structured and personal filmmaking assignments that emphasize keen visual thinking, story development, and an understanding of film form and film language. Students are taught professional lighting, 16mm sync sound camera technologies, editing and soundtrack strategies, and laboratory procedures. Students also view and analyze significant films. Formerly PF 310A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 202

Open to Film/Digital Video majors and minors; and Film/Animation majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAFL 311 - Sync-Sound for Narrative Film

Students in this course explore creative sound design in finished films with instruction and practice in the use of sound recording equipment, sound transfers, building and editing multiple synchronous sound tracks, and preparing for the sound mix. Students work in groups to create and complete a five-minute sync sound film that incorporates the concept of "sound design." Formerly PF 320

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 202

Open to Film/Digital Video and Film/Animation majors; and Narrative Video minors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

WRIT 220 - Writing for Film

A writing class introducing students to the basic elements of screenwriting. These include three act structure, creating a character, act design, and scene structure. Students complete a short screenplay by the end of the semester. Formerly WM 219

Prerequisites & Notes

Not open to Writing for Film and Television majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 4 hrs

Spring Credits: 15

- Electives Credits: 3 cr
- Liberal Arts Credits: 3 cr

MAFL 302 - Junior Cinema Production II

Second part of a year-long film and digital video production class emphasizing independent filmmaking techniques and concepts. Students explore cinematic ideas through structured and personal filmmaking assignments that emphasize keen visual thinking, story development, and an understanding of film form and film language. Students are taught professional lighting, 16mm sync sound camera technologies, editing and soundtrack strategies, and laboratory procedures. Students also view and analyze significant films. Formerly PF 310B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 301

Open to Film/Digital Video majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAFL 320 - Film Forum: Selected Topics

Concentrated study of a particular area of film, video, or animation. Courses deal with specific issues and have included: film theory; seminars in sound and installation; studies in Japanese media; the history of video art; and the history of animation. Formerly PF 324

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 202 or MAAN 202

Open to Media Arts and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors only. Repeatable for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAFL 331 - Experimental Video

An intermediate-level course in digital audio and video production. In the context of screenings and readings drawn from the history of experimental media, students learn to use various digital and optical strategies to approach a variety of thematic issues. This course is a venue for the production of short, aesthetically energized works for a variety of screening environments, and encourages collaboration with Dance and Music majors. Formerly PF 322

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 202

Open to Film/Digital Video majors and minors; and Film/Animation majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Senior Year Credits: 30

Fall Credits: 15

- Electives Credits: 3 cr
- Liberal Arts Credits: 3 cr

MACR 443 - Time: A Multidisciplinary Seminar

The concept of Time considered from a multidisciplinary perspective, drawing on readings in philosophy, literature, psychology, sociology, and film theory. Relevant works in film and video are screened. Students are responsible for a final term paper that interrelates two or more of the readings with one of the screened works. Formerly PF 424

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 302 or MAAN 302

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MACR 499 - Internship

Internship program in which the student, working closely with the Media Arts Department internship advisor, is placed in one of several professional situations. Placements include assisting in professional studios, practice in biomedical photography laboratories, and working for commercial and non-profit galleries, among others. Placements in film and animation are sponsored by local independent production houses and television stations, design firms, and free-lance artists; students of film may assist in location shooting, set production, editing, casting, scripting, and a myriad of other practical tasks. Formerly PF 499

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 202, MAPH 202 or MAAN 202

Open to Media Arts majors only. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAFL 401 - Senior Cinema Production I

First part of a year-long course in which students produce their own thesis film or video. The students are also introduced to contemporary professional practices including resume writing, applying to film festivals, readings contracts, dealing with copyrights, and financing and distributing independent films. Formerly PF 410A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: CMMC 311 or MAFL 302

Open to Film/Digital Video and Film/Animation majors; and Narrative Video minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Foundation Program

The full-time freshman student is typically scheduled for 16.5 credits each semester, usually as follows:

Game Design Minor

The minor in Game Design explores the principles that inform games – how they work, how to make them, why they are important, and how they help us understand our world and social interactions. Students learn to construct logical narratives and rules that make possible the creation of an active space in which gaming can take place. Using skills based upon interface and experience design, students program, write, and design interactive games. Upon completing the minor, students will have completed a fully functional prototype of an original game. Because of the structure of their major, Communication majors may not declare a minor within CMAC.

Requirements for the Minor

- Elective Credits: 3 cr
To be determined with minor advisor; must be fulfilled with MM 121 for Writing for Film and Television majors.

MMDI 245 - Writing for Games

A writing laboratory that allows students to develop competency in writing rule-based procedural description as well evocative storylines for games and user/play scenarios. Special emphasis is placed on the difference in writing required between game types (chance, puzzles, and strategies) as well as game genres such as role-playing, twitch, and games of perfect information. Formerly MM 240

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 101

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MMDI 305 - Game Design Thesis

Students complete a fully marketable game prototype. Students and instructors examine how the gaming industry functions as well as research and develop an individual work. Special attention is paid to preparing to enter the field. Students must have completed Game Design minor requirements. Formerly MM 344

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: Completion of Minor.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MMDI 354 - Game Play

A lecture-based focus on the human behavior in the how and why of play and creativity. Course material examines the relationship between creativity and play, the effects of reward and punishment, cultural notions of play, and the integration of play with design play. Students examine the differences between informed and uninformed play as well as the phenomenon of flow. Formerly MM 342

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 101

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Select one of the following:

MMDI 202 - Web Design Studio

The World Wide Web is a medium where anyone with an internet connection can view and interact with websites. This course focuses on the creation of such sites through concepts and practical application of interactivity. Comprised of both lecture and practical exercises. Individual creativity is stressed as well as understanding and use of interactive devices in the communication of ideas. Both collaborative and individual exercises are assigned. Formerly MM 221

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 111

May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Not applicable as minor credit for Multimedia majors.

MMDI 212 - Game Design Studio

This course focuses on creating interactive games and exploring the concepts and practical application of game design. Games are developed for the Web, computer, and nondigital mediums. Course activities include lectures and studio practice, including completion of assignments, exercises, and projects. Individual creativity is stressed, as well as collaborative game development skills. Students leave the course having produced several games. Formerly MM 222

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 111

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Not applicable as minor credit for Multimedia majors

MMDI 335 - Programming for Games

An introduction to programming for interactive game environments. Students learn techniques and theory through exercises and applications that they construct. The programming language studied can change each semester and may include: FlashAction Scripting, Advanced Lingo for Games, C++, or Java. Formerly MM 341

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 111

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Graphic Design - Bachelor of Fine Arts

Program Total Credits: 123

Graphic Design students and faculty are engaged in a collaborative process of exploring the “New” as it emerges. For graphic design, the New has meant specifically the transformation of media, which affects how messages are created and transmitted, and how the intersection of design, media, and culture are understood. Throughout the three years of major concentration, problems in graphic communication are combined with exploratory and experimental studies in drawing, color, photography, typography, and emerging technologies. The curriculum is supplemented by special lecture programs, workshops with invited design firms, and on-site studio seminars in selected design offices and studios, paper and printing plants, museums and libraries, and with film and computer graphic producers.

Fall Credits: 15

- Electives Credits: 3 cr

GDES 201 - Design Systems

An intensive laboratory where the formal aspects of composition, organic and geometric form, color, symbolic drawing, craftsmanship, and the processes of conceptualizing are investigated. All of the assignments are founded on directed goals and playful investigation to train the student in the areas of selection, set theory, and visual logic. Formerly GD 213A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: Completion of Foundation or MMDI 101, MMDI 102
Priority enrollment to Graphic Design majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

GDES 203 - Letterform Design

The analysis and development of letterforms. The norms of weight, proportion, character width, and alphabetic relationships are developed perceptually, by hand. This course stresses the inherent optical relationships that exist in the construction of typefaces derived from the Latin alphabet. Formerly GD 210

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: Completion of Foundation or MMDI 101 MMDI 102
Priority enrollment to Graphic Design majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

GDES 221 - Descriptive Drawing

A freehand drawing course that teaches the student to consciously observe, analyze, understand, and represent the underlying structure and form of manmade and natural objects. Logical representation and problem-solving is emphasized. A visual vocabulary of line, shape, value, texture, and their spatial organization is developed so that drawing can be used as a method of research and invention. Formerly GD 211A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: Completion of Foundation. Priority enrollment to Graphic Design majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Select one course from the following two:

LACR 210 - Texts & Contexts: Perspectives on the Humanities

Perspectives on the Humanities addresses significant works from the ancient world, the Renaissance, the Enlightenment and Romantic periods, and the present day. The course serves five functions: to help students develop their skills in critical reading and writing; to introduce study of traditionally defined periods in the history of culture; to introduce a thematic approach to Humanities topics; to examine key primary texts from various periods and consider them alongside comparable art works; to explore the possibility that conventional ideas of period studies are open to challenge and reinterpretation.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 22X - Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT)

The Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT) serves as a foundation for future studies in the natural and social sciences, in mathematics, and for life-long learning. Scholarship in these scientific disciplines has influenced our culture in significant ways — both directly as a result of ongoing research and indirectly as new scientific ideas and theories are developed and applied within the context of important issues and concerns in the larger society.

Prerequisites & Notes

For all SIFT courses, student must have first matriculated at UArts after Fall 2005. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam. Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

This is a description of the SIFT course category. Any course numbered LACR 22- will meet this requirement. For example:

- LACR 221 SIFT: Problem Solving

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Spring Credits: 15

- Electives Credits: 1.5 cr

EMDI 201 - Electronic Media/Production I

Addresses the development of foundation computer skills in image scanning technology, desktop publishing, digital photographic technologies, and basic output procedures. Technical expertise and efficient working methodologies are applied to problems that are brought into the class from other design courses as well as from both individual and group-assigned projects. All software is standard to current graphic design industry practices. Graduate students may register for this course under GREM 601. Formerly EM 201

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Graphic Design majors and Typography minors only.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

GDES 202 - Design Systems

A continuation of Design Systems GDES 201. Further investigation of the visual language of design, culminating in a basic communication problem. Formerly GD 213B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: GDES 201

Priority enrollment to Graphic Design majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

GDES 212 - Typography Fundamentals

The course addresses the basic formal language of typography and the application of typographic principles to frame basic communication messages. Typographic investigations are achieved by both manual and digital means. Formerly GD 212

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: Completion of Foundation or MMDI 101, MMDI 102

Priority enrollment to Graphic Design majors and Typography minors.

GDES 222 - Descriptive Drawing

A continuation of Descriptive Drawing GDES 221. A freehand, analytical drawing course that concentrates on organic form and objects from nature. Formal composition and visual vocabulary of line, shape, value, texture, and spatial organization are stressed. Drawing skills are developed to sketch and research visual concepts, as well as to use the medium for the invention of original images in upper-level courses. Formerly GD 211B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: GDES 221

Priority enrollment to Graphic Design majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

EMDI 202 - Electronic Media/Production II

An extension of EMDI 201. Addresses the development of advanced computer skills in image scanning, technology, desktop publishing, pre-press production, color, output technology, and digital photographic technologies. Special attention is given to comparative study of output technologies and the translation of the on-screen image to offset lithography. Technical expertise and efficient working methodologies are applied to problems that are brought into the class from other design courses as well as from both individual and group-assigned projects. All software is standard to current graphic design industry practices. Formerly EM 202

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: EMDI 201

Open to Graphic Design majors and Typography minors only.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

GDES 301 - Communications Studio

Developing an understanding of visual relationships and how to use them to create visual impact and clarity while solving communications problems. Invention, intuition, and discovery are combined with logical thought and thorough preliminary research. Special attention is given to refining the student's perceptual abilities, hand skills, and the integration of various media. Coursework is completed using both traditional and computer technologies. Students must have working knowledge of Adobe Illustrator, basic image scanning, and basic Macintosh operation or be concurrently enrolled in EMDI 201. Formerly GD 311A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: EMDI 201

Open to Graphic Design majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

GDES 311 - Typographic Systems

This course investigates and defines the principles of typography in a communication context. Directed research based upon typographic norms addresses the issues of informational hierarchies achievable through visual form and structure as well as the editorial and expressive potentials of typography. Coursework is completed both using traditional and computer technologies. Students must have working knowledge of Adobe InDesign and basic Macintosh operation or be concurrently enrolled in EMDI 202. Working knowledge of Adobe Illustrator is preferred. Formerly GD 306A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: EMDI 201, GDES 212

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

LAAH 854 - History of Communication Design

A survey of two-dimensional design in the West, with particular attention to developments in the twentieth century. Formerly HU 254

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 Priority enrollment to Graphic Design majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Spring Credits: 15

- Electives Credits: 1.5 cr
- Liberal Arts Credits: 6 cr

EMDI 203 - Digital Interactive Techniques

Addresses the development of computer skills in digital time-based software and cyberspace software. Special attention is given to interactivity and theories of informational architecture. Technical expertise and efficient working methodologies are applied to problems in both individual and group projects. All software is standard to current graphic design industry practices. Formerly EM 203

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: EMDI 202

Open to Graphic Design majors only.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

GDES 302 - Communications Studio

A continuation of GDES 301, concentrating on the development of color, sensitivity, perceptual abilities, and hand skills within a communications context. A working process that develops invention through logical thought and intuition is applied to communication problems. Coursework is completed using both traditional and computer technologies. Students must have working knowledge of Adobe Illustrator, basic image scanning, and basic Macintosh operation or be concurrently enrolled in EMDI 203. Formerly GD 311B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: GDES 301

Open to Graphic Design majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

GDES 312 - Typographic Systems

This course is an extension and continuation of Typographic Systems GDES 311. The course addresses the typographic principles of the grid, text typography, text hierarchies, and image integration, all within the context of a multipage format. Students must have working knowledge of Adobe InDesign, image scanning, and basic knowledge of Photoshop or be concurrently enrolled in Electronic Media/Production II EMDI 312 to gain admission to this course. Additional working knowledge of Adobe Illustrator is preferred. Formerly GD 306B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: GDES 311, EMDI 202

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Senior Year Credits: 30

Fall Credits: 15

- Electives Credits: 1.5 cr
- Liberal Arts Credits: 6 cr

EMDI 204 - Advanced Digital Interactive Techniques

An intensive studio in the advanced development of authoring and scripting skills in digital time-based software and cyberspace software. Special attention is given to interactivity, theories of informational architecture, and interface design. Technical expertise and efficient working methodologies are applied to problems in both individual and group projects. All software is standard in current graphic design industry practice. Formerly EM 204

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: EMDI 203

Open to Graphic Design majors only.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

GDES 401 - Design Studio

A wide-ranging exploration of the connections between image and text, and symbolic and narrative imagery. These studies are supported by inquiries into semiotics, information theory, and research methodology. This course uses both traditional and computer technologies within a thorough research process. Preliminary research and definition of a self-generated degree project is undertaken by Graphic Design majors in this course. Students should have expertise in Adobe InDesign, Adobe Illustrator, and Adobe Photoshop. Formerly GD 411A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: GDES 302

Open to Graphic Design majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

GDES 403 - Problem Solving

Develops approaches to solving communications problems of diverse character and increasingly practical application. It assumes a high level of formal competence and places special emphasis on working within technical and time constraints by developing clear and concise thought patterns. This course uses both traditional and computer technologies within a thorough research process. Students should have expertise in Adobe InDesign, Adobe Illustrator, Adobe Photoshop, Macromedia Director, Macromedia Flash, and Macromedia Dreamweaver. Formerly GD 412A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: GDES 302

Open to Graphic Design majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Spring Credits: 15

- Electives Credits: 3 cr
- Liberal Arts Credits: 6 cr

GDES 402 - Design Studio: Senior Project

A self-generated degree project involving research, proposals, complete design formulation, and final presentation. Topics are reviewed by a panel of faculty in Graphic Design; and the students are reviewed by an outside critic midway through the preliminary stages of development. This course uses both traditional and computer technologies within a thorough research process. Students should have expertise in Adobe InDesign, Adobe Illustrator, and Adobe Photoshop. Formerly GD 411B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: GDES 401

Open to Graphic Design majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

GDES 404 - Problem Solving

A continuation of Problem Solving GDES 403. This course develops approaches to solving communications problems of broad scope and increasingly practical application. Students work within technical and time constraints while developing clear and concise thought patterns. The course assumes a high level of formal competence and places special emphasis on the development of unified visual and conceptual relationships across various formats and scale. Both traditional and computer technologies are used within a thorough research process. Students should have expertise in Adobe InDesign, Adobe Illustrator, Adobe Photoshop, Macromedia Director, Macromedia Flash, and Macromedia Dreamweaver. Formerly GD 412B

- Liberal Arts Electives Credits: 15 cr

LAAH 111 - Art History Survey I

A survey of Western visual arts and architecture from the earliest extant examples, cave painting and sculpture from Austrian and southern Europe, to the arts of the Renaissance in Europe in the fourteenth-fifteenth centuries. Students will be asked to visit and do research on the art in local museums and galleries in order to gain a foundation for the work from their textbook, and asked to place, evaluate, and comprehend the history of the world in which many of them make their art. Formerly HU 140A

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 112 - Art History Survey II

Following the first half of the Survey of Western Art, this course will consider Western visual arts and architecture from the Renaissance in Europe in the fourteenth-fifteenth centuries to the present. As in the first semester, students will be asked to visit and do research on the art in local museums and galleries, and consider this more modern world as it relates to their own art and thought. They will be tested regularly and expected to write short essays about the work they have studied firsthand. Formerly HU 140B

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 854 - History of Communication Design

A survey of two-dimensional design in the West, with particular attention to developments in the twentieth century. Formerly HU 254

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 Priority enrollment to Graphic Design majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 101 - First-Year Writing I

First part of a year-long writing, reading and research course that teaches the fundamental skills of the responsible student-scholar. Students practice the kinds of academic writing, textual analysis, and library and Internet research required of university students and curious learners of any age. The first term explores writing from literature, philosophy, and art.

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 102 - First-Year Writing II

Continuation of LACR 101. During this term an inquiry-based research paper is the focus. A similar curriculum is examined in the context of history, literature, theory, philosophy, and art from a chosen period.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 101 or LACR 009

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 210 - Texts & Contexts: Perspectives on the Humanities

Perspectives on the Humanities addresses significant works from the ancient world, the Renaissance, the Enlightenment and Romantic periods, and the present day. The course serves five functions: to help students develop their skills in critical reading and writing; to introduce study of traditionally defined periods in the history of culture; to introduce a thematic approach to Humanities topics; to examine key primary texts from various periods and consider them alongside comparable art works; to explore the possibility that conventional ideas of period studies are open to challenge and reinterpretation.

Prerequisites & Notes

LAPI 8XX - Liberal Arts Period Interpretation - Pre-20th Century

Period Interpretations are an array of interdisciplinary courses that explore the process by which we understand cultural areas. Students consider both conventional and innovative interpretations of cultural history. All students are required to take two Period Interpretation courses, one 20th Century, and one pre-20th Century. Most students will take PI courses in the junior and/or senior years.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 and LACR 210

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPI 9XX - Liberal Arts Period Interpretation - 20th Century

Period Interpretations are an array of interdisciplinary courses that explore the process by which we understand cultural areas. Students consider both conventional and innovative interpretations of cultural history. All students are required to take two Period Interpretation courses, one 20th Century, and one pre-20th Century. Most students will take PI course in the junior and/or senior years.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR*102 and LACR*210

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Note:

Electives must include nine studio credits taken outside the Graphic Design offerings.

History of Visual Arts Minor

Requirements of the Minor

The minor in the History of Visual Arts is comprised of fifteen credits or five courses in visual Art History taken within the Liberal Arts Division beyond the required two semester Survey of Western Art. (These five courses do not include the Discipline History courses required by the Departments of their Studio Majors.) Students in the minor will select five courses from the following time periods or subject matters:

1. Ancient or Medieval Art
2. Renaissance or Baroque Art
3. 19th Century, 20th Century or Contemporary Art
4. Non-western Art

5. one further course in one of the above areas that has captured the student's interest. In this final course a written and oral presentation resulting from research and serious consideration of a topic approved by his or her minor advisor is required.

This final course, following consultation, may take the form of a guided independent study arranged by the student's advisor in a gallery or museum setting. In such a case, the written and oral presentations will take the form of documentation and evaluation of the student's experience as well as the regularly scheduled work assigned by the advisor.

Before entry into the History of Visual Arts minor, students will be asked to present a statement of intent, which will define their areas of interest in the field and a projected focus of their final paper/project. In order to complete the work for the minor, students will use nine of their free elective credits and six of their Liberal Arts elective credits. Normally, they will complete the minor, the studio major, and the Liberal Arts curriculum in four years. They may withdraw from the program without penalty at any time, using the credits they have taken in the minor as Liberal Arts elective credits or as free elective credits.

LAAH 811 - Ancient Art

A consideration of art and myth in Western Civilization as they are represented in their earliest forms beginning in ca. 3000 BCE in the cultures of the Ancient Middle East, Egypt, and the Aegean. It concludes with the arts of Classical Greece in the fifth-fourth centuries BCE in recognition of their seminal influence on the arts of the West.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 813 - Medieval Art

This course examines the sculpture, architecture, painting and decorative arts of Europe from the early Christian period in the third century C.E. to the proto-Renaissance in Italy in the fourteenth century. The course focuses on the emergence and flowering of a European mystical Christian vision as distinct from the earlier monumental classical vision Greece and Rome.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 831 - American Art Since 1945

In 1945, World War II ended and the focus of modern art shifted from Paris to New York City. The course begins with Abstract Expressionism; studies other major American styles, such as pop art and minimalism; and concludes with post-modernist development such as performance and decoration by artists. Graduate students may register for this course under GRLA 631. Formerly HU 448A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Renaissance and Baroque Art

Select one of the following:

LAAH 815 - Art in Renaissance Europe

The painting, sculpture, architecture, and decorative arts of the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries in the major artistic centers of Northern Europe and in Italy are studied. The course compares and contrasts the works of painters such as Jan Van Eyck and Masaccio; and sculptors such as Claus Sluter and Donatello, who enriched both the habitations and churches of their secular and religious patrons and the proud and expanding mercantile cities in which they lived. Formerly HU 242

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 817 - Baroque Art

This course studies the work of the major European painters and sculptors of the seventeenth century; Bernini, Rubens, Velasquez, Rembrandt, Poussin and Vermeer. More specialized artists - painters of landscape, still life genre, and the portrait - will also be considered.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 970 - Major Artists

The course concentrates on a single artist or a group of related artists. Among the artists who have come under this intense investigation have been Donatello, Michelangelo, Rembrandt, and Picasso. The course has been designed to give students an in-depth knowledge of one artist's life and art or the artists of a single school. Formerly HU 456

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 Repeatable for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 973 - Women Artists

A chronological survey of professional female painters and sculptors active in Western Europe and the United States, from the sixteenth century to the present. The role played by women artists in earlier ages, other nations, and different media is also examined. Three written assignments. Formerly HU 354

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

19th and 20th Century or Contemporary Art

Select one of the following:

LAAH 970 - Major Artists

The course concentrates on a single artist or a group of related artists. Among the artists who have come under this intense investigation have been Donatello, Michelangelo, Rembrandt, and Picasso. The course has been designed to give students an in-depth knowledge of one artist's life and art or the artists of a single school. Formerly HU 456

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 Repeatable for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 819 - 19th Century Art

An investigation of change and diversity as represented by the major painters, sculptors and architects of Europe and America in this emerging Modernist century. Style categories under consideration include Neo-classicism, Romanticism, Realism, Impressionism and Post-Impressionism.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 821 - American Art to 1945

A survey of American art, architecture, and design, emphasizing the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries. The material covered is divided into a series of sections or themes and is considered in relation to tradition. Each section or theme is studied through the work of the major artists who best represent it. Formerly HU 348

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 830 - Modern Art

At the beginning of the twentieth century, artists responded to new technological forces and the pressures of mass culture in styles such as cubism, constructivism, and surrealism – styles that are still being explored by our contemporaries. The course surveys the period 1880-1980, emphasizing the continuity of the modern artist's situation and role. Formerly HU 357

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 831 - American Art Since 1945

In 1945, World War II ended and the focus of modern art shifted from Paris to New York City. The course begins with Abstract Expressionism; studies other major American styles, such as pop art and minimalism; and concludes with post-modernist development such as performance and decoration by artists. Graduate students may register for this course under GRLA 631. Formerly HU 448A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 832 - European Art Since 1945

Art since World War II has been dominated by the New York market and by the issue of abstraction; in Europe, however, artists continued to use the human figure as a vehicle for social and ethical concerns, and, more recently, their engagement has become a model for younger artists in both Europe and America. The course will look at crafts and book arts as well as fine arts; it will also make use of plays and films. Formerly HU 448B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 931 - History and Aesthetics of 20th Century Performance Art

This course traces the evolution of Performance Art including its roots in Futurism, Constructivism, the Bauhaus, Dada, Surrealism, Fluxus movement, parallel movements in Japanese Butoh dance, European Figuren theater, developments of media in performance, autobiographical performance, and spectacle. Video slides are shown to portray the visual impact of the genre. Formerly HU 256

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 933 - Modern Architecture

The course investigates modern architecture, its theoretical premises, and the social context that generated it. Students will also inquire into modern architecture's legacy: postmodern architecture. Formerly HU 345

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 935 - Dada and Surrealism

The history of the post-World War I antirational movements Dada and Surrealism. Since these were literary and political as well as artistic movements, attention is given to texts by such authors as Artaud, Breton, Freud, Jarry, Rimbaud, and Tzara, as well as to works of art. Formerly HU 355

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

LAAH 861 - Arts of China

This course covers ceramics, sculpture, painting, and other arts of China from the Neolithic through the last Chinese dynasty, that is from roughly 10,000 BCE to 1911. (If time permits some comments may be made about twentieth century Chinese art.) A brief introduction to the historical and social background of each period will be presented as the outstanding arts and art styles of each period are examined. Particular attention will be paid to what, if any, uniquely Chinese characteristics are evident in the arts of China. Art recovered from major archaeological discoveries in China including the "terra cotta" warriors found near the tomb of China's first emperor will be introduced and reviewed. Important masterworks of Chinese art in all media will also be analyzed and discussed. The influence of religion on Chinese art, particularly Buddhism, will be addressed, and we will also look at Chinese painting in some detail, especially at how figure painting came to be eclipsed by landscape painting. One quiz, mid-term and final examinations and one short paper. Formerly HU 342

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 862 - Arts of Africa

Artistic, religious, sociological, and geographic aspects of societies in sub-Saharan Africa are studied in order to establish continuity as well as distinction between their art forms. Black American folk art, an extension and transformation of African art, is analyzed. Formerly HU 347

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 863 - Arts of India

Painting, sculpture, and architecture from the Indus Valley civilization of the second millennium B.C.E. through the different periods of the Buddhist, Hindu, and Islamic dominance to the Rajput painting of the eighteenth century C.E. The different art styles are related to their historical, religious, and social background. Formerly HU 450

Illustration - Bachelor of Fine Arts

Program Total Credits: 123

In order to prepare for a career in this competitive field, The University of the Arts Illustration student develops skills that encompass both traditional and experimental media: from drawing and painting to photography, graphic design, three-dimensional processes, and emerging opportunities in digital image-making. Students may concentrate on a traditional, digital, or design-oriented illustration curriculum. These skills are nurtured within a stimulating cultural climate provided by the resources of the outstanding faculty, nationally recognized curriculum, visiting artists, a gallery exhibition program, the University, and the city at large. Each student progresses from general competencies to a personal viewpoint, clarified career goals, a professional attitude, and a finished portfolio.

Fall Credits: 15

- Liberal Arts Credits: 3 cr

ILUS 201 - Pictorial Foundation

Introduction to drawing and painting skills as they relate to illustration. Objective visual perception, clarity in drawing, and technical facility are stressed. Students are exposed to visual communications, strategies, and design concepts through exposure to art history and the field of contemporary illustration. Formerly IL 200A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: FNDP 111, FNDP 121

Priority enrollment to Illustration majors and Figurative Illustration minors.

ILUS 211 - Figure Anatomy

Focus on the investigation and application of line, plane, mass, light and shade, shadow, perspective, anatomy, and proportion as they relate to figure drawing. Weekly sessions include a lecture, demonstrations from the skeleton, and drawing from life. Formerly IL 202A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FNDP 111

Priority enrollment to Illustration majors and Figurative Illustration minors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

ILUS 220 - Typography

Beginning studies in the form, use, nomenclature, and history of typography. Individual letters, word formations, text arrangements, and the application of type to simple communication exercises. Use of Macintosh computer for generating type and industry-accepted software is used. Formerly IL 204

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: FNDP 111, FNDP 121

Priority enrollment to Illustration majors.

LACR 210 - Texts & Contexts: Perspectives on the Humanities

Perspectives on the Humanities addresses significant works from the ancient world, the Renaissance, the Enlightenment and Romantic periods, and the present day. The course serves five functions: to help students develop their skills in critical reading and writing; to introduce study of traditionally defined periods in the history of culture; to introduce a thematic approach to Humanities topics; to examine key primary texts from various periods and consider them alongside comparable art works; to explore the possibility that conventional ideas of period studies are open to challenge and reinterpretation.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 22X - Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT)

The Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT) serves as a foundation for future studies in the natural and social sciences, in mathematics, and for life-long learning. Scholarship in these scientific disciplines has influenced our culture in significant ways — both directly as a result of ongoing research and indirectly as new scientific ideas and theories are developed and applied within the context of important issues and concerns in the larger society.

Prerequisites & Notes

For all SIFT courses, student must have first matriculated at UArts after Fall 2005. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam. Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

This is a description of the SIFT course category. Any course numbered LACR 22- will meet this requirement. For example:

- LACR 221 SIFT: Problem Solving

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Spring Credits: 15

- Liberal Arts Credits: 3 cr

ILUS 202 - Pictorial Foundation

Introduction to drawing and painting skills as they relate to illustration. Objective visual perception, clarity in drawing, and technical facility are stressed. Students are exposed to visual communications, strategies, and design concepts through exposure to art history and the field of contemporary illustration. Formerly IL 200B

Industrial Design - Bachelor of Science

Program Total Credits: 126

After initial coursework to introduce basic design, communication, and collaboration processes, including computer-aided design and model-making, Industrial Design students develop and apply theory, skill, and knowledge to functional design problems, many brought into the studio by industry. Visiting designers also bring knowledge of current design, manufacturing, and professional practices into studio and lecture courses, while visits to industry provide opportunities for direct observation and firsthand knowledge of design and manufacturing processes. Based on this foundation of skill, experience, and information, emphasis in the final semesters shifts to the responsibility for integration of the total design process by the individual student, who works directly with a client/sponsor on a thesis project prior to graduation. During the final semester, the instructional focus shifts to career planning, portfolio preparation, and the development of information-gathering and business communication skills to better prepare the student to enter the profession.

IDES 201 - Studio 1: Projects Studio

A conceptual and practical understanding of design and three-dimensional problem-solving processes. This studio is taught in a collaborative manner, with two instructors conducting projects individually or as a team in order to provide focused instruction and integrated experiences covering a wide range of subjects including the tools, processes, and languages of design and model making. Emphasis is on the development of three-dimensional model making skills, problem solving and creative thinking and their application to problems of design. Formerly ID 200A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: Completion of Foundation

Open to Industrial Design majors only.

IDES 221 - Studio 2: Techniques

This studio assists the student to acquire essential two-dimensional representational skills to support the process of design, including production and presentation. It is taught in a collaborative manner, with the instructors conducting projects individually or as a team in order to provide focused instruction and integrated experiences over a wide range of subjects, including the tools, processes, and languages of conceptual drawing, rendering, and detailing using both the computer and traditional media as means to assist design and control production. Principles of technical specification and machine control are introduced as are concepts such as rapid photocopying, computer-integrated manufacturing, parts reduction through integration, and other techniques for efficient production. LACR 22X - Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT)

The Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT) serves as a foundation for future studies in the natural and social sciences, in mathematics, and for life-long learning. Scholarship in these scientific disciplines has influenced our culture in significant ways — both directly as a result of ongoing research and indirectly as new scientific ideas and theories are developed and applied within the context of important issues and concerns in the larger society.

Prerequisites & Notes

For all SIFT courses, student must have first matriculated at UArts after Fall 2005. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam. Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

This is a description of the SIFT course category. Any course numbered LACR 22- will meet this requirement. For example:

- LACR 221 SIFT: Problem Solving

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Junior Year Credits: 33

Fall Credits: 18

- Electives Credits: 3 cr
- Liberal Arts Credits: 6 cr

IDES 301 - Studio 3: Projects Studio

Following a year of basic design process, methods, and vocabulary introduction, the Junior Studio sequence focuses on solving more advanced design process and project opportunities through applied integration with Human Factors, Design Semantics, and Design Communication skills. The first semester offers more advanced design projects exploring user-centered design and creative exploration of industrial materials usage. The second semester continues with a focus on collaboration with various community groups and/or industry-sponsored projects. Formerly ID 300A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: IDES 202, IDES 222, IDES 231 Corequisites: IDES 321, IDES 331, IDES 332

Open to Industrial Design majors only.

IDES 321 - Studio 4: Techniques

Assists the student in developing graphic communication skills using computational media and applying these skills to both two- and three-dimensional images and presentations. The student is taught to conceptualize, develop, detail, present, and communicate design ideas through graphic design, computer imaging, three-dimensional computer modeling, basic animation, and interactive design presentation. The first semester focuses on integrating graphic software and the development of printed presentations. The second semester focuses on the development of interactive digital presentations. Formerly ID 320A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: IDES 202, IDES 222, IDES 231 Corequisite: IDES 301
Open to Industrial Design majors only.

IDES 332 - Design Semantics Seminar

This seminar addresses design as a languaging process of social interaction. Semantic principles and design vocabulary are introduced through lectures, weekly readings, discussions, and exercises. Students work on individual as well as team-based projects to increase their competence in translating these ideas, concepts, and principles into design practices, applying replicable design methods towards proposing particular products whose meanings matter and whose use is dominated by facets of human understanding. Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

IDES 331 - Human Factors Seminar

The object of this research-intensive course is to develop an ability to apply technology effectively to meet human needs through the study of human engineering principles for the design of products and equipment. Human anatomy, anthropometrics and motion, and strength of body components are considered as are sensory systems, human perception, and sensitivities. Lectures are complemented by laboratory experiments designed to teach students methods of testing and evaluating their own product design concepts in human terms. Concepts of scientific writing and reporting are demonstrated through the documentation of coursework. Formerly ID 326

Fall Credits: 15

- Liberal Arts Credits: 6 cr

IDES 401 - Studio 5: Projects Studio

These studio courses focus on decisive and responsible positions in formulating new design directions. Building upon past learning, projects sharpen fundamental skills of sketching (2D & 3D), design drawing, computer modeling, prototyping and conceptual diagramming. Students are encouraged through critical discourse and research on historical and contemporary material of cultural shifts to formulate their own ideology. Project proposals forward questions such as social context, ergonomics, and ecological consequences. Students are expected to identify local stakeholders (industry, users, designers, etc.) and ask them to be topic advisors as appropriate. First semester projects are dedicated to three fast-paced, highly theoretical, predefined topics. The next semester is devoted to further development of one of these projects. This final semester-long project works toward project closure and pragmatic articulation, ready to be shown both inside and outside an academic context. Formerly ID 400A

IDES 421 - Studio 6: Professional Communication

Refines the students' written, verbal, and visual presentation skills and assists them in developing communication materials for their senior theses and industry-sponsored projects. Intensive group critique of individual presentations prepared outside of class. Students develop self-promotion, presentation, and correspondence materials utilizing service bureaus and contemporary technologies such as digital files, fax, and the World Wide Web to prepare and transmit this information. Formerly ID 420A

IDES 431 - Design Theory Seminar

In this industrial design seminar, students investigate design philosophies, issues, and pedagogy, from a historic as well as contemporary international design context. Students study various definitions of design, explore design theories and issues, and consider theoretical relationships with other applied arts. Formerly ID 490A

Prerequisites & Notes

LAAH 111 - Art History Survey I

A survey of Western visual arts and architecture from the earliest extant examples, cave painting and sculpture from Austrian and southern Europe, to the arts of the Renaissance in Europe in the fourteenth-fifteenth centuries. Students will be asked to visit and do research on the art in local museums and galleries in order to gain a foundation for the work from their textbook, and asked to place, evaluate, and comprehend the history of the world in which many of them make their art. Formerly HU 140A

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 112 - Art History Survey II

Following the first half of the Survey of Western Art, this course will consider Western visual arts and architecture from the Renaissance in Europe in the fourteenth-fifteenth centuries to the present. As in the first semester, students will be asked to visit and do research on the art in local museums and galleries, and consider this more modern world as it relates to their own art and thought. They will be tested regularly and expected to write short essays about the work they have studied firsthand. Formerly HU 140B

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 851 - History of Industrial Design

A survey of industrial design in the West, paying particular attention to developments in the twentieth century.
Formerly HU 251

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 Priority enrollment to Industrial Design majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 101 - First-Year Writing I

First part of a year-long writing, reading and research course that teaches the fundamental skills of the responsible student-scholar. Students practice the kinds of academic writing, textual analysis, and library and Internet research required of university students and curious learners of any age. The first term explores writing from literature, philosophy, and art.

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 102 - First-Year Writing II

Continuation of LACR 101. During this term an inquiry-based research paper is the focus. A similar curriculum is examined in the context of history, literature, theory, philosophy, and art from a chosen period.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 101 or LACR 009

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 210 - Texts & Contexts: Perspectives on the Humanities

Perspectives on the Humanities addresses significant works from the ancient world, the Renaissance, the Enlightenment and Romantic periods, and the present day. The course serves five functions: to help students develop their skills in critical reading and writing; to introduce study of traditionally defined periods in the history of culture; to introduce a thematic approach to Humanities topics; to examine key primary texts from various periods and consider them alongside comparable art works; to explore the possibility that conventional ideas of period studies are open to challenge and reinterpretation.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPI 8XX - Liberal Arts Period Interpretation - Pre-20th Century

Period Interpretations are an array of interdisciplinary courses that explore the process by which we understand cultural areas. Students consider both conventional and innovative interpretations of cultural history. All students are required to take two Period Interpretation courses, one 20th Century, and one pre-20th Century. Most students will take PI courses in the junior and/or senior years.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 and LACR 210

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPI 9XX - Liberal Arts Period Interpretation - 20th Century

Period Interpretations are an array of interdisciplinary courses that explore the process by which we understand cultural areas. Students consider both conventional and innovative interpretations of cultural history. All students are required to take two Period Interpretation courses, one 20th Century, and one pre-20th Century. Most students will take PI course in the junior and/or senior years.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR*102 and LACR*210

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Note:

Electives must include nine studio credits taken outside the Industrial Design offerings.

Recommended Electives:

While none of the following is required for graduation, they are recommended by the department:

CRCM 221 - Introduction to Molding & Casting

A course in modelmaking, moldmaking, and casting techniques using plaster and synthetic compounds. Emphasis is on developing proficiency in slip casting for use in the artist's studio and in industry for serial production. Formerly CR

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRCM 222 - Plaster Workshop

An introductory course in modelmaking, moldmaking, and casting techniques, using plaster and synthetic compounds. This course emphasizes the usefulness of these media to designers and artists. Formerly CR 252

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

EMDI 110 - Computer Concepts

A conceptual and hands-on course that introduces the student to the foundations of digital processes in the arts. Experiences in this course include basic spreadsheet usage, database search techniques, digital photography including RAW file processing, scanning, image processing, composting, and basic page layout techniques. The course includes an introduction to professional online services such as LexisNexis, as well as advanced search strategies using the Web. Software usage includes Microsoft Office suite, and the Adobe Creative Suite (Illustrator, Photoshop and InDesign). Students are given assignments in each of the software environments as well as supplemental weekly readings. No prior computer experience is required. Formerly EM 110

EMDI 210 - Digital Multimedia

The elements of digital multimedia production techniques address the integration and creation of digital media for websites and alternative delivery processes such as podcasting. This course involves hands-on production experience as well as perspective on developments in this rapidly growing field through the readings and lectures. Students create projects involving digital imagery, video and sound, and animation. The first half of the semester is dedicated to creating video pieces utilizing either digital video or animating still imagery. Creation of effective sound tracks will be an important part of this process. The second half of the semester is dedicated to creating a website and utilizing compressed digital video on the Web. Software to be utilized include Photo to Movie, iMovie, Amadeus Pro, Garageband, iDVD, and Dreamweaver. There is considerable emphasis on new utilizations of digital media such as podcasts and VODcasts (video on demand) and cell phone multimedia. Graduate students may register for this course under GREM 610. Formerly EM 210

IDES 101 - Freshman I.D.

This course introduces first-year students to the issues surrounding the profession and highlights its importance in informing culture and shaping the way we live. Students are exposed to the fundamental skills required to support the process of concept ideation, design development, and presentation of products and furniture. These fundamentals are introduced through in-class exercises, lectures by visiting professionals, and direct involvement in relevant activities within the Industrial Design Department itself. Formerly ID 113

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Foundation majors. Student must NOT have completed the second semester of their Sophomore year (45 credits).

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

IDES 371 - Architectonics

An elective course intended as a multidisciplinary forum for the investigation, appreciation, and design of architectural space, structures, and systems. Using in-class exercises as a laboratory for creative and collaborative exchange, students learn alternative design processes, design vocabulary, user-centered experience and design. This course develops concepts and analytical studies of objects/spaces through various 2D and 3D drawing/modeling techniques and culminates in an actual built/alterd environment. Graduate students may register for this course under GRID 624. Formerly ID 312

LAAH 974 - Topics in Design

A seminar in the history of design. Each semester the course is taught, a different aspect of design history is studied. Individual designers under consideration have been Wright, Le Corbusier, and Aalto; other topics have been particular design histories: crafts history, graphic design history, industrial design history; and particular styles of design: The Arts and Crafts movement, Art Nouveau, Bauhaus, de Stijl and Constructivism, Art Deco, and Post-Modernism. Formerly HU 452

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MAPH 281 - Portfolio Documentation

The use of photography to create a portfolio of artwork, exhibitions, and installations is necessary for artists in all visual media. Students learn how to photograph two- and three-dimensional artwork in a studio setting and on location. Instruction addresses a wide range of issues including: artificial and natural lighting, film-based and digital camera operation, image processing techniques, and output options. By participating in lectures, demonstrations, field trips and shooting assignments, students acquire the skills necessary to create a coherent visual portfolio of their work. Formerly PF 203

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FNDP 112 or FNDP 152

Not open to Photography majors. Not recommended for Foundation students. May be taken 3 times for credit.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

MMDI 425 - Special Projects in Multimedia

This seminar is designed to give students direct contact with their soon-to-be peers in the various multimedia industries. The multimedia industries that may be covered include but are not limited to: fine art, interface design, installation art, game design, and electronic music. Timely and relevant issues concerning the craft, thought, and professional expectations of a multimedia artist/designer are the content of this course. Topics related to the multimedia industries in general and the instructor's specific industry experience are discussed. Readings, discussion, and a practical presentation or project make up the body of this course. Formerly MM 472

Prerequisites & Notes

Students must have completed the second semester of their Sophomore year (60 credits). May be taken three times for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Industrial Design - Master of Industrial Design - Fall 2008

Program Total Credits: 60

Two-year, 60-Credit Curriculum

The two-year, 60-credit curriculum (for students holding a bachelor's degree in an art or design field or equivalent) consists of studio, methods, and seminar courses. The curriculum is project-based, which means that each semester, course content is integrated around studio-based projects.

Because design is a collaborative profession, most studio projects will be team-based. During the first and third semesters of study, first-year students will work with second-year students with an MID industry partner in a shared studio. Semester two is more individually oriented. The final semester of the two-year program is devoted to a master's thesis in which the candidate will work more independently with a group of internal faculty and/or outside professionals to develop a thesis project that must advance the candidate's chosen field of study.

Three-year, 78-Credit Curriculum

The three-year, 78-credit curriculum (for students from disciplines other than art and design) provides a prerequisite year of basic design skills, concepts, and competencies with six credits of graduate coursework that will prepare students to enter the two-year MID program.

Like the program itself, the faculty represents a wide range of approaches to the practice of design. This means that students have access to currently practicing design professionals with backgrounds in fields ranging from architecture, graphic design, cultural anthropology, and psychology, to industrial systems, and environmental design. The Industrial Design Department thus offers a unique core faculty group who share a common philosophy and commitment to the design process.

Year One Credits: 30

GRAD 650 - University Seminar: Structure and Metaphor

An interdisciplinary seminar in which students from the several graduate programs examine theoretical issues of structure and metaphor in relation to art and design. Topics include cognition and perception, meaning and representation, and systems of organization and expression. (May be taken to satisfy Aesthetics and Art Criticism co-requisites for the MAT program.) Formerly GR 691

Prerequisites & Notes

Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

GRID 603 - Design Studio I

The major multidisciplinary studio where design ideology, process, development, and production are emphasized through a collaboration with one of MID's strategic industry partners. Project teams will combine first and second year students. First year students will be introduced to the MID design culture and second year students will have the opportunity to further improve their abilities to apply the design process while acting in a leadership role. Issues discussed and studied are: learning and design process informed by applied design research, communicated through clearly designed information, and driven by collaborative design development. The design process considers above issued in the formulation of a design program; conceptual abstract studies; physical and material investigations; simulated and physical representation; and the application of manufacturing. Specific design skill sets covered in GRID 604 Design Methods I, complement this studio's projects.

Prerequisites & Notes

Corequisite: GRID 604

Open to Masters of Industrial Design majors only.

Credits: 6 cr, 12 hrs.

GRID 604 - Design Methods I

As a complement to the studio course (GRID 603), this course helps to develop the skills and methods required to realize successful design projects. Put into practice, these "tools" enable and support a design process that is increasingly shared with other disciplines, facilitates collective learning, and produces actionable strategies for change. Special emphasis is placed on participant field research, system mapping, the development of design-orientated scenarios and the ability to communicate design thinking and concepts in a clear and compelling way. Content of the coursework comes directly from the studio projects.

Prerequisites & Notes

Corequisite: GRID 603

Open to Masters of Industrial Design majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs.

GRID 611 - Design Seminar: Concepts and Contexts

A seminar devoted to examining the shift in cultural, technological, material, and professional landscapes that a graduate design candidate must navigate. Through readings, presentations, and discussions, students explore how these evolved contexts are changing the nature of design practice and thinking. Special emphasis is placed on developing key concepts and ideas that inform the work that the students undertake throughout their program. The seminar works in parallel with the studio course; topics and themes covered in the seminar are germane to the studio projects. Formerly ID 600

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Masters of Industrial Design majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Spring Credits: 15

- Elective Credits: 3 cr

GRAD 651 - University Seminar: Art and Society

An interdisciplinary seminar in which students from all graduate programs examine theoretical issues relating to the place of art and design in society. Topics include the social role of the artist/designer, public policy and the arts, issues of post-modernism, and aesthetic and ethical implications of emerging arts communication technologies. (May be taken to satisfy Sociology/Anthropology corequisite for the MAT program.) Formerly GR 692

Prerequisites & Notes

Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

GRID 605 - Design Studio II

This design studio offers the opportunity to launch individual or group design projects that are not connected to the on-going industry partnerships. Projects are framed through critical issues and connected to the on-going industry partnerships. Projects are framed through critical issues and take into consideration personal interests of the individual student. The primary goal of this course is to increasingly strengthen the student's ability to engage and advance critical issues through demonstrating and testing design concepts that can lead to products, systems and/or services. Students will be able to gauge their personal strengths and weaknesses, and orient/position themselves for the subsequent summer internship.

Prerequisites & Notes

Corequisite: GRID 606 Open to Masters of Industrial Design majors only.

Credits: 6 cr, 12 hrs.

GRID 606 - Design Methods II

As a complement to the Design Studio II course (GRID 605), this course builds on the introduction to the design process, its tools and methods, to further develop the skills and methods in GRID 604 in the previous semester. The course further develops field research methods and principles (e.g. Universal Design, Human Factors) and refines mapping, modeling and presentation techniques. This course also supports students' portfolio development and self-promotion in order to secure an appropriate internship for the summer.

Prerequisites & Notes

Corequisite: GRID 605

Open to Masters of Industrial Design majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs.

Year Two Credits: 30

Fall Credits: 18

- Elective Credits: 3 cr

GRID 703 - Advanced Design Studio

The major multidisciplinary studio where design ideology, process, development, and production are emphasized through a collaboration with one of MID's strategic industry partners. Project teams will combine first and second year students. First year students will be introduced to the MID design culture and second year students will have the opportunity to further improve their abilities to apply the design process while acting in a leadership role. Issues discussed and studied are: learning and design process informed by applied design research, communicated through clearly designed information, and driven by collaborative design development. The design process considers above issues in the formulation of a design program; conceptional abstract studies; physical and material investigations; simulated and physical representation; and the application of manufacturing. Specific design skill sets covered in GRID 604, Design Methods I, complement this studio's projects.

Prerequisites & Notes

Corequisite: GRID 704

Open to Masters of Industrial Design majors only.

Credits: 6 cr

GRID 704 - Advanced Design Methods

Building on the design methods classes offered during the first year, the laboratory offers a series of tutorials in order to round out students' particular skill sets. This course will further support professional networking through development of student's portfolio websites and other outreach projects.

Prerequisites & Notes

Corequisite: GRID 703

Open to Masters of Industrial Design majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

GRID 720 - ID Seminar: Professional Development

A professional seminar that addresses the individual career interests of each degree candidate especially as they relate to the student's thesis project. The product of this course is the formulation of a career plan and objectives tailored to each candidate, and the further development of a portfolio, resume, and other documentation targeted toward the practical application of the candidate's knowledge and skill.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: GRID 703

Open to Masters of Industrial Design majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs.

GRID 795 - Design Internship

A supervised practicum in a cooperating business, consultancy or design firm. The internship represents full-time employment under the mentorship of a professional; it provides practical on-site experience in which the intern is integrated into the professional staff, assuming professional-level responsibilities and experience. A University Professor also observes, advises, and assesses the student during the course of the internship.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Spring Credits: 12

GRID 712 - Design Entrepreneurship

This course will develop the tools that take ideas from inception to business plan, to put their ideas into idioms that make sense to industry, and to create the viable means for connecting new product and service development to sustainable outcomes. This course will explore new business incubation; micro business practices, emerging models of design consultancies, and, practices of innovation in a global economy.

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Master of Industrial Design Majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs.

GRID 721 - Masters Thesis Project

A tutorial providing the opportunity for individual candidates to shape and present the outcome of their programs of study in a manner that directly reflects their career objectives. Projects may be carried out independently, under industry sponsorship, or as part of a research project, based on a plan produced and approved through the thesis director.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: GRID 703

Open to Masters of Industrial Design majors only.

Credits: 6 cr, 12 hrs

GRID 722 - Masters Thesis Documentation

A tutorial providing the opportunity for individual candidates to develop and present their thesis in a manner that directly reflects their career objectives. The thesis project and document must exhibit an in-depth exploration of an approved topic, which addresses an area of importance to the Industrial Design field and contributes to the body of knowledge pertaining to that area. It may be carried out under industry sponsorship, as a part of a research project, or be independently based.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: GRID 703

Open to Masters of Industrial Design majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Note:

In addition to required courses, students take elective courses that enable them to pursue their specific interest, as well as overcome deficiencies in their design preparation. In certain cases, particularly for applicants from non-design undergraduate programs, it is necessary to complete specific courses in industrial design. These courses are selected from appropriate undergraduate courses and may not apply towards degree requirements.

Information Architecture Minor

The minor in Information Architecture shows students how designed information creates meaning. Students develop an understanding of user workflow, information design, and interactivity. They learn to create easy-to-use interfaces and information spaces. The program has been created for students interested in developing database driven Web-based solutions, as well as other vehicles whose purpose is to deliver information clearly and efficiently. Students also have the opportunity to develop content management systems for the Web, a highly marketable and in demand skill. Majors in Multimedia or Communication may not declare a minor in Information Architecture.

Requirements for the Minor

MMDI 111 - Introduction to Interface Design

The software interface represents the focal point of user interaction with the various modes of multimedia communication. Readings by interface theorists inform discussions on the evolution of the software interface, conceptual models, prototypes, interaction design, deliverables, and basic concepts of human-computer interaction. Avenues for pursuing interactive media design in entertainment, publishing, and education are also addressed. Current technologies, including the trend from soft to hard interfaces are studied, in terms of their potential short- and long-term influence on communication and multimedia. Basic methods for rapid prototyping and testing are considered. Formerly MM 121

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MMDI 131 - Introduction to Interactive Programming

This course is an introductory programming class, appropriate for students with no prior programming experience. Traditionally, introductory programming teaches algorithmic problem-solving, where a sequence of instructions describe the steps necessary to achieve a desired result. In this course, students are trained to go beyond this sequential thinking – to think concurrently and modularly. By its end, students are empowered to write and read code for event-driven graphical user interfaces, client server chat programs, networked video games, and user interfaces. Formerly MM 101

MMDI 150 - Information Concepts

Emphasis is on the importance of organizing and communicating information in a digital world. Students acquire a basic understanding of how computers operate and communicate with each other, as well as an understanding of the evolution of the personal computer and the industries that have spun out of this technology. Student assignments include readings, database projects, and written analyses. Formerly MM 130

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MMDI 202 - Web Design Studio

The World Wide Web is a medium where anyone with an internet connection can view and interact with websites. This course focuses on the creation of such sites through concepts and practical application of interactivity. Comprised of both lecture and practical exercises. Individual creativity is stressed as well as understanding and use of interactive devices in the communication of ideas. Both collaborative and individual exercises are assigned. Formerly MM 221

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 111

May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Select one of the following two:

MMDI 231 - Dynamic Web Development

Creating dynamic web solutions is an essential aspect of web development today. In this course, students build upon existing concepts learned in Intro to Interactive Programming. The focus is on client and server side programming and relational database design for the web. Examples of dynamic web applications include context management systems, custom audio and video players, and e-commerce solutions.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 131

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs
or

MMDI 241 - Interactive Narrative

Introduces students to new ways of thinking about interactivity and storytelling. Students analyze how the interactive structure of an experience creates narrative. Short readings discussed in class range from Surrealist Dada and Fluxus language games to the experimental literature of Joyce and Burroughs to the literary theory of Barthes and Eco. Students examine contemporary examples of interactive media such as avatars, virtual realities, role-playing games and Internet sites. Formerly MM 223

Jazz Dance - Bachelor of Fine Arts

Program Total Credits: 128

The Bachelor of Fine Arts (BFA) degree in Dance is a program designed for those students who wish to prepare for professional careers in dance performance and/or choreography. The BFA in Dance program is normally completed in four years of full-time study with a total requirement of 128 credits. The Jazz/Theater Dance major emphasizes acting, music, and voice in addition to the technical study of jazz dance, and prepares students for dance careers related to theatrical performance.

Junior Year Credits: 34

Fall Credits: 18

- DAPF XXX - Dance for Non-Majors Credits: 2 cr
- Elective Credits: 1 cr
- Liberal Arts Credits: 6 cr

DAPF 321 - Jazz Dance V

Continued development of technique and various styles as introduced in DACR 221 & 222. The course progresses from basic to complex rhythm and isolation exercises and movement combinations stressing subtlety of dynamics, as well as preparation of repertory. Formerly DA 311A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: DACR 222

Open to Jazz Dance and Dance Education majors only.

Credits: 4 cr, 7.5 hrs

DAPF 201 - Tap III

The study and practice of the tap style of dance from simple rhythmic footwork to more complex multirhythms and repertory. Required of students majoring in Jazz/Theater Dance. Formerly DA 323A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: DACR 102

Priority enrollment to Jazz Dance majors. Open to majors in the School of Dance only. Repeatable for credit.

Credits: 1 cr, 1.5 hrs

DACR 361 - Dance Composition: Duets

Continuation of DACR 261. Problem-solving and analysis of materials through individual projects. Special emphasis on choreography for duets. Formerly DA 317A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: DACR 261

Open to majors in the School of Dance only.

Credits: 2 cr, 3 hrs

Select one course from the following two:

DAPF 375 - Voice I

Vocal training for the non-Voice major. Designed to develop the vocal instrument to meet both the musical and non-musical vocal requirements of the theater. Formerly DA 345A

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to majors in the School of Dance only. Repeatable for credit.

Credits: 1 cr, 1.5 hrs

THST 181 - Acting for Non-Majors I

This course introduces the non-actor to improvisation, character development, and the basic idea of action and objective in performance. The first four weeks acclimate the new actor to being expressive in a group using body and voice through improvisation, theater games, and movement; breathing and relaxation techniques are also taught. The student is introduced to script analysis and asked to write and develop monologues to create dramatic characters for performance. Grading is based on class participation and progress with the work on monologues. Formerly TH 100A

LACR 101 - First-Year Writing I

First part of a year-long writing, reading and research course that teaches the fundamental skills of the responsible student-scholar. Students practice the kinds of academic writing, textual analysis, and library and Internet research required of university students and curious learners of any age. The first term explores writing from literature, philosophy, and art.

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 102 - First-Year Writing II

Continuation of LACR 101. During this term an inquiry-based research paper is the focus. A similar curriculum is examined in the context of history, literature, theory, philosophy, and art from a chosen period.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 101 or LACR 009

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 210 - Texts & Contexts: Perspectives on the Humanities

Perspectives on the Humanities addresses significant works from the ancient world, the Renaissance, the Enlightenment and Romantic periods, and the present day. The course serves five functions: to help students develop their skills in critical reading and writing; to introduce study of traditionally defined periods in the history of culture; to introduce a thematic approach to Humanities topics; to examine key primary texts from various periods and consider them alongside comparable art works; to explore the possibility that conventional ideas of period studies are open to challenge and reinterpretation.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 22X - Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT)

The Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT) serves as a foundation for future studies in the natural and social sciences, in mathematics, and for life-long learning. Scholarship in these scientific disciplines has influenced our culture in significant ways — both directly as a result of ongoing research and indirectly as new scientific ideas and theories are developed and applied within the context of important issues and concerns in the larger society.

Prerequisites & Notes

For all SIFT courses, student must have first matriculated at UArts after Fall 2005. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam. Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

This is a description of the SIFT course category. Any course numbered LACR 22- will meet this requirement. For example:

- LACR 221 SIFT: Problem Solving

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPI 8XX - Liberal Arts Period Interpretation - Pre-20th Century

Period Interpretations are an array of interdisciplinary courses that explore the process by which we understand cultural areas. Students consider both conventional and innovative interpretations of cultural history. All students are required to take two Period Interpretation courses, one 20th Century, and one pre-20th Century. Most students will take PI courses in the junior and/or senior years.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 and LACR 210

Jazz Studies - Master of Music

Program Total Credits: 36

The Master of Music in Jazz Studies degree has its roots in three decades of University of the Arts leadership in the field of jazz education, carefully balancing aesthetic goals and a pragmatic approach to vocational responsibility in the context of this American music idiom. Open to a small and highly advanced group of students who have an undergraduate degree in jazz studies or an undergraduate degree in music with significant experience in jazz and contemporary music, or the equivalent thereof, the program—while providing a solid foundation in contemporary music—encourages a primary focus on individual career goals.

Curriculum

Among the one-year, 32-credit program's unique curricular components are advanced private instruction in the major area to develop professional-level artistry and skills; hands-on internships; ensemble performances; arranging, composing, transcribing and analyzing jazz and contemporary music; study of MIDI and music technology; music journalism, jazz pedagogy, and a final thesis/project/recital that integrates in-depth research on a topic of special relevance with personal musical growth, culminating in a public performance. Graduate Applied Studies are the core of the Master of Music in Jazz Studies. Additionally, applied study at the graduate level includes a pedagogy component. Teaching is a facet of almost every performer's and composer's career; coursework in the major applied area acknowledges this importance.

Students, in addition to completion of the requisite 32 credits, must take or have taken two corequisite courses of two credit hours each: Recording and The Business of Music.

The Master of Music in Jazz Studies is a 32-credit program designed for students who have completed a bachelor's degree in jazz performance or other applied music with significant experience in jazz/contemporary music studies. The MM can be completed in a one-year, two-semester schedule, provided that all prerequisite skills are satisfied prior to beginning the program. The entrance requirements include advanced technical and stylistic facility on the major instrument or voice, skills in improvisation, jazz theory and ear training, and jazz history. The MM program is intended to dramatically increase the student's performance abilities, as well as provide a diversity of other professional-level competencies, preparing the student for a career as a music professional or college-level teacher.

MM in Jazz Studies Credits: 36

MUCP 631 - Graduate Arranging

Emphasis is on effective writing in various contemporary styles and building on basic arranging skills, with a focus on specific arranging techniques such as writing for the rhythm section, horn voicings, sax solo, and contemporary fusion styles. Arrangements are studied in score format and aurally, and then techniques are applied to student projects. Formerly MU 622

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Masters in Jazz Studies only.

Credits: 2 cr, 2 hrs

MUCP 641 - Advanced Transcription and Analysis

Accurate notation, transcription fluency, and recognition of theoretical concepts are developed through a regime of continual and rigorous assignments, all designed to further advance skills in ear training and theory. Projects begin with single line melodies in varying instrumental registers and progress through advanced rhythms and chord progressions to complete arrangements and compositions. Sources include bass lines, synthesizer sequences, pop recordings, jazz improvisations, and drum solos. Students learn techniques and performance practices of varying styles and periods, and then perform transcribed parts and solos. Formerly MU 617

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Masters in Jazz Studies only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MULS 641 - Applied Major Instruction – Graduate

Private instruction in instrumental, vocal, and composition areas. Formerly MU 592A

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to graduate students in the School of Music only.

Credits: 3 cr, 1 hr

MUPF 660 - Graduate Ensemble

Formerly MU 775

Prerequisites & Notes

Repeatable for credit. Only open to students in the School of Music.

Credits: 1 cr, 1.5 hrs

MUSC 631 - Graduate Improvisation I

Improvisational styles, techniques, and devices are studied. Intervallic improvisation, and advanced pentatonic concepts are addressed, as well as study of the pioneers of jazz improvisation through recorded solos that mark turning points of improvisation. Topics include melody embellishment, improvising in phrases, silence, time-feel, pacing, syncopation, chord tone soloing, dynamics, non-harmonic triads, contracting and expanding chord duration, tri-tonic cells, sustaining peak points, and unaccompanied soloing. Formerly MU 625

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Masters in Jazz Studies only.

Credits: 2 cr, 2 hrs

MUSC 661 - MIDI and Music Technology

Hands-on exploration of music technology applicable to performer, composer, and arranger with focus on fluency with MIDI sequencing including MAX to create interactive live performance situations. Students work with modular digital multi-tracks and edit and create original sounds for synthesizers and samplers. Hard disk recording using Pro-Tools III and Digital Performer, SMPTE and synchronization in the studio, and composition and sound design for film, video, and theater are also explored. Training in notation software is an integral and essential aspect of the course: after the first month, assignments for all graduate courses require use of professional notation software. Formerly MU 615

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Masters in Jazz Studies only.

Credits: 2 cr, 2 hrs

MUSC 681 - Graduate Professional Internship

Provides hands-on experience in a variety of professional settings — rehearsals, performances, meetings with producers, and in-studio projects such as recording, arranging, or project coordination. The program is developed by the graduate advisor and major teacher in conjunction with the student to select topics and experiences most relevant and beneficial to that particular student's education. Formerly MU 620

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Masters in Jazz Studies only.

Credits: 1 cr, 1 hr

MUSC 684 - Graduate Forum

A graduate seminar in which various aspects of study, including musical development and accomplishment, are correlated with critical, aesthetic, and historical components. Additionally, artistic and professional issues are researched and discussed. Various approaches to the preparation of the graduate recital are explored and progress toward a successful performance is closely monitored. Topic selection, research, and writing of the graduate thesis are evaluated through weekly critiques. Formerly MU 627

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Masters in Jazz Studies only.

Credits: 1 cr, 1 hr

Spring Credits: 16

MUCP 624 - Composing for Performers

A dual emphasis — on acoustic instruments and on technologies — exposes students to a variety of professional composing situations, including large jazz ensembles, fusion, acoustic/electronic hybrids, films, videos, musical theater, and jingle writing. Techniques using MIDI, MAX, and electronic composition are explored. Faculty and guest composers present workshops on their own approaches. Students learn to use the recording studio as an instrument and use notation software for score and part preparation. Student works are rehearsed and performed by graduate and advanced undergraduate ensembles. Formerly MU 624

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Masters in Jazz Studies only.

Credits: 2 cr, 2 hrs

MULS 642 - Applied Major Instruction – Graduate

Private instruction in instrumental, vocal, and composition areas. Formerly MU 592B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MULS 641

Open to graduate students in the School of Music only.

Credits: 3 cr, 1 hr

MUPF 660 - Graduate Ensemble

Formerly MU 775

Prerequisites & Notes

Repeatable for credit. Only open to students in the School of Music.

Credits: 1 cr, 1.5 hrs

MUPF 680 - Graduate Project/Recital

Independent research project designed to enable the student to work in-depth on a topic of special relevance applicable to performance. The graduate project is evaluated in two parts: as a thesis, with the expectation that the student has completed extensive research in a comprehensive manner, and as a recital, in which the student incorporates aspects of the project and demonstrates personal instrumental growth. Students give presentations throughout the semester in seminar setting, showing their progress in research and its application to performance. Formerly MU 603

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Masters in Jazz Studies only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MUSC 632 - Graduate Improvisation II

Improvisational styles, techniques, and devices are studied. Intervallic improvisation, and advanced pentatonic concepts are addressed, as well as study of the pioneers of jazz improvisation through recorded solos that mark turning points of improvisation. Topics include melody embellishment, improvising in phrases, silence, time-feel, pacing, syncopation, chord tone soloing, dynamics, non-harmonic triads, contracting and expanding chord duration, tri-tonic cells, sustaining peak points, and unaccompanied soloing. Formerly MU 626

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MUSC 631

Open to Masters in Jazz Studies only.

Credits: 2 cr, 2 hrs

MUSC 651 - Music Journalism

Practical, hands-on study of writing about music, musicians, and the music industry for consumer, trade and academic periodicals; books, videos, DVDs and other multimedia projects. Students learn library and Internet research techniques, how to acquire and foster industry contacts, interview methodology, how to best utilize archival resources, the writing "marketplace" and the "business of writing," formulation of a marketable idea, magazine writing and editing, the periodical and book submission process, professional guidelines and insights for composing video/ DVD narration and voice-overs. Formerly MU 515

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to majors in the School of Music only. Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs.

Credits: 1 cr, 1 hr

MUSC 682 - Graduate Professional Internship

Provides hands-on experience in a variety of professional settings — rehearsals, performances, meetings with producers, and in-studio projects such as recording, arranging, or project coordination. The program is developed by the graduate advisor and major teacher in conjunction with the student to select topics and experiences most relevant and beneficial to that particular student's education. Formerly MU 621

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Masters in Jazz Studies only.

Credits: 1 cr, 1 hr

MUSC 683 - Jazz Pedagogy

This course is designed to prepare students to teach all aspects of a jazz curriculum including arranging, theory, history, improvisation and managing various ensembles, including rehearsal techniques and such. A review of teaching strategies, methods, and available materials is conducted. Basic Computer technologies for the creation of teaching materials are included. Each student rehearses with a UArts ensemble. Outreach activities with area public schools are developed. Formerly MU 516

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to majors in the School of Music only. Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs.

Credits: 1 cr, 1 hr

Jazz Studies: Composition - Bachelor of MusicProgram Total Credits: 126

Students enrolled as majors in Composition take private lessons with our faculty who work professionally in contemporary classical, jazz, and commercial (radio, TV, film, industrial) and pop idioms. Monthly workshops featuring guest composers representing a variety of musical genres present students with an inside look at their creative processes and techniques. Additional courses include Jazz Ear Training, Jazz Theory, MIDI and Music Technology, Arranging, Orchestration, Music History, Business of Music, and ensembles. Student compositions are read or performed by our ensembles, and frequent performances of students' music highlight the school's concert schedule. Composition students can also elect an option to take additional study on an instrument or voice. The University's creative environment encourages collaborations with film, animation, dance, theater, and multimedia students.

Freshman Year Credits: 30

MUCP 131 - Composition: Forms & Concepts I

The first semester of this team-taught course is a hands-on exploration of standard and non-traditional compositional forms. After analyzing various forms, students will have the opportunity to apply those concepts and skills to their own compositions in different genres.

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Composition majors only.

Credits: 1 cr, 1 hr

MULS 131 - Applied Major Instruction – Composition

Private instruction in composition. Formerly MU 193A

The Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT) serves as a foundation for future studies in the natural and social sciences, in mathematics, and for life-long learning. Scholarship in these scientific disciplines has influenced our culture in significant ways — both directly as a result of ongoing research and indirectly as new scientific ideas and theories are developed and applied within the context of important issues and concerns in the larger society.

Prerequisites & Notes

For all SIFT courses, student must have first matriculated at UArts after Fall 2005. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam. Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

This is a description of the SIFT course category. Any course numbered LACR 22- will meet this requirement. For example:

- LACR 221 SIFT: Problem Solving

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Spring Credits: 17

- MUPF 8XX - Ensemble Credits: 1 cr

MUCP 361 - Orchestration I

An introduction to instrumentation, designed to acquaint the student with ranges, transpositions, and characteristics of individual instruments and voices. Aural and score analysis provide the basis for understanding vocal and instrumental treatments in small and large ensembles. Written orchestrations are required. Formerly MU 317A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: MUSC 203, MUSC 205

Open to majors in the School of Music only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 101 or LACR 009

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 210 - Texts & Contexts: Perspectives on the Humanities

Perspectives on the Humanities addresses significant works from the ancient world, the Renaissance, the Enlightenment and Romantic periods, and the present day. The course serves five functions: to help students develop their skills in critical reading and writing; to introduce study of traditionally defined periods in the history of culture; to introduce a thematic approach to Humanities topics; to examine key primary texts from various periods and consider them alongside comparable art works; to explore the possibility that conventional ideas of period studies are open to challenge and reinterpretation.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 22X - Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT)

The Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT) serves as a foundation for future studies in the natural and social sciences, in mathematics, and for life-long learning. Scholarship in these scientific disciplines has influenced our culture in significant ways — both directly as a result of ongoing research and indirectly as new scientific ideas and theories are developed and applied within the context of important issues and concerns in the larger society.

Prerequisites & Notes

For all SIFT courses, student must have first matriculated at UArts after Fall 2005. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam. Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

Composers, performers, and theorists are examined in the context of musical literature with emphasis upon styles, forms, and techniques of composition as they evolve and change. The sequence puts into historical perspective the materials presented in the Music Theory courses. Through listening assignments, students are expected to further develop their aural skills and knowledge of musical literature. Formerly MU 301A

Priority enrollment to majors in the School of Music.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MUSC 352 - Music History II

Designed to define the major style periods from Greek times to the present in terms of their philosophies, accomplishments, and interrelationships. Composers, performers, and theorists are examined in the context of musical literature with emphasis upon styles, forms, and techniques of composition as they evolve and change. The sequence puts into historical perspective the materials presented in the Music Theory courses. Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MUSC 451 - Jazz History

Study of jazz from its African and European roots through its emergence at the turn of the 20th century as a unique and distinctive American art form. The various styles of jazz are studied (ragtime, New Orleans Dixieland, Chicago style, swing, be-bop, cool, hard-bop, freeform, third stream), including their effect on the popular music with which jazz has coexisted. The course includes in-depth study of the primary exponents of the various styles. Audio and video materials are used to provide students with a better understanding of jazz and its influences on the music. Formerly MU 401A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Priority enrollment to majors in the School of Music.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 101 - First-Year Writing I

First part of a year-long writing, reading and research course that teaches the fundamental skills of the responsible student-scholar. Students practice the kinds of academic writing, textual analysis, and library and Internet research required of university students and curious learners of any age. The first term explores writing from literature, philosophy, and art.

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 102 - First-Year Writing II

Continuation of LACR 101. During this term an inquiry-based research paper is the focus. A similar curriculum is examined in the context of history, literature, theory, philosophy, and art from a chosen period.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 101 or LACR 009

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 210 - Texts & Contexts: Perspectives on the Humanities

Perspectives on the Humanities addresses significant works from the ancient world, the Renaissance, the Enlightenment and Romantic periods, and the present day. The course serves five functions: to help students develop their skills in critical reading and writing; to introduce study of traditionally defined periods in the history of culture; to introduce a thematic approach to Humanities topics; to examine key primary texts from various periods and consider them alongside comparable art works; to explore the possibility that conventional ideas of period studies are open to challenge and reinterpretation.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 22X - Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT)

The Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT) serves as a foundation for future studies in the natural and social sciences, in mathematics, and for life-long learning. Scholarship in these scientific disciplines has influenced our culture in significant ways — both directly as a result of ongoing research and indirectly as new scientific ideas and theories are developed and applied within the context of important issues and concerns in the larger society.

Prerequisites & Notes

For all SIFT courses, student must have first matriculated at UArts after Fall 2005. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam. Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

This is a description of the SIFT course category. Any course numbered LACR 22- will meet this requirement. For example:

- LACR 221 SIFT: Problem Solving

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPI 8XX - Liberal Arts Period Interpretation - Pre-20th Century

Period Interpretations are an array of interdisciplinary courses that explore the process by which we understand cultural areas. Students consider both conventional and innovative interpretations of cultural history. All students are required to take two Period Interpretation courses, one 20th Century, and one pre-20th Century. Most students will take PI courses in the junior and/or senior years.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 and LACR 210

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Liberal Arts Curriculum

Liberal Arts Requirements

Total Credits: 42

Liberal Arts Core Credits: 12

First-Year Writing Credits: 6 to 12 credits (based on sequence required)

Students must complete one of the following 3 writing course sequences:

1. Usual writing sequence:

- LACR101 (usually fall semester)
- LACR102 (usually spring semester)

Note: LACR101 must be taken before LACR102

2. Writing sequence for those who, as a result of the English Placement Test, need more study*:

- LACR 009 (This is the only LA course taken by the student during the first semester. The 3 credits given for LACR 009 do not count toward a student's degree requirements.)
- LACR 100 (This course substitutes for LACR 101)
- LACR102

Note: There is an opportunity, through a writing portfolio review and their writing teacher recommendations, for students who do extremely well in LACR 009 to be exempted from LACR 100/LACR 101. These students go directly into LACR102 from LACR 009. They are required to make up 3 credits of LACR 100/LACR101 with any writing intensive Liberal Arts course before they graduate.

3. Writing sequence for those for whom English is a second language*:

- LACR 007 (The 3 credits given for this course do not count toward a student's required number for graduation. LACR 007 is usually taken fall semester.)
- LACR 008 (The 3 credits given for this course do not count toward a student's degree requirements. LACR 008 is usually taken spring semester.)
- LACR101 (Please note that some students may move into LACR 100 from LACR 008. Also, ESL students who wish to take LACR 101 in the summer must take it during the Summer 10-week session. They are not permitted to enroll in either of the Summer 1 or Summer 2 5-week sessions.)

- LACR102
* Based on transcripts, SAT scores, TOEFL (Test of English as a Foreign Language), and a placement test, students may be placed in LACR 007/008 (ESL) or LACR 009. These courses do not satisfy the First Year Writing requirements and will not apply toward degree requirements.

Satisfactory completion of the First Year Writing sequence is required before registration for most other courses that carry Liberal Arts credit. Specific prerequisites are listed with the course description in the back of this catalog. In addition, failure to complete this sequence may cause the student to receive censure from the Academic Review Committee.

- LACR 007- English as a Second Language I
- LACR 008- English as a Second Language II
- LACR 009- Fundamentals of Composition I
- LACR 100- Fundamentals of Composition II
- LACR 101 - First-Year Writing I
- LACR 102 - First-Year Writing II

Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT) Credits: 3

Select one of these eight courses:

LACR 221 - SIFT: Problem Solving

This course is one of the options in the Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT). It serves as a foundation for future studies in the natural and social sciences, mathematics and life-long learning. Students will explore the basics of scientific method and research. They will learn how to frame questions that can be investigated empirically. The results of these "pilot studies" will be written up as papers and discussed in class presentations. The idea of intimate engagement will be introduced to enhance the student's ability to problem solve more effectively.

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 222 - SIFT: Human Adaptability

A examination of the relationships between environmental resources, technology and power in production systems ranging from hunter-gatherer to industrial. Jared Diamond's GUNS, GERMS and STEEL forms the core of the course with his discussion of the geographical context of domestication of plants and animals and how they might have ultimately affected the world distribution of power. Various ecosystems (deserts, grasslands, arctic, tropical and temperate forest and high altitude) are considered along with their advantages and disadvantages for domestication and human adaptation. The scientific questions underlying these geographic and ecological investigations are considered throughout the term.

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 223 - SIFT: Life Science Concepts

This course introduces learners to issues of critical and contemporary significance in the life sciences. In this context, students will learn about the scientific method, experimental design, data analysis, ethical considerations and critical thinking, particularly in the framework of environment and human health. In addition, the course encourages research and dialogue regarding the role of society in these issues. Several key environmental issues are highlighted in the course, and students are encouraged to research additional topics in more detail through their assignments. Students will keep a journal of relevant articles in recent news as well as learn about aspects of biological sciences that impact their lives. The final two weeks of the course will be dedicated to student led presentations on these topics. Topics covered in the course include: a) historical and ethical perspectives of the environment, b) ecological principles, c) biodiversity and endangered species d) renewable and nonrenewable environment resources, e) resource management and quality, f) environmental law, g) human health and toxicology, h) waste management, i) air and water pollution, and j) environmental sustainability.

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 224 - SIFT: Death and Ritual

This course examines death with the tools of physical and cultural anthropology. Students will learn the scientific process of forensics and the utilization of evidence. They will also engage in analytical methods of examining cultural and social practices. The course will be project-based: In the realm of physical anthropology, projects will include analyses of mummified and other human remains, as well as funerary structures; in the cultural anthropological field, projects will focus on critical looks at beliefs about death, burial, reincarnation, eternal recurrence, and other socio-cultural phenomena.

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 225 - SIFT: Observing Humans

This course presents several different social science frameworks and seeks to uncover what can be learned about human behavior by people watching. Students choose places for brief weekly observation and use their own art skills to document what they see.

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 226 - SIFT: Fundamentals of Mathematics

An introduction to the fundamental mathematical principles and operations used in undergraduate courses in the physical and social sciences. Topics include sets, logic, probability, statistics, number theory, algebra and geometry.

The course includes a module on scientific method which is common to all SIFT courses.

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam. Open to all students. LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 227 - SIFT: Discovering America

Are most Americans middle class? Are college students elite? Do most Americans believe in God? Are Democrats a majority? Are UArts students strange? The knowledge we have about society typically comes from generalized personal experience and/or media accounts, both of which often suffer from idiosyncrasy, ideological bias, or some other distortion. This course introduces the student to the scientific approach to knowledge by investigating society on several dimensions selected from the following: income, class, education, religion, occupation, political orientation, family structure, sexuality, crime and deviance, and social attitudes and beliefs on a variety of issues. The first half of the course focuses on the nature of science, social science, and sociology and its methods. The second half examines specific examples of sociological research and findings about American society to understand both what the facts are and how they are discovered and validated.

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 229 - SIFT: Science and Contemporary Society

An introduction to the scientific approach to knowledge by exploring sociology and some of its findings about contemporary society. Students begin by considering the distinctive nature of science as a way of discovering verifiable knowledge about the empirical world. Historical and contemporary examples of scientific discoveries as well as examples of pseudo-science supplement the theoretical discussion. Students then focus on the science of sociology. Case studies from sociological research illustrate the perspective and methods of sociology as an example of the scientific approach. Students also examine different aspects of contemporary American society like inequality and social class, sexuality and conceptions of the family, racial and ethnic diversity, changing levels of educational attainment, varieties of religious participation and belief, rates of deviance and crime, and political identification. In the last part of the course the context in which science develops and operates, both social and cultural is considered. Social values, political ideologies, and religious beliefs are examined for the ways in which they can affect science as well as the ways in which science can affect them.

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Period Interpretation Credits: 6

Period Interpretations are interdisciplinary courses that explore the process by which we understand cultural eras. Students consider both conventional and innovative interpretations of cultural history. All students are required to take two Period Interpretation courses, one twentieth century, and one pre-twentieth century. Ideally, these courses are completed in the junior and senior years.

Pre-Twentieth Century Period Interpretation Courses (LAPI)

Select one of the following 13 courses:

LAPI 811 - Art Nouveau and Aestheticism

Many threads of social, political, cultural, technological, architectural, crafts, and art history are drawn together to explore the foundations of Art Nouveau and Aestheticism and their manifestations in Europe and the United States.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 and LACR 210

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPI 817 - Self and Nature: the Dynamics of Romantic Landscape

This course features literature and painting of the Romantic era in England and Germany, with excursions to France and America and into the medium of music. We observe how landscape description in Romanticism developed a new vocabulary for experience of the self and the self's relation to nature and community. Formerly HU 319

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 and LACR*210

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPI 820 - Rome From Julius Caesar Through Nero

This course is a study of the transition of Rome from a Republic to an Empire, focusing on the Julio-Claudian line, which began with Julius Caesar and ended with Nero. This course examines the historical background and the religious, social, and economic issues that facilitated such a transition. Accompanying the transition was a flourishing of poetry, due in part to the patronage system and in part to increased literacy of the Roman people. Economic prosperity among the upper classes led to an increased demand for architecture, visual arts (painting and sculpture), and public entertainment (theater, music and dance, spectacles, gladiatorial combats). At the same time, the division among the social classes became even more dramatic, and government censorship and intrusion into private life emerged as major concerns under Augustus. Through the use of primary sources, class handouts, and independent study, students are encouraged to investigate the transition from Republic to Empire and to explore possible parallels in contemporary U.S. history.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 and LACR 210

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPI 821 - Religion, Art and the Apocalypse 1850 – 1914

An examination of the apocalyptic themes in the context of modern intellectual and artistic developments in the West at the turn of the twentieth century. Connections are drawn between religious interpretations of the Apocalypse and the apocalyptic motifs in modern art and literature.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 and LACR 210

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPI 822 - Age of Reason, Age of Satire: 18th Century England

The cultural history of England in the eighteenth century, focusing on two preoccupations of the day: rationalism and satire. The class introduces philosophic and political documents that justified the American and French Revolutions and then turns to satire in fiction in the visual arts. The term closes with a discussion of the twentieth century satire, our legacy from the Enlightenment and Revolutionary periods.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 and LACR 210

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPI 823 - Victorian England: Dr. Jekyll or Mr. Hyde?

This course is a study of the two faces of Victorian England: (1) the respectable and highly moralistic image reflected in much of the art as well as in social and cultural norms and (2) the underbelly of violence and perversion, reflected not only in the decadent artists of the 1890s but also in the social underworld of Jack the Ripper and the increasing population of prostitutes. The course also examines the historical background and the political, social, and economic issues that made such a dichotomy virtually inevitable. Artists who understood this dichotomy, in varying terms, are emphasized: Stevenson, Tennyson, Browning, the Pre-Raphaelites, Gilbert and Sullivan, Wilde, and Beardsley.

Through reading, lectures, class discussion, and independent study students investigate the two faces of Victorian England and explore possible parallels in contemporary U.S. society.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 and LACR 210

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPI 824 - "Orientalism": 19th Century European Eyes on the Middle East

The "Orient" (the land and its peoples included in the Ottoman Empire in the Near East, North Africa, Egypt, Palestine, and the Arabian peninsula) as seen by nineteenth century European travelers, artists, poets, adventures, wayfarers, dogooders, soldiers, and colonial officials; i.e., "outsiders" in cultures they observed, imagined, marveled at, or exploited - sometimes all of them simultaneously -in their art. The history and culture of nineteenth century colonial expansion is studied as is the modern discourse surrounding it.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 and LACR 210

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPI 825 - Age of Melancholy

Renaissance models of the self and their assimilation into artistic work. An exploration of how social forces drove individuals toward subjectivity and looks at how the then current medical models coped with this new concern through sixteenth and seventeenth century lyric and dramatic poetry. Parallels are also traced among literature, print culture and music.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 and LACR 210

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPI 826 - Renaissance: Politics, Religion and Money

A exploration of three modern interpretations of the Renaissance, political, religious and economic against central texts from the period to both test their validity and gain a wider understanding of the texts themselves. Modern interpretations include those of Burckhardt, Weber and Marx.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 and LACR 210

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hr

LAPI 827 - Greece: Democracy and Empire

Greece: Democracy and Empire is an introduction to classical Greece. It explores the historic forces, intellectual currents, cultural and social phenomena that shaped fifth century Athens and analyzes the tensions between imperialistic aspirations and artistic production. The course investigates the way in which the Persian and Peloponnesian Wars shaped and challenged Greek ideas about humanness and civilization. It analyzes and interprets Greek drama to see the extent to which it attempted to work out the often contradictory values in the culture. Students examine both extant theoretical writings on dance and the vase painting to understand their performative aspect.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 and LACR 210

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPI 831 - Chartres Cathedral: Politics, Society, and the Arts 12th - 13th Century France

A consideration of the architecture, sculpture, stained glass, illuminated manuscripts, costume and liturgical vessels, and music that contributed to Chartres Cathedral, the major gothic monument of the twelfth - thirteenth century France. At the end of the course, we consider the work presently being done to configure a sacred space in New York to honor the 9/11 site.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: LACR 102 and LACR 210

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPI 832 - Bodily and Spiritual Love in the Middle Ages

An investigation of the language of erotic and religious love in the rich art and thought of the late Middle Ages. Resources include painting, book illumination, music, spiritual literature, theology, philosophy.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 and LACR 210

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPI 834 - Age of the Medici: 1375 - 1500

A study of Florence in the Renaissance in the context of other Italian city-states. Covering the period from the republican regime at the end of the fourteenth century to the Medici's assumption of power as dukes, the course examines the pursuit of humanistic studies that sustained the republican ideology of that society; Florence's political and societal evolution from a republic to an autocratic regime; the flourishing arts and sciences, particularly under the rule of the Medici. It also investigates why, at that time, the city enjoyed an exceptional burst of intellectual and artistic creativity despite the erosion of political freedom. In the course we make use of primary sources and modern scholarship.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 and LACR 210

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Twentieth Century Period Interpretation Courses (LAPI)

Select one of the following 12 courses:

LAPI 920 - Berlin: The 1920s

The twentieth century saw a cultural shift of nearly seismic proportions from communal sources of identity to an apparent freedom to invent the self, from work ethic to consumer values, from traditional word-based forms of expression to a visual culture. The artists and writers of Weimar, Germany were among the first to register these revolutionary social changes and to articulate the tensions they continue to generate. The course emphasizes film, photographic and graphic arts, and performance from Berlin. Examples include works by Bertolt Brecht, Fritz Lang, and John Heartfield. The course connects the past to the present by comparing issue-based art of the 1920s with cultural critiques by contemporary media artists.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: LACR 102 and LACR 210

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPI 923 - The Age of Apartheid

By focusing on the apartheid era of South Africa, this interdisciplinary course explores critical issues of the twentieth century, such as racism, economic exploitation, urbanization, and political protest. We use South African theater, literature, and music to understand the culture that gave them birth, and read original sources written by leaders such as Gandhi, De Klerk, and Mandela. Formerly HU 276

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: LACR 102 and LACR 210

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPI 924 - Existential Paris: 1938 - 1959

An examination of the central ideas and creative works associated with Parisian Existentialism and the way in which they both shaped, and were shaped by, the cultural period in which they emerged: Nazi-occupied Paris, the liberated Paris after World War II, and the Cold War. Other artistic productions not specifically linked with existentialism but which emerged during its period of ascendance are also explored.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: LACR 102 and LACR 210

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPI 925 - New York in the 1950s

This course investigates the arts centered in 1950s New York (with an emphasis on jazz, literature, and painting) in the context of a decade characterized by rising consumerism, conformity, corporate capitalism, and emerging popular arts that would reshape American culture from then on. This is also the decade of Red Scare paranoia, A-bomb anxiety, Cold War blues, and deep doubts about the American Dream. In addition to the assigned readings, papers, and discussions, students pursue their own interests in the decade through individual projects in the second half of the course. As a supplement to the course, a number of special screening of films important to the decade are shown several times during the term. Students are expected to see and complete exercises on at least three of the films.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: LACR 102 and LACR 210

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPI 926 - Les Amis de Paris: 1904-1913

This course examines the friendship and work of a select group of artists living in Paris between 1904 and 1913. Studying the biographical and interpersonal layers of their relationships and artwork provides new insight into the legacy of these masters. The literature of Gertrude Stein, Apollinaire, and others, the visual art of Picasso, Matisse and the Cubists, as well as other materials and mediums contribute to understanding how this particular circle of friends cultivated the artistic and intellectual leaps that created Modernism. Interdisciplinary methods for creating cultural models are explored.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPI 927 - Becoming Modern: 1900 - 1914

An exploration of the innovations in the arts in the first decade and a half of the twentieth century when becoming Modern was the challenge facing every artist. The results were works that called into question almost every previous assumption about the arts. This was a period also characterized by radical changes in technology, in science, in philosophy, and in politics. This course investigates a wide range of material in order to bring some clarity to the elusive term "modern." In addition to the assigned readings, papers, and discussions, students pursue their own interests in the decade through independent study "side trips" in the second half of the course.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: LACR 102 and LACR 210

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPI 928 - Franco's Spain: An Open Wound

Spanish history from 1700 to the present, focusing most heavily on the Spanish Civil War (1936-39) and the dictatorship of Francisco Franco (1939-1975). Students learn about the War of Spanish Succession (1702-1713), the Bourbon Monarchy and Eighteenth Century Reforms (1700-1808), the Peninsular War (1808-1814), the turbulent nineteenth century, the First Republic (1873-74), the military dictatorship of Primo de Rivera (1923-1930), the Second Republic (1831-36), the transition to democracy (1975-1978), and Spain since the death of Franco. Students also discuss Spanish poetry (Miguel de Unamuno), art (Salvador Dali, Joan Miro, and Pablo Picasso), novels and plays (Hemingway's For Whom the Bell Tolls and Lora's Yerma), and memoirs about the Spanish Civil War (George Orwell's Homage to Catalonia).

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: LACR 102 and LACR 210

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPI 929 - Age of the Masses: From Versailles to September 1, 1939

Focusing on the aftermath of WWI, looks at the period as one where the dissolution of old social orders led to the emergence of the crowds as catalysts in the tensions between liberalism, conservatism and socialism. Students examine at essays, poems, films and listen to music. The most extensive part of the course, however, considers the work of three poets, Cesar Vallejo, W.H. Auden, and Bertold Brecht to analyze the ways in which each of these writers commented on central historical events, while exploring the tensions between art and wider social concerns, ultimately testing the humanistic assumptions inherent to all works of art against historical reality.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: LACR 102 and LACR 210

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPI 930 - Age of Consumer Culture 1945-1972

An exploration of the way in which consumer culture redefined America in the post-war period and transformed its culture, including the reconfiguration of space. Particular focus is placed on the rise of the suburb, television and malls and the ways in which these redefined the role of public and private, reshaping art, politics and audiences. Students look at poetry, fiction, and the visual arts and trace their reaction from an initial anti-materialist critique to gradual incorporation and appropriation.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: LACR 102 and LACR 210

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 and LACR 210

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs.

LAPI 932 - Race at the End of the 20th Century

In the last decade of the twentieth century, many writers, politicians, and artists attempted to take stock of race relations in the United States. Bill Clinton's assertion that Americans still had some "unfinished business" in this area was demonstrated by events such as the LA riots and the OJ Simpson verdict. By focusing on this period, we will explore the ongoing issues of race and racism in our society, as well as how they intersect with issues like class and gender.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: LACR 102 and LACR 210

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPI 935 - Spain After Franco: The Flowering of the Arts since 1975

This course provides a close examination of the visual and performing arts of Spain, from the 1980s to the present day. Through selected readings, in-class discussions, film screenings, field trips, guest speakers, lecture-demonstrations, and student presentations, we will develop a deep understanding of what this complex culture is like, how it became that way, and how it is likely to develop in the future. Artist to be studied include Basque sculptor Christina Iglesias, choreographer Nacho Duato, flamenco superstars Paco de Lucia, Estrella Morente and Sara Baras, plus filmmaker Pedro Almodovar.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: LACR 102 and LACR 210

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Electives Credits: 15

Students may choose electives from the extensive listing of courses. Some students concentrate their study in a single area (literature, psychology) while others take an array of courses from across the range of Liberal Arts offerings. The Liberal Arts curriculum offers students a great deal of flexibility and freedom of choice. To make the best use of these opportunities, students should study the elective lists carefully, explore their educational opportunities with their advisors and with the Liberal Arts faculty and Dean, and create a coherent study plan.

LAAH 861 - Arts of China

This course covers ceramics, sculpture, painting, and other arts of China from the Neolithic through the last Chinese dynasty, that is from roughly 10,000 BCE to 1911. (If time permits some comments may be made about twentieth century Chinese art.) A brief introduction to the historical and social background of each period will be presented as the outstanding arts and art styles of each period are examined. Particular attention will be paid to what, if any, uniquely Chinese characteristics are evident in the arts of China. Art recovered from major archaeological discoveries in China including the "terra cotta" warriors found near the tomb of China's first emperor will be introduced and reviewed. Important masterworks of Chinese art in all media will also be analyzed and discussed. The influence of religion on Chinese art, particularly Buddhism, will be addressed, and we will also look at Chinese painting in some detail, especially at how figure painting came to be eclipsed by landscape painting. One quiz, mid-term and final examinations and one short paper. Formerly HU 342

LALL 822 - Haiku: Classical to Contemporary

A survey of Haiku poetry from its development in Japan to its influence on American and world poets of the twentieth century. This short, enigmatic poetic form is approached from three perspectives. First, we will focus on understanding the craft of haiku and the use of that knowledge to interpret the individual poems. Second, the foundations of haiku's aesthetic principles as they developed over the centuries in Japan. And third, the influence of Japanese haiku on such twentieth century poets such as Ezra Pound, William Carlos Williams, Wallace Stevens and the Beat poets. Throughout the course, English language haiku of contemporary North American poets is read, and students write their own haiku verses.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LALL 823 - Women Writers

This course explores and perhaps reclaims the provocative treasures of women writers, ancient and contemporary and their potential capacity to transform us as human beings. The various works studied, from the ancient poetic fragments of Sappho to the solitary lyrics of Emily Dickinson from the fictional classic of Bronte, Austen, Wharton and Virginia Woolf to the twentieth century voices of Adrienne Rich, Toni Morrison, and Julia Alvarez, all give us the spectrum of authenticity in the female voice. In our reading, the questions will emerge: Do women think/write differently from men? What is the role of gender in artistic imagination? As a counter example, students will also look at Louisa May Alcott's Little Women with its classic work in feminine psychology and Gilbert and Gubar's groundbreaking textual analysis on women writers.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LALL 825 - The Short Story

A study of the short story from Poe to the present. Samplings from the British, the American, and the European, with particular attention to the major authors who reinvented the genre. At the end of the semester, students look at developments in contemporary fiction, the anti-story, the new wave, the surreal, the minimal, the mythic. Formerly HU 216

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LALL 831 - 19th Century American Writers

From the Gothic darkness of Edgar Allan Poe to Stephen Crane's Red Badge, from Irving's mystic Sleepy Hollow to Hawthorne's Scarlet Letter, from Thoreau's idyll on Walden Pond to Melville's terror rounding Cape Horn, from Whitman's barbaric shout to Emily Dickinson's lyric whisper, from Emerson's "Self Reliance" to Mark Twain's despairing loss of innocence, the trajectory of American Literature in the nineteenth century traces a movement from the past to the future. This course looks at the major writers of nineteenth century America, a fascinating and revolutionary period in American art, where an American past becomes an American Voice and our Original Sins form our future.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LALL 832 - 20th Century American Writers

An introduction to twentieth century American literature and its roots. What can be traced in that literature is a movement from idealism to cynicism or, perhaps, from idealism to realism. As America from an agrarian, small town culture to an increasingly urban and industrialized society, the American Dream of infinite potential and freedom for each citizen was re-mapped, just as the Western movement changed the geographical landscape of America. How the individual - the "little guy" marginalized from self and society - reacted to this aloneness, this powerlessness is the focus of the course. We ask, as a new American century begins, what does it mean now to dream Dreams, to endure Nightmares? What truths do Americans continue to hold as self-evident in the wake of international terrorist violence and the uncharted seas of a new future? Of what use is literature in this?

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LALL 833 - African American Literature

Readings may include works by Langston Hughes, Richard Wright, Ralph Ellison, James Baldwin, Toni Morrison, Imamu Baraka, and Gwendolyn Brooks, focusing on the larger question of the role of the African-American writer in American society. Formerly HU 217

LALL 914 - Contemporary Novel

This is a course for people who like to read. We study 10 (count 'em 10!) novels by some of the most interesting authors of the past two decades including works from North and South America and Eastern and Western Europe. Some are weird, some beautiful, some sexy, some funny. Formerly HU 416A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LALL 915 - Modern Poetry

A consideration of both the central figures and the central movements in modern poetry. The first part of the semester addresses the stylistic changes and the ideological currents which shaped the high modernist mode. The second part of the course explores the major figures through their most important work. Figures include Yeats, Pound, Eliot, Stevens, Williams and Frost.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LALL 916 - Contemporary Poetry

A survey of both the central figures and the central movements in contemporary poetry. Dominant currents that emerged after WWII, including Beats, Confessional and New York Schools are included as are the formal, technical, thematic experimentation of the poetry written in the 60s and early 70s. Finally, the course examines the way a younger generation of poets has come to terms with the work of their predecessors.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LALL 921 - Superheroes

This course examines the most important heroes of popular culture in the Middle Ages – Beowulf, Roland, Siegfried, and King Arthur. What do these heroes and the epics in which they appear reveal about their culture? How do they compare to modern popular superheroes? Formerly HU 218

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LALL 922 - Big Fat Famous Novel

Three of the world's best and most important novels: Tolstoy's War and Peace, Melville's Moby Dick, and Joyce's Ulysses are read. Each provides great pleasure to the serious reader and much material for intense discussion. Each novel has the equivalent of its own little course, about one month long. Formerly HU 414A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LALL 923 - Children's Literature

This course investigates the oral traditions of world literature, which continue to nurture the imagination and sense of identity of children today, and the modern tradition of children's literature. The course focuses on children's literature as an introduction to the principles and forms of art and to the role of the imagination in child development. Formerly

HU 219

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

LALL 955 - Dante in the Modern World

An exploration of Dante's journey in the Divine Comedy, his search for order, for answers to ultimate questions and his inspiration of artists in various media, such as Baudelaire, T.S. Elliot, Tchaikovsky, Puccini, Rodin, Rauschenberg. The main subject for the study is Inferno, with references to the Purgatorio and the Paradiso.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LALL 961 - Avant Garde Cinema

A examination of the arts and history of experimental film and video. The development of non-traditional forms and structures is emphasized, specifically the exploration of mental states, visual metaphors and process.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LALL 963 - American Film Genres

A consideration of a particular film genre and style in cinema, which may include film noir, horror, comedy, political film and independent film, and varying from semester to semester.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 Repeatable once for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LALL 965 - Literature and Film: From Text to Screen

Explores the conceptual and the technical leap between the written text and its transformation to a cinematic text on the screen. The students examine what happens to plot, characterization, bound and free description when a narrative text is converted to an audio-visual presentation. In certain examples, the transformation of narrative structure is from the novel to the screenplay to the finished film. Students gain insights into the relationships between written and filmed dialogue, between written description and cinematic mise-en-scene, between the novel's omniscient narrator and the film's voice-over. Formerly HU 413

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LALL 973 - Advanced Playwriting

A follow-up to Playwriting. Students further develop their writing and revising skills. In addition, the class analyzes selected contemporary plays and writes playwrights' critiques of modern theatrical practices. Students complete a polished one-act or radio drama.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LALL 873

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LALL 974 - Advanced Poetry Writing Workshop

An extension of the knowledge and experience of reading and writing poetry that students gained in the Poetry Writing Workshop. Students write, revise, and critique original poems, review individual books of poems, and survey the broad sweep of contemporary poetry.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LALL 871

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LALL 975 - Advanced Fiction Writing Workshop

A follow-up to the Fiction Writing Workshop. Students produce, critique, read, and revise short stories in a more inviting intensive environment. Goals are to hone critical skills, develop and refine students' individual voices, and provide a portfolio of finished pieces.

Prerequisites & Notes

Instructor permission required.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

THEA 152 - Script Analysis

Introduces the student to practical analysis of texts/scripts. The course explores the concepts of conflict, human action, character, action/ reaction cycle, dramatic structure, translations and resources external to the script (historical perspective). At the course's end, the student should possess a firm understanding of the process involved in script analysis, be thoroughly familiar with the composite types of dramatic literature, begin to understand the nature of an informed aestheti, and understand the consequences of each element of a performance on its audience. Formerly TH 213

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: THEA 151 or LACR 102

Priority enrollment to majors in the School of Theater Arts.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

WRIT 251 - Narrative Cinema I

A two-part chronological film history course of various schools of film, styles, and genres from both the domestic and international film community that are studied chronologically, emphasizing the influence and integration of the various forms with one another. The course requires bi-weekly screenings of the work being studied. Formerly WM 251

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

WRIT 252 - Narrative Cinema II

A two-part chronological film history course of various schools of film, styles, and genres from both the domestic and international film community that are studied chronologically, emphasizing the influence and integration of the various forms with one another. The course requires bi-weekly screenings of the work being studied. Formerly WM 252

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Philosophy, Religion, and Interdisciplinary StudiesAEDU 543 - Aesthetics and Art Criticism

This course is designed to develop skills, techniques, and strategies for integrating developmentally appropriate aesthetics and art criticism activities in the K-12 classroom. Using prevailing theories of learning, teaching, and child development, students will design puzzle cases, activities, and curricula that promote the philosophical investigation and interpretation of art and aesthetic objects. Formerly AE 549

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Art Education majors and concentrations.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPR 811 - Topics in Philosophy

Selected topics in Western philosophy. Focusing on developing an understanding of the arguments of selected Western philosophers and analyzing the various ideas they present. Some of the "big questions" that appear in philosophy - that questions concerning the nature of reality, the definition of terms such as "justice" and "happiness" and the meaning of "values" are examined. Primary sources comprise most of the readings.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPR 812 - Introduction to Chinese Philosophy

Basic principles in Chinese philosophy, particularly Daoism and Confucianism. Students examine the philosophical texts such as the Doa De Jing, the Zhuangzi, and the Analects, working from primary sources. In the process, students gain an understanding of Chinese thinking in metaphysics, ethics, and other areas of philosophy.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPR 813 - Greek Philosophy

Topics in Greek philosophy, with an emphasis on the works of the pre-Socratics, Plato, and the Stoics. Emphasizes the development of ability to understand the arguments of selected Greek philosophers and analyze the various ideas they present. To do this, some of the "big questions" that appear in Greek philosophy - questions concerning the nature of reality, the definition of terms such as "justice" and "happiness," and the meaning of "values" is examined. Primary sources comprise most of the readings.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPR 831 - Introduction to the Bible

The main themes of the Bible are explored from a modern, critical, nondenominational point of view. No knowledge of the Bible is assumed. Using historical and literary analysis, continuities as well as differences between the Hebrew and Christian scriptures are examined. Formerly HU 268

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPR 832 - Introduction to World Religion

An exploration of world religious traditions originating in Africa, America, China, India, Japan, and the Middle East. Religions are studied in their historical and cultural context, including their development into various forms over the years and in different places, and their beliefs regarding the cosmos, society, the self, and good vs. evil. Formerly HU 292

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPR 841 - Comparative Religion: ASIA

A study of the world's Asian religions through their historical development, beliefs, sacred literature, and the works of contemporary writers. The course discusses Hinduism, Buddhism, Jainism, Sikhism, Confucianism Taoism, Shintoism, and Yin-Yang school of mysticism. Formerly HU 466

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPR 842 - Comparative Religions: Religions in America

A historical study of beliefs and practices of various religious groups that have shaped American culture, including Mormons, Jehovah's Witnesses, Christian Scientists, Scientologists and others. We discuss traditional main-line groups as well as newer movements, and pay special attention to ethnic and racial minorities, as well as to women in American religion. Formerly HU 467

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPR 850 - Introduction to Aesthetics

An introduction to the philosophy of art. After a brief examination of analytic philosophical methods and the history of aesthetics, we consider some of the fundamental problems in aesthetics, such as the intention of the artist, the physical object/aesthetic object distinction, and the nature and comparison of different kinds of media. The relationship between language and art are central to the course. Formerly HU 270

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPR 851 - Arts Criticism

A writing course designed to promote understanding and interpretation of the arts across a multidisciplinary spectrum and to provide students with the basic tools of critical analysis. Group discussion and selected readings. Formerly HU 323

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPR 853 - Ethics

The history of ethics and the fundamental ethical problems that have concerned philosophers for the past 2,500 years. The study begins with Plato and Aristotle and extends to the contemporary analytic philosophy, phenomenology, and existentialism. Problems include the "is/ought" distinction, the ultimate objective of life, religious issues, human rights, justice, and welfare. Formerly HU 373

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPR 855 - Style in Art

A seminar exploring the question of style in the literary, visual, and performing arts as well as in craft and applied arts (including film, industrial design, and the fashion industry). We consider theories about organicism and periodicity in style, as they relate to tradition, trends, social and economic conditions, and evolving cultural norms. Themes include: ateliers and authorship; historic "revivals," changing standards of beauty and form; and stylistic phases in the careers of major writers, artists, and composers. The aim of the course is to develop a practical, descriptive vocabulary for the analysis of artistic style. Formerly HU 395

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPR 862 - Dance & Expressive Culture

Dance is woven into the mythology, theater, music, poetry, and literature of many cultures. The course considers dance as it has influenced and has been influenced by these forms of creative expression in the Western World. Formerly HU 293

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPR 911 - Contemporary Philosophy

An examination of some of the problems occupying today's philosophers and the strategies they have devised to address them. Formerly HU 474

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPR 913 - Existential Philosophy

Selected concepts in Existential philosophy, discussed in the context of selected works from Dostoyevsky, Sartre, Camus, Nietzsche and others. The course examines further many of the issues concerning epistemology, ethics and the search for meaning brought up in LAPR 811.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPR 914 - Modern Russian Thought: Philosophy, Literature, Mysticism

Cultivates an understanding of modern Russian thought in its various manifestations and an acquaintance with and a critical appreciation of the thinkers discussed. A special attention is paid to comparative and interdisciplinary issues, focusing on "Russia and the West", and how Russian intellectuals reacted to the challenge of Western thought and culture in the 19th and 20th centuries. Students read and discuss the works of many prominent Russian philosophers, including Nikolai Berdiaev and Lev Shestov, a Russian émigré mystic and founder of theosophy, Elena Blavatsky, as well as world renowned Russian writers, Lev Tolstoi, Fiodor Dostoevskii.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPR 933 - Introduction to Zen Buddhism

An examination of the Zen understanding of being human: the problem of human existence Zen seeks to resolve, the liberation it claims to achieve, the meaning of the satori or "Awakening" which Zen claims is the basis of this liberation, the Zen koan as the meaning through which the Awakening is attained, the art that results from Awakening, and the possible contributions of Zen to the contemporary spiritual, philosophic, and artistic situation in the West.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPR 950 - Aesthetics Seminar

Advanced philosophic problems that are related to works of art and discourse about works of art. Focus varies from year to year but may include Postmodernism, Neo-Marxism, reception aesthetics, gender and sexuality identity.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: LACR 102 and LAPR 850

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPR 951 - Art, Media and Society

A seminar exploring the identity crisis of the modern artist in the period since the industrial revolution and the rise of the middle class. Conflicts or collaborations between the fine arts and commercialism, including mass media and new technology, from Romanticism and the arts and crafts movement to Pop Art and the Web. Issues of authorship, production, quality, and permanence. Who determines taste, and why? Does high art have a future? Formerly HU 498

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPR 961 - Opera and Politics

Throughout its history, whether at court or in public theaters, opera has exhibited a magnetic pull on artists and audiences attracted to the exploration of political themes. This course examines operatic instantiations of the conflict between social conformity and personal freedom, the hedonistic abuse of power, the glorification of past achievements in order to deflect attention from present impotence, the retreat from political disillusionment, and idealized interior worlds. General commentary on musical, formal, and dramatic elements characteristic of historical periods alternates with closer analysis of specific works. Formerly HU 294

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPR 962 - Diaghilev and the Ballet Russes

An investigation of the role of the impresario Serge Diaghilev and his Ballets Russes in both shaping and echoing the course of artistic revolution in Paris from c. 1909-1929. Several Diaghilev ballets will be introduced, viewed, and critiqued. Particular attention will be given to Picasso and Stravinsky, Fitzgerald and Pound. In passing, students look at the ideas of Sigmund Freud on the unconscious and invented myths, particularly as they are reflected in Nijinsky's ballets, Rites, Faun, Jeux and Spectre.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPR 972 - Women and Sex Roles

An introduction to the history of women and to theories of gender. An interdisciplinary course combining history, literature, and the visual arts. Slide lectures on images of women in art, myth, and religions, from ancient times to modern. Economic and historical factors affecting how women have lived. Definitions of masculinity and femininity. The nature-nurture debate over hormonal differences. Formerly HU 497

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 862 - Psychology of Music

What makes a phenomenon musical? What are people doing when they make or listen to music? Can musical understanding be fully grasped through listening? These and similar questions represent an effort to find something that lies at the core of our humanity, and that may be in danger of being lost. We start from the simple assumption that, in order to find something, we must try to grasp what is essential about it. Ranging between the hows and whys of music, the course explores the origins of human music-making, the psychology of aural awareness, the strategies of organized musical expression, and the construction of musical meaning in relation to culture. Formerly HU 259

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MUSC 355 - Introduction to Acoustics

The course deals with the following topics: physical nature of sound; the reception and perception of sound; theories of consonance and dissonance; scales, tunings and temperaments; the acoustic properties of musical instruments, electronic instruments, and the voice; sound reinforcement; and environmental considerations, such as the design of concert halls, theaters, recording studios, and open spaces. A term paper, mid-term, and final examination are required. Formerly MU 390

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MUSC 458 - Diaghilev and His Time

This course investigates the role of Serge Diaghilev and his famous Ballet Russes in shaping the course of music and dance from c. 1909-1929. Special emphasis is placed on the works of Igor Stravinsky with reference to his music for the stage. Time is also devoted to the interrelationships between various artists, dancers, and writers such as Picasso, Cocteau, Nijinsky, Bakst, Massine, and others who were active in Paris. Works studied are looked at from the perspective of the composer, the choreographer, the set and costume designer, the dancers and the audience. Formerly MU 427

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Science and MathematicsLASM 801 - Fundamentals of College Mathematics

An introduction to the fundamental mathematical principles and operations used in undergraduate courses in the physical and social sciences. Topics include sets, logic, probability, statistics, number theory, algebra, and geometry. Meets with LACR 226. Formerly HU 282A

Prerequisites & Notes

Successful completion of LACR 009 or 100 where required as a result of the English Placement Exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASM 802 - Calculus

An introduction to calculus with the emphasis on the applications of differential and integral calculus to the physical and social sciences. Formerly HU 282B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: LACR 102, LASM 801 Students with equivalent college-level mathematics, or pre-college advanced algebra and geometry should request special permission.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASM 803 - Probability

This class introduces some of the most fundamental ideas in classical probability. Polling techniques, casino gambling, weather forecasting, and lotteries are a few areas in which the principles of probability directly influence our lives. Modern science depends upon probability to build mathematical descriptions of the real world. This course explores the concepts of probability in an intuitive and accessible way, understandable to beginners. Topics include sample spaces, counting, conditional probability, and the concept of independence, game theory, random variables, and the law of large numbers. Formerly HU 283

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASM 810 - Life Sciences

Life forms in the context of current adaptations and evolutionary history. Special emphasis is placed on an exploration of evolutionary relationships, ecological specialization, and the dynamic relationships of organisms in an integrated ecosystem. Formerly HU 285A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASM 811 - Contemporary Issues in Life Sciences

Each semester this course explores one area of current research in the life sciences by focusing on three significant issues in the current scientific literature. Students participate in a series of semi-independent inquiry activities. For each research issue, student teams complete a “challenge” that demonstrates their ability to understand, collect, interpret and apply appropriate information in order to propose solutions and to convince classmates of the success of their approaches. Formerly HU 289

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASM 830 - Physical Sciences

An investigation of astronomy, geology, and other physical sciences, including the origin of the universe and solar system and the nature of physical science, matter, and energy. This course provides a background for understanding the problems of the impact of science on human values. Formerly HU 285B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASM 831 - Physics

An introductory college physics course. The first semester covers kinematics, dynamics, energy structural analysis, and waves; the second semester concentrates on a study of light, electricity, and magnetism. Both semesters include the frequent references to architecture, design, and the fine arts. A background in algebra is required. Formerly HU 481A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASM 913 - Urban Wildlife

An examination of the ways in which humans and other animals interact in shared and contiguous environments based on semi-independent field studies carried out by students on selected species. After an introduction to common species and a short period of directed study, teams of students plan, carry out, and analyze one short-term (4-week) study of one species of their choice that inhabits urban Philadelphia. Formerly HU 381

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASM 914 - Human Genetics

Explores the fundamentals of genetics through the study of our own species, Homo Sapiens. Introduces the students to the study of inheritance and how molecular, physiological, environmental, and behavioral mechanisms affect the measurable characteristics of humans around the world. Topics include genetic diseases and unusual physical characteristics among others. Using local resources, students engage in problem-solving activities in comparative biology. Formerly HU 386

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASM 915 - Perception

The structure and function of the senses of vision, audition, olfaction, gustation, touch, temperature, kinesthesia, time, and the brain and nervous system are considered as they relate to perception. Formerly HU 388

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASM 916 - Evolution in Modern Perspective

Evolution is the unifying theoretical foundation of all the life sciences. This course explores the mechanisms that produce evolution, and their meaning for our current knowledge in biology, conservation, medicine, agriculture, and related sciences. Students also consider the effect(s) that society's awareness of evolution has had on social institutions such as law, literature, politics, and education. Formerly HU 389

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASM 917 - Brain and Behavior

This course is an introduction to the organization of the brain and nervous system and to their interactions with other body systems that produce observable behavior. Topics include brain structure and function, neurological changes over the life cycle, and the effects of malfunctions. Students learn about specific brain structures and how they contribute to or produce specific behavioral characteristics. We explore the neurochemistry of drug addiction, degenerative diseases, and psycho-active drugs, as well as other current topics of interest. Formerly HU 485

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASM 921 - Dynamic Anatomy

The structure of the body as it relates to form (size, shape, and proportion) and support (posture, position, and movement). In-depth exploration of the location, orientation, and actions of the major muscle groups, joints, and bones, and how they differ by gender through the life cycle. Formerly HU 281

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 Priority enrollment to majors in the School of Dance.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASM 931 - Concepts of Modern Physics

This course surveys important concepts in twentieth century physics, including chaos theory, cosmology, quantum mechanics, and relativity. Without mathematics, we examine the tumultuous changes that have taken place in the scientific view of space, time, and physical reality. Formerly HU 385

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASM 932 - Pseudoscience in Contemporary Society

The methods and issues of contemporary science. Explores how scientific information is used in society through an examination of scientific, near-scientific and pseudoscientific claims, including strange creatures like Bigfoot and the Loch Ness monster, miracle cures for diseases, and paranormal phenomena. The question of how funding might affect scientific research is also examined. Formerly HU 286

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASM 951 - Technology, Culture and Society

This course explores the complex relationship among technology, cultural paradigms, and popular consciousness. We study and analyze such questions as "What is technology?"; "Does technology necessarily imply progress?"; and "How does technology define reality?" Students examine these and other related themes through readings and other media. Formerly HU 396

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MUSC 355 - Introduction to Acoustics

The course deals with the following topics: physical nature of sound; the reception and perception of sound; theories of consonance and dissonance; scales, tunings and temperaments; the acoustic properties of musical instruments, electronic instruments, and the voice; sound reinforcement; and environmental considerations, such as the design of concert halls, theaters, recording studios, and open spaces. A term paper, mid-term, and final examination are required. Formerly MU 390

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Social Sciences

CMMC 151 - History of Communication

Examines how major developments in communication have influenced social and cultural history and how major historical and social changes have had an impact on communication and society. Draws connections between historically specific and contemporary modes of communication in a variety of times and cultures and the present. Formerly CM 250

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to College of Media and Communication students.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

CMMC 350 - Gender Images in Media

Explores representation of gender and sexuality in the media over the past century and how images of male and female both follow and create social change. Formerly CM 350

LASS 831 - Money Matters

Explores issues in economics and business by working out from the roles and interests of individual agents and groups. We look at economic dynamics in artistic and cultural work in the present, and at different historical moments, to explore further the nature of these relationships and their meanings. Students are exposed to economic and business discourse, provided with a broad and intensive understanding of economic and business language and logic, given experience in the application of these concepts to the issues in their field of interest, and provide a foundation for thinking through the economic and ethical dimensions of their work. Formerly HU 272

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Priority enrollment to Communication majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 850 - Introduction to Cultural Anthropology

An exploration of the nature of human culture, its variations and the anthropological explanations of these differences ranging from symbolic, functional, to historical. This survey of culture in Western and non-Western societies considers a number of special topics such as: language and society; cultural identity and the arts; gender; religion and cultural change; marriage and family; ethnicity and race; the impact of globalization, tourism and cultural change.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 851 - Human Origins and Primates

An anthropological perspective on evolution, biology, ecology, and behavior of nonhuman primates from prosimians to great apes. Students are introduced to the principles of evolution and adaptive trends. The course focuses on the successful terrestrial species of Old World monkeys and the apes – the gibbon, orangutan, gorilla, and chimpanzee. Comparisons are made among nonhuman primates and our own species regarding diet, locomotion, tool use and manufacture, modes of communication, social behavior and social systems, motherhood and child care, aggression, “cultural” behavior and recent trends in nonhuman primate behavior studies. Films are an important part of the course. Formerly HU 260A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 852 - Human Evolution

An introduction to human biological and cultural evolution, a survey of the major evolutionary stages in hominid evolution, an introduction to Paleolithic technologies, and a comparison of contemporary Stone Age societies with Paleolithic populations. Formerly HU 260B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 854 - Analyzing Talk

This course asks: what can be learned by listening, recording, and analyzing human communication. Much like the interdisciplinary course "Observing Humans," "Analyzing Talk" will involve student-led field work in a location chosen by the student. This is a course primarily about the study of power and culture; the students will be learning about patterned power dynamics through the frameworks of gender, race, ethnicity, class and age. Speech, paralinguistics, gesture, and posture are the focus as the course introduces classics in sociolinguistics, semiotics, and video ethnography. Like music, drama, and choreography, and visual art, human talk can be analyzed both aesthetically and structurally. Framed by the media available of its time, "Analyzing Talk" will cover speech and gesture research and will ask how media extends and limits the questions of a particular age. Classics in documentary film will augment the course.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 861 - Introduction to Folklore

Folklore is considered the artistic communication of small groups of subcultures. This course emphasizes urban folklore. Each student chooses a subculture and an art genre of an existing community to study. Classes involve the development of interviewing skills, documenting methods and an understanding of the history of folklore study. Students learn about people's lives through their songs, tales, movements and material culture.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 862 - Psychology of Music

What makes a phenomenon musical? What are people doing when they make or listen to music? Can musical understanding be fully grasped through listening? These and similar questions represent an effort to find something that lies at the core of our humanity, and that may be in danger of being lost. We start from the simple assumption that, in order to find something, we must try to grasp what is essential about it. Ranging between the hows and whys of music, the course explores the origins of human music-making, the psychology of aural awareness, the strategies of organized musical expression, and the construction of musical meaning in relation to culture. Formerly HU 259

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 871 - Child & Adolescent Psychology

This course is developmentally oriented and focuses on Erikson's psychosocial stages of life from birth to adolescence. Major topics include pregnancy, the birth process, and the physical, intellectual, emotional, and social development of the child. Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Priority enrollment to Art Therapy concentration and Dance Education.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 873 - Personality & Creativity

Through readings of works of major theorists on the nature of personality and on creativity, the course poses two major questions: "What do major theorists have to say about the human personality?" and "What do major theorists have to say about what it means to be a creative person?" There are a number of ways of answering these questions and it is not the purpose of the course to choose the "best" answer, but rather, to put the student in a better position to make his or her own decision. Formerly HU 374

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 874 - Psychology of Touch

In this course students learn about the role the sense of touch plays in early physical development and in the development of perceptual and cognitive skills. The last part of the course is devoted to the aesthetic dimension of touch and the significance of early tactile stimulation for the visual and performing arts. Formerly HU 378

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 875 - Social Psychology

A survey of major social problems today and an analysis of society's resistance to implementing the necessary painful solutions. Students study the current status of major social institutions and their increasing failure to meet and satisfy human needs. Some of the other areas that are studied are mental health and mental illness, human values, love and marriage, dreams, and preventative programs. Formerly HU 382

Master of Fine Arts Low Residency Program in Ceramics, Painting, or Sculpture

Program Total Credits: 60

These studio-based Master of Fine Arts degree programs are intended to broaden and advance the conceptual, critical, historical, and practical knowledge needed to sustain a contemporary studio. The programs have been designed to meet the needs of artists holding BFA or BA degrees who are interested in pursuing an MFA in either Ceramics, Painting, or Sculpture within a time frame that accommodates their employment or academic year schedule.

Departing from the traditional semester format, students enter this three-year program in summer and complete the major portion of their work during three annual eight-week summer residencies of intensive, individually focused studio experience. In addition to exploration in the major, students pursue interdisciplinary investigations in studio topics common to each discipline and address contemporary critical issues and methodology in University graduate seminars. During the fall and spring semesters, students complete independent studios, writing and research projects, and independent thesis preparations. Regional students maintain contact with studio faculty and present studio work at specific intervals throughout the off-campus semester and at final critiques held at the end of the fall and spring semesters. Non-regional students meet with assigned studio mentors in their geographic region for concurrent periodic and final critiques of in-progress and completed work. Off-campus writing and research projects are completed via mail or email communication with seminar faculty. A final thesis review and exhibition is held following completion of the third summer.

Year One Credits: 21

Summer Year I, Credits: 12

GRFA 613 - Graduate Drawing

Advanced studio develops and expands the student's visual language and skills while challenging their conceptual approach to drawing by examining and applying the use of materials and methods having historic and cultural origins. Formerly FA 611

Fall Year I, Credits 4.5

GRFA 611 - Independent Studio I

Intended to assist students in establishing independent production in their major discipline while acquiring the ability to integrate studio production with the demands of off-campus life. At the conclusion of Summer I and subsequently, Winter Critique I, the student and faculty mentor agree on a plan of work to be pursued during the off-campus semester, which is a continuation of work begun in the previous semester. The students are required to propose a direction for their investigations and have access to off-campus studio space in which to carry out the proposal. Enrollment in the Independent Studio requires a commitment of 150 hours, equivalent to 10 hours of studio activity per week during the 15-week off-campus semester. The studio mentor meets with the student five times during the semester at three-week intervals, reviewing the student's progress for a 1/2 hour session. The first meeting may take place at the mentor's studio. The last meeting is the final critique of the semester, which takes place at the Winter Critique held at the University. Formerly FA 691

Summer Year II, Credits: 12

- GRXX 611- Major Studio in Ceramics, Painting, or Sculpture Credits: 6 cr
See Notes Below
- Elective Credits: 3 cr

Select one of the following two:

GRAD 650 - University Seminar: Structure and Metaphor

An interdisciplinary seminar in which students from the several graduate programs examine theoretical issues of structure and metaphor in relation to art and design. Topics include cognition and perception, meaning and representation, and systems of organization and expression. (May be taken to satisfy Aesthetics and Art Criticism co-requisites for the MAT program.) Formerly GR 691

Prerequisites & Notes

Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

GRAD 651 - University Seminar: Art and Society

An interdisciplinary seminar in which students from all graduate programs examine theoretical issues relating to the place of art and design in society. Topics include the social role of the artist/designer, public policy and the arts, issues of post-modernism, and aesthetic and ethical implications of emerging arts communication technologies. (May be taken to satisfy Sociology/Anthropology corequisite for the MAT program.) Formerly GR 692

Prerequisites & Notes

Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Continuation Critique

Fall Year II, Credits: 4.5

GRFA 781 - Thesis Writing Project I

The Thesis Writing Project is a corequisite of Thesis Preparation I and II, and takes place during the fall and spring off-campus semesters. Research for the Thesis Writing Project is intended to inform the student's second-year Independent Studio activity, which focuses on identifying and developing potential directions for the thesis exhibition and written thesis. The student is expected to consider issues raised during the previous summer's seminar that are particularly relevant to the more focused direction of their studio work. The student independently formulates a proposal and bibliography for a formal paper to be based upon the more developed direction of their work. The range of issues considered for further investigation may include aesthetic, conceptual, technical, or visual culture issues as well as the relationship of the major work to other disciplines. Formerly FA 781

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: GRFA 622 Corequisite: GRFA 783

Open to majors in the Summer MFA program only. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

GRFA 783 - Thesis Preparation I

Following the successful completion of Summer II and the MFA Candidacy Review, the student is declared a candidate by the graduate faculty and may begin independently producing a body of work intended for eventual presentation in a thesis exhibition following the successful completion of Summer III. In consultation with the studio mentor, the student submits Thesis Preparation Plan I, identifying and describing a direction of investigation to be undertaken during the fall semester. The student is expected to identify specific issues to be addressed: intended focus of the work, considerations of technique, materials, scale, location, etc. The student must propose a personal timetable for accomplishing the thesis and identify the sources that will be used in preparation for the exhibition. Enrollment in Thesis Preparation I and II requires a commitment of 150 hours, equivalent to 10 hours of studio activity per week during the 15-week off-campus semester. Formerly FA 793

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to majors in the Summer MFA program only. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 5 hrs

Spring Year II, Credits: 4.5

GRFA 782 - Thesis Writing Project II

The Thesis Writing Project is a corequisite of Thesis Preparation I and II, and takes place during the fall and spring off-campus semesters. Research for the Thesis Writing Project is intended to inform the student's second-year Independent Studio activity, which focuses on identifying and developing potential directions for the thesis exhibition and written thesis. The student is expected to consider issues raised during the previous summer's seminar that are particularly relevant to the more focused direction of their studio work. The student independently formulates a proposal and bibliography for a formal paper to be based upon the more developed direction of their work. The range of issues considered for further investigation may include aesthetic, conceptual, technical, or visual culture issues as well as the relationship of the major work to other disciplines. Formerly FA 782

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: GRFA 781 Corequisite: GRFA 783

Open to majors in the Summer MFA program only. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

GRFA 784 - Thesis Preparation II

In consultation with the studio mentor, thesis candidates propose further development of directions begun in studio work the previous semester by submitting Thesis Preparation Plan II for the spring semester to the mentor. Formerly FA 794

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: GRFA 783

Open to majors in the Summer MFA program only. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 5 hrs

Year Three Credits: 18

Summer Year III, Credits: 12

GRAD 750 - University Seminar: Criticism

An interdisciplinary seminar in which advanced graduate students from various disciplines in the visual arts further examine the nature of image-making with particular attention to the theories and applications of criticism. Formerly GR 791

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to graduate students in the College of Art and Design only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

GRFA 740 - Professional Practices

This course is designed to familiarize students with methods, practices, and professional standards in preparation for the Thesis Exhibition and eventual entry into the visual arts professions. Formerly FA 612

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to majors in the Summer MFA program only. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

- GRXX 711 - Major Studio in Ceramics, Painting, or Sculpture Credits: 6 cr

Fall Year III, Credits: 6

GRFA 785 - MFA Thesis Exhibition

The MFA degree certifies that the artist has attained a high level of competence and independent judgment in the discipline and is qualified to stand with his/her mentors as a master artist. The thesis exhibition and accompanying written statement are intended to serve as a demonstration of this mastery. During the final semester, criticism-based research is undertaken as a continuation of the summer seminar in Criticism and is intended to assist the MFA candidate in completing the written component of the thesis requirements. Formerly FA 795

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: GRCR 711, GRPT 711 or GRSC 711

Open to majors in the Summer MFA program only.

Credits: 6 cr, 6 hrs

Note:

Prefixes (GRXX) for the major studio courses reflect the student's area of concentration: Ceramics (CR), Painting (PT), or Sculpture (SC).

Ceramics, Painting, or Sculpture Electives

Recommended electives include but are not limited to:

AEDU 602 - History of Ideas in Art and Museum Education

Seminar on major issues and trends in the history of art and museum education, with an emphasis on child-centered and content-centered theories and the theoretical antecedents of Discipline-Based Art Education, the Visual Culture movement, and standards-based education. Formerly AE 602

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to graduate Art Education and Museum Studies majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

GRFA 614 - Studio Topics

This course brings together students from each of the major disciplines to explore studio issues common to all visual arts. Formerly FA 610

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: GRFA 613

Open to majors in the Summer MFA program only. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 5 hrs

GRLA 631 - American Art Since 1945

(See course description under LAAH 831.) In order to receive graduate credit, graduate students are expected to exceed undergraduate course expectations by applying the skills and competencies outlined in the syllabus to graduate-level concepts that typically relate to their major program of study. In this regard, graduate students taking this graduate elective are required to meet with the instructor prior to the start of class to determine and outline the nature of the requirements to be met. Formerly HU 648

Prerequisites & Notes

Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 831 - American Art Since 1945

In 1945, World War II ended and the focus of modern art shifted from Paris to New York City. The course begins with Abstract Expressionism; studies other major American styles, such as pop art and minimalism; and concludes with post-modernist development such as performance and decoration by artists. Graduate students may register for this course under GRLA 631. Formerly HU 448A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 832 - European Art Since 1945

Art since World War II has been dominated by the New York market and by the issue of abstraction; in Europe, however, artists continued to use the human figure as a vehicle for social and ethical concerns, and, more recently, their engagement has become a model for younger artists in both Europe and America. The course will look at crafts and book arts as well as fine arts; it will also make use of plays and films. Formerly HU 448B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 970 - Major Artists

The course concentrates on a single artist or a group of related artists. Among the artists who have come under this intense investigation have been Donatello, Michelangelo, Rembrandt, and Picasso. The course has been designed to give students an in-depth knowledge of one artist's life and art or the artists of a single school. Formerly HU 456

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 Repeatable for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Modern Dance - Bachelor of Fine ArtsProgram Total Credits: 128

The Bachelor of Fine Arts (BFA) degree in Dance is a program designed for those students who wish to prepare for professional careers in dance performance and/or choreography. The BFA in Dance program is normally completed in four years of full-time study with a total requirement of 128 credits. Modern Dance majors further develop technique, repertoire, and composition in the area of Modern Dance. In addition, Modern Dance Majors also pursue nonmajor studies in either Ballet or Jazz Dance.

Junior Year Credits: 33

Fall Credits: 17

- DAPF XXX - Dance for Non-Majors Credits: 2 cr
- Elective Credits: 1 cr
- Liberal Arts Credits: 6 cr

DAPF 331 - Modern Dance V

Continuation of DACR 231 & 232. Formerly DA 303A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: DACR 232

Open to Modern and Dance Education majors only.

Credits: 4 cr, 7.5 hrs

DAPF 363 - Improvisation II

Individual improvisations are performed on themes with objects in restricted or altered spaces and times. Various structures are used for group improvisation. Free improvisation with live music is stressed. Required of students majoring in Modern Dance. Formerly DA 322A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: DACR 164

Open to Modern and Dance Education majors only.

Credits: 1 cr, 1.5 hrs

DACR 361 - Dance Composition: Duets

Continuation of DACR 261. Problem-solving and analysis of materials through individual projects. Special emphasis on choreography for duets. Formerly DA 317A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: DACR 261

Open to majors in the School of Dance only.

Credits: 2 cr, 3 hrs

Select one course from the following two:

- DAPF 8XX - Dance Ensemble Credits: 1 cr

DAPF 335 - Modern Repertory I

A study of the contemporary and/or classical repertory by resident or guest choreographers or notators, as well as the viewing, discussion, and analysis of great works on video and film. Formerly DA 305A

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Modern and Dance Education majors only. Repeatable for credit.

Credits: 1 cr, 4.5 hrs

Spring Credits: 16

- DAPF XXX - Dance for Non-Majors Credits: 2 cr
- Electives Credits: 2 cr
- Liberal Arts Credits: 3 cr

DAPF 332 - Modern Dance VI

Continuation of DACR 231 & 232. Formerly DA 303B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: DAPF 331

Open to Modern and Dance Education majors only.

Credits: 4 cr, 7.5 hrs

DAPF 364 - Improvisation III

Individual improvisations are performed on themes with objects in restricted or altered spaces and times. Various structures are used for group improvisation. Free improvisation with live music is stressed. Required of students majoring in Modern Dance. Formerly DA 322B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: DACR 164

Open to Modern and Dance Education majors only.

Credits: 1 cr, 1.5 hrs

DACR 362 - Dance Composition: Group Forms

Continuation of DACR 261. Problem-solving and analysis of materials through individual projects. Special emphasis on group choreography. Formerly DA 317B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: DACR 261

Open to majors in the School of Dance only.

Credits: 2 cr, 3 hrs

DACR 375 - Theater Functions

A basic production course dealing with concepts of lighting and set design for dance. Students are required to gain practical experience by working in the theater on dance concerts during the year. Formerly DA 319

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to majors in the School of Dance only.

Credits: 1 cr, 1.5 hrs

Select one course from the following two:

- DAPF 8XX - Dance Ensemble Credits: 1 cr

DAPF 336 - Modern Repertory II

A study of the contemporary and/or classical repertory by resident or guest choreographers or notators, as well as the viewing, discussion, and analysis of great works on video and film. Formerly DA 305B

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Modern and Dance Education majors only. Repeatable for credit.

Continuation of DAPF 331 & 332. Formerly DA 403A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: DAPF 332

Open to Modern and Dance Education majors only.

Credits: 4 cr, 7.5 hrs

DAPF 481 - Dance Production I

Designed to assist senior students in meeting their graduation performance requirement. Each student participates in the rehearsal, performance, and technical aspects of the senior graduation concerts. Students are expected to take major responsibilities for the production of these programs. Formerly DA 419A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: DAPF 312, DAPF 332 or DAPF 322

Open to majors in the School of Dance only.

Open to Modern and Dance Education majors only.

Credits: 4 cr, 7.5 hrs

DAPF 482 - Dance Production II

Designed to assist senior students in meeting their graduation performance requirement. Each student participates in the rehearsal, performance, and technical aspects of the senior graduation concerts. Students are expected to take major responsibilities for the production of these programs. Formerly DA 419B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: DAPF 312, DAPF 332 or DAPF 322

Open to majors in the School of Dance only.

Credits: 2 cr, 3 hrs

DACR 470 - Survey of the Business of Dance

Emphasizes the development of tools and skills necessary for realizing individual professional goals, vehicles and processes for change in the various fields of dance within our society. This course develops an awareness of managing life and work as a professional in dance. Topics include basic business principles as well as career self-management and an overview of career opportunities. Guest speakers include faculty and staff from within the University as well as experts from the field. Formerly DA 430

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: DACR 212, DACR 232 or DACR 222

Open to majors in the School of Dance only.

Credits: 2 cr, 2 hrs

Liberal Arts Distribution

Note all Liberal Arts courses are 3.0 credits.

- Liberal Arts Electives Credits: 12 cr

DACR 151 - Dance History I

The study of the interaction between dance and the society in which it develops, emphasizing the changing role and nature of dance. Course deals with dance from the Renaissance through Diaghilev's Ballet Russe. Dance History II surveys dance from pre-World War II to the present. Formerly DA 211A

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to majors in the School of Dance.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

DACR 152 - Dance History II

The study of the interaction between dance and the society in which it develops, emphasizing the changing role and nature of dance. Course deals with dance from the Renaissance through Diaghilev's Ballet Russe. Dance History II

surveys dance from pre-World War II to the present. Formerly DA 211B

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to majors in the School of Dance.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

DACR 250 - Survey of Music

A survey of the history of music from ancient to modern including jazz. Formerly DA 117

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to majors in the School of Dance.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 101 - First-Year Writing I

First part of a year-long writing, reading and research course that teaches the fundamental skills of the responsible student-scholar. Students practice the kinds of academic writing, textual analysis, and library and Internet research required of university students and curious learners of any age. The first term explores writing from literature, philosophy, and art.

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 102 - First-Year Writing II

Continuation of LACR 101. During this term an inquiry-based research paper is the focus. A similar curriculum is examined in the context of history, literature, theory, philosophy, and art from a chosen period.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 101 or LACR 009

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 210 - Texts & Contexts: Perspectives on the Humanities

Perspectives on the Humanities addresses significant works from the ancient world, the Renaissance, the Enlightenment and Romantic periods, and the present day. The course serves five functions: to help students develop their skills in critical reading and writing; to introduce study of traditionally defined periods in the history of culture; to introduce a thematic approach to Humanities topics; to examine key primary texts from various periods and consider them alongside comparable art works; to explore the possibility that conventional ideas of period studies are open to challenge and reinterpretation.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 22X - Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT)

The Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT) serves as a foundation for future studies in the natural and social sciences, in mathematics, and for life-long learning. Scholarship in these scientific disciplines has influenced our culture in significant ways — both directly as a result of ongoing research and indirectly as new scientific ideas and theories are developed and applied within the context of important issues and concerns in the larger society.

Prerequisites & Notes

For all SIFT courses, student must have first matriculated at UArts after Fall 2005. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam. Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

This is a description of the SIFT course category. Any course numbered LACR 22- will meet this requirement. For example:

- LACR 221 SIFT: Problem Solving

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPI 8XX - Liberal Arts Period Interpretation - Pre-20th Century

Period Interpretations are an array of interdisciplinary courses that explore the process by which we understand cultural areas. Students consider both conventional and innovative interpretations of cultural history. All students are required to take two Period Interpretation courses, one 20th Century, and one pre-20th Century. Most students will take PI courses in the junior and/or senior years.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 and LACR 210

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPI 9XX - Liberal Arts Period Interpretation - 20th Century

Period Interpretations are an array of interdisciplinary courses that explore the process by which we understand cultural areas. Students consider both conventional and innovative interpretations of cultural history. All students are required to take two Period Interpretation courses, one 20th Century, and one pre-20th Century. Most students will take PI course in the junior and/or senior years.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR*102 and LACR*210

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASM 921 - Dynamic Anatomy

The structure of the body as it relates to form (size, shape, and proportion) and support (posture, position, and movement). In-depth exploration of the location, orientation, and actions of the major muscle groups, joints, and bones, and how they differ by gender through the life cycle. Formerly HU 281

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 Priority enrollment to majors in the School of Dance.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Multidisciplinary Fine Arts - Bachelor of Fine Arts

Program Total Credits: 123

This multidisciplinary option is for the student interested in working across media and who is interested in research, cultural studies, and exploratory models of art making. This major involves 18 credits in a core of multidisciplinary classes and 15 credits in a discipline emphasis which supplies depth of studio experience. The discipline emphasis can be chosen from one of the program areas in Fine Arts, Crafts, or Media Arts.

The core multidisciplinary classes will begin in the spring term of the sophomore year and will involve class research and studio. Junior year will consist of a class addressing issues of cultural relevance with lectures by experts in their respective fields combined with studio work that responds to the presentations. There will also be a core class on contemporary issues in art during the junior year. Senior year will be more individualized study leading toward a senior thesis exhibition.

Foundation Year Credits: 33

Foundation students are eligible to select any College of Art and Design major program regardless of the Foundation sequence they attend.

FOUNDATION

Fall Credits: 16.5

Students entering the Foundation program through midyear admission (spring semester) will enroll in these courses for the spring semester, and then take their second Foundation semester during the Summer Foundation semester, May/June.

- Elective Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

FNDP 111 - Drawing

Drawing is approached as a process by which the student examines and investigates the visual world. Line, mark, and shape are among the drawing elements emphasized in the first semester. Students observe the form and structure of various subjects while they improve their skills, strengthen their vision, and begin to define their drawing vocabulary. Graphite pencils and a range of appropriate papers are the most frequently used materials. Focus is on the challenges and rewards of developing perceptual skills. Formerly FP 110

Prerequisites & Notes

Instructor permission required. Open to Foundation majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FNDP 151 - Two-Dimensional Design

This course introduces the fundamental language of the visual arts within the two-dimensional plane. The first semester defines and investigates the visual elements of point, line, shape, pattern, and value. These fundamental elements are analyzed as independent units and brought together supporting and animating one another in a variety of formats. The investigation of compositional forces, interactions of shape with format, historic origins, mathematical structures, and time-based and sequential concepts are explored. Perceptual skills are developed using a variety of traditional and digital media. Examination of principles of movement in two-dimensional space using animated imagery and digital animation software is incorporated. The discovery of the power of the underlying fundamentals and their application defines the more complex subject of this class. Formerly FNDP 121

Prerequisites & Notes

Instructor permission required. Open to Foundation majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FNDP 161 - Three-Dimensional Design/Time Motion

An introduction to the fundamental principles of three-dimensional and time-based work. Concepts of space, movement, mass, volume, the qualities and properties of materials as well as kinetic works are explored using traditional and digital processes. As the semester progresses the construction of three-dimensional objects emphasizing serial and sequential concepts combines with the use of video for motion capture and other means of exploring fundamental time-based works. The course emphasis is on processes of thinking and planning, thoughtful articulation of form, principles of perception and an appreciation and refinement of acuity in regards to static and kinetic forms. Formerly FNDP 131.

Prerequisites & Notes

Instructor permission required. Open to Foundation majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

LAAH 111 - Art History Survey I

A survey of Western visual arts and architecture from the earliest extant examples, cave painting and sculpture from Austrian and southern Europe, to the arts of the Renaissance in Europe in the fourteenth-fifteenth centuries. Students will be asked to visit and do research on the art in local museums and galleries in order to gain a foundation for the work from their textbook, and asked to place, evaluate, and comprehend the history of the world in which many of them make their art. Formerly HU 140A

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 101 - First-Year Writing I

First part of a year-long writing, reading and research course that teaches the fundamental skills of the responsible student-scholar. Students practice the kinds of academic writing, textual analysis, and library and Internet research required of university students and curious learners of any age. The first term explores writing from literature, philosophy, and art.

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Spring Credits: 16.5

- Elective Credits: 1.5 cr

Select three courses from the following four:

FNDP 112 - Drawing

Building on the sensibilities, skills, and information of FNDP 111, students refine their perceptual abilities, utilize a wider range of media, and develop additional drawing strategies. Students study complex natural and organic form, including the human figure in both line tone. Controlling proportion, building volume, engaging the illusion of space, while at the same time developing the desired quality of light and illumination are issues explored in this semester. Faculty bring skills, projects, and information developed in the two- and three-dimensional classes into the service of drawing. Formerly FP 111

Prerequisites & Notes

Instructor permission required. Prerequisite: FNDP 111

Open to Foundation majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FNDP 152 - Two-Dimensional Design

This course builds on the projects and skills established in FNDP 151. The majority of FNDP 152 is devoted to the study of color. With color comes additional visual enrichment, light and luminosity, a specialized language and the necessity to mature manual and digital skills, and control new media and concepts. The major works of the semester are based in the use of digital media as well as acrylic paints that require skills of mixing and application. Color theories are discussed, projects requiring tinting, shading, and toning clarify these basic concepts and master works are studied. Ideas developed in the class are shared with the other Foundation courses and skills from 3D and Drawing are imported to support current 2D projects. As the semester progresses, representational and non-representational images are developed as students work to integrate past experience, refine their skills of observation and explore more complex principles of organization. Instructor permission required. Formerly FNDP 122

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FNDP 151

Open to Foundation majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FNDP 162 - Three-Dimensional Design

Building on the skills, language, and sensibilities of FNDP 161, the second semester undertakes more complex projects. Some projects often involve the combining of several materials and require the assembly of multiple parts. The semester explores the challenges of scale and engages time and movement as ideas. The introduction of environmental works, setting in place new principles of three-dimensional organization, researching the order in nature and taking up the challenge of representation in three dimensions are some of the arenas in which students work. Faculty relate works and share principles with either the two dimensional, drawing, or time motion classes and attempt to harvest skills and sensibilities developed in those classes to inform of projects in Three-Dimensional Design. Formerly FNDP 132

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FNDP 161

Open to Foundation majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FNDP 171 - Time and Motion

Building on the concepts and sensibilities of FNDP 151 Two-Dimensional Design Principles and FNDP 161 Three-Dimensional Design/Time Motion, students undertake an expanded exploration of time-based art. Students develop works that explore mechanical and digital animation devices, kinetics, and the cinematic language. Projects that focus on the controlled movement of objects, the positioning of the viewer and the use of sound prepare the students for the development of increasingly complex narrative works. Students experiment with a variety of materials and media.

Prerequisites & Notes

Instructor permission required. Open to Foundation majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

LAAH 112 - Art History Survey II

Following the first half of the Survey of Western Art, this course will consider Western visual arts and architecture from the Renaissance in Europe in the fourteenth-fifteenth centuries to the present. As in the first semester, students will be asked to visit and do research on the art in local museums and galleries, and consider this more modern world as it relates to their own art and thought. They will be tested regularly and expected to write short essays about the work they have studied firsthand. Formerly HU 140B

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 102 - First-Year Writing II

Continuation of LACR 101. During this term an inquiry-based research paper is the focus. A similar curriculum is examined in the context of history, literature, theory, philosophy, and art from a chosen period.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 101 or LACR 009

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Fall Credits: 16.5

Students entering the Foundation program through midyear admission (spring semester) will enroll in these courses for the spring semester, and then take their second Foundation semester during the Summer Foundation semester, May/June.

Concepts of space, movement, mass, volume, the qualities and properties of materials as well as kinetic works are explored using traditional and digital processes. As the semester progresses the construction of three-dimensional objects emphasizing serial and sequential concepts combines with the use of video for motion capture and other means of exploring fundamental time-based works. The course emphasis is on processes of thinking and planning, thoughtful articulation of form, principles of perception and an appreciation and refinement of acuity in regards to static and kinetic forms. Formerly FNDP 131.

Prerequisites & Notes

Instructor permission required. Open to Foundation majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

LAAH 111 - Art History Survey I

A survey of Western visual arts and architecture from the earliest extant examples, cave painting and sculpture from Austrian and southern Europe, to the arts of the Renaissance in Europe in the fourteenth-fifteenth centuries. Students will be asked to visit and do research on the art in local museums and galleries in order to gain a foundation for the work from their textbook, and asked to place, evaluate, and comprehend the history of the world in which many of them make their art. Formerly HU 140A

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 101 - First-Year Writing I

First part of a year-long writing, reading and research course that teaches the fundamental skills of the responsible student-scholar. Students practice the kinds of academic writing, textual analysis, and library and Internet research required of university students and curious learners of any age. The first term explores writing from literature, philosophy, and art.

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Fall Credits: 16.5

Students entering the Foundation program through midyear admission (spring semester) will enroll in these courses for the spring semester and then take their second Foundation semester during the Summer Foundation Semester, May/June.

- Elective Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

FNDP 111 - Drawing

Drawing is approached as a process by which the student examines and investigates the visual world. Line, mark, and shape are among the drawing elements emphasized in the first semester. Students observe the form and structure of various subjects while they improve their skills, strengthen their vision, and begin to define their drawing vocabulary. Graphite pencils and a range of appropriate papers are the most frequently used materials. Focus is on the challenges and rewards of developing perceptual skills. Formerly FP 110

Prerequisites & Notes

Instructor permission required. Open to Foundation majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FNDP 151 - Two-Dimensional Design

This course introduces the fundamental language of the visual arts within the two-dimensional plane. The first semester defines and investigates the visual elements of point, line, shape, pattern, and value. These fundamental elements are analyzed as independent units and brought together supporting and animating one another in a variety of formats. The investigation of compositional forces, interactions of shape with format, historic origins, mathematical structures, and time-based and sequential concepts are explored. Perceptual skills are developed using a variety of traditional and digital media. Examination of principles of movement in two-dimensional space using animated imagery and digital animation software is incorporated. The discovery of the power of the underlying fundamentals and their application defines the more complex subject of this class. Formerly FNDP 121

Prerequisites & Notes

Instructor permission required. Open to Foundation majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FNDP 161 - Three-Dimensional Design/Time Motion

An introduction to the fundamental principles of three-dimensional and time-based work. Concepts of space, movement, mass, volume, the qualities and properties of materials as well as kinetic works are explored using traditional and digital processes. As the semester progresses the construction of three-dimensional objects emphasizing serial and sequential concepts combines with the use of video for motion capture and other means of exploring fundamental time-based works. Select one from the following two:

LACR 210 - Texts & Contexts: Perspectives on the Humanities

Perspectives on the Humanities addresses significant works from the ancient world, the Renaissance, the Enlightenment and Romantic periods, and the present day. The course serves five functions: to help students develop their skills in critical reading and writing; to introduce study of traditionally defined periods in the history of culture; to introduce a thematic approach to Humanities topics; to examine key primary texts from various periods and consider them alongside comparable art works; to explore the possibility that conventional ideas of period studies are open to challenge and reinterpretation.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 22X - Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT)

The Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT) serves as a foundation for future studies in the natural and social sciences, in mathematics, and for life-long learning. Scholarship in these scientific disciplines has influenced our culture in significant ways — both directly as a result of ongoing research and indirectly as new scientific ideas and theories are developed and applied within the context of important issues and concerns in the larger society.

Prerequisites & Notes

For all SIFT courses, student must have first matriculated at UArts after Fall 2005. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam. Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

This is a description of the SIFT course category. Any course numbered LACR 22- will meet this requirement. For example:

- LACR 221 SIFT: Problem Solving

EMDI 210 - Digital Multimedia

The elements of digital multimedia production techniques address the integration and creation of digital media for websites and alternative delivery processes such as podcasting. This course involves hands-on production experience as well as perspective on developments in this rapidly growing field through the readings and lectures. Students create projects involving digital imagery, video and sound, and animation. The first half of the semester is dedicated to creating video pieces utilizing either digital video or animating still imagery. Creation of effective sound tracks will be an important part of this process. The second half of the semester is dedicated to creating a website and utilizing compressed digital video on the Web. Software to be utilized include Photo to Movie, iMovie, Amadeus Pro, Garageband, iDVD, and Dreamweaver. There is considerable emphasis on new utilizations of digital media such as podcasts and VODcasts (video on demand) and cell phone multimedia. Graduate students may register for this course under GREM 610. Formerly EM 210

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

FACR 215 - Subjects/Formats

This is a required studio course that explores Subject/Format issues that cross over between the traditional fine arts disciplines. Students in the Painting/Drawing, Sculpture, Printmaking and Multidiscipline tracks will work from a common syllabus and develop artworks within the traditional framework of their studio base. Three projects will be assigned over the course of the semester. Each project assignment will be limited by a specified subject matter and a specified format. Each of the three project periods will conclude with a group critique. This course is sequentially linked to FACR 216 Research Practices. Course begins Spring 2009.

Prerequisites & Notes

Corequisite: Research Practices

Open to Fine Arts, Media Arts and Crafts majors within the College of Art and Design. Priority enrollment to Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

FACR 216 - Research Practices

This course is designed to develop traditional and creative research strategies necessary for contemporary art practice. Students learn to find and use information that can both generate and enhance their ideas. This kind of "information Literacy" enriches the content factor in the form/content equation essential to artworks. Using numerous resources for collecting material, research will cover historical, cultural, social, and political contexts for art ideas. Various methods will be explored for recording, classifying and representing information, such as writing, mapping, diagramming, drawing, and other notational systems. This course is directly linked to the development of studio projects outlined in

FAPR 215 Subjects/Formats.

FAMD 301 - Contemporary Issues

This seminar addresses select theories and critical ideas multidiscipline artists should know. Issues include traditional investigations of aesthetics, the history of art movements like Modernism and Post-Modernism, as well as media and visual popular culture. Connections will be made between ideas, theories, and practices that show up in the work of relevant 20th century artists and in all media including: space/time media formats such as performance, collaborations, installation arts, sound and video, etc. Emphasis is on how philosophy, art history, art criticism, and cultural studies can be used by the artist to understand the contemporary climate, not only in the art work at large, but also in the personal world of the individual artist. The goal is the illumination of connections between artists and the ideas and artistic approaches of the modern era with emphasis on the last few decades.

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority to Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MMDI 141 - Collaboration and Spontaneity

Through a series of exercises, class discussions, and readings, students explore what it means to work as part of a team. Students learn to develop environments in which the creative process is encouraged to unfold. The basic assumptions that affect the formation of collaborative groups, such as personal responsibility, authority relations, leadership issues, individual differences, competition, the development of norms, and the generation and uses of power, are experienced, explicated, and examined. Students work within this collaborative environment to explore the connections between spontaneous verbal and nonverbal communication. Formerly MM 150

FAMD 400 - Projects/Critique

This studio course begins with a series of collaborative multidisciplinary projects in the sense that the issues will be framed in such a way as to admit a variety of media approaches. The second portion of the course will focus on topical discussions encouraging students to find relevancy and validity in an analysis of historical precedents and contemporary culture. An emphasis will be placed on the development of ideas, content and presentation in preparation for the student's thesis project.

FACR 401 - Senior Fine Arts Seminar

The artist's role in historic and contemporary contexts. Issues surrounding the various purposes of art and how culture deals with artists are explored through discussion with visiting artists, alumni, and faculty. Students work toward the acquisition of a professional profile in resume, artist statement, and slide preparation. Discussion of gallery practices and portfolio presentations cultivate an awareness of professionalism and career opportunities in the fields of painting, printmaking, and sculpture. Formerly FA 460

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: FAPR 301, FAPT 302 or FASC 302

Open to Fine Arts majors only.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

FAMD 401 - Thesis

An open studio oriented toward helping the development of individual initiative where concentration in multidisciplinary studies can be developed to fruition on an advanced level. This course utilizes the previous instruction and investigation in multidisciplinary studies. Topical discussions encourage students to find relevancy and validity in an analysis of historical precedents and contemporary culture. An emphasis is placed on the development of ideas and content in the individual student's work, which is supported by a series of individual and group critiques by faculty and visiting artists. This course offers the student the opportunity to develop a body of work in preparation for portfolio and exhibition presentation. The student is expected to participate in group exhibition as well as a solo exhibition and to present a professional portfolio of work.

FASC 202 - Sculpture I

Emphasizes the fundamental and formal aspects of sculpture. Projects are assigned to help the student experience and understand the unique expressive values of mass, space, plane, line, balance, rhythm, scale, movement, and time transformation. This course also serves to introduce the student to a variety of materials and techniques. Assigned projects, group critiques, and slide lectures. Formerly SC 202

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: Completion of Foundation. Priority enrollment to Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FASC 300 - Junior Sculpture

This course is designed to help each student begin to understand his own aesthetic proclivities and to place these within an art historical context. The emotional, intellectual, philosophical, and historical implications of various movements in art history are explored in order to begin to understand their relationship to the personal artistic development of each student within the history of Sculpture. An emphasis is placed on the development of ideas and content in the individual student's work, which is supported by a series of individual and group critiques by faculty and visiting artists. Weekly class meetings will include slide talks related to current assignments, films, discussions, and field trips to exhibitions around the Philadelphia area. This will be followed by personal conferences with the instructor.

FASC 401 - Sculpture III

Terms like site-specific, monumental, genre, narrative, emblematic, environmental, etc., reflect the cluster of types of sculptural imagery. This studio-criticism course is concerned with the ideational and technical issues raised by various types of sculptural imagery that are assigned in turn. The relationship that sculptures have with the context they exist in and the purpose they serve is stressed. Formerly SC 401

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FASC 302

Open to Sculpture majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Discipline Emphasis: Fine Arts Printmaking

FAPR 201 - Relief/Monotype

Introduction to the graphic and expressive qualities of woodcut, linoleum, and collograph processes printed in monochrome and color. Monoprinting with direct drawing and painting on Plexiglass and metal plate are also explored. Formerly PR 201

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FNDP 111

Priority enrollment to Fine Arts majors. Student must have completed the first semester of their Freshman year (15 credits).

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FAPR 204 - Screenprint/Etching

The graphic qualities of expression in screenprinting and etching/intaglio are presented through historic and contemporary examples and demonstration of the methods, which convey ideas in these two media. Various stencil processes from direct-drawn to photographic and computer-generated are explored in screenprinting with water-based opaque and transparent inks. Handwork on the metal plate includes drawn drypoint, etching, and tonal processes. Emphasis is placed on the understanding of the qualities of these methods and the development of personal ideas. Formerly PR 204

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FNDP 111

Priority enrollment to Fine Arts majors. Student must have completed the first semester of their Freshman year (15 credits).

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FAPR 304 - Book Arts: Concept and Structure

An opportunity to explore the integration of type and relief image in unique and editioned book structures. Hands-on experience in dealing with composition (metal) type and computer typesetting is on an intermediate level. Relief printing, photopolymer plates, color reduction printing, and related traditional and contemporary methods of multiple image making are pursued. Special emphasis on development of a personal visual language. Formerly PR 307

Prerequisites & Notes

Students must have completed the first semester of their Freshman year (15 credits). Priority enrollment to Printmaking majors and minors; and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FAPR 305 - Lithography

All of the basic techniques of drawing, imagemaking and printing skills that are necessary to produce hand-pulled lithographs from stones and plates are taught. An emphasis is placed on visual expression and development of ideas through group discussions and critiques. Formerly PR 300

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: FAPR 201 and FAPR 204

Priority enrollment to Printmaking and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FAPR 401 - Advanced Workshop

Students continue to develop their ideas, images, and technique while establishing their direction and personal original expression. The workshop atmosphere permits a comfortable handling of all procedures and printmaking processes. Students are encouraged to be involved with adjacent expressive means such as drawing, painting, sculpture, photography, and crafts in combination with printmaking. Formerly PR 400

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FAPR 305

Open to Printmaking and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Discipline Emphasis: Media Arts Photography

MAPH 201 - Introduction to Photography I

Introduction to basic concepts, processes, and techniques of black-and-white photography, including camera operation, exposure, darkroom procedures, lighting, and their controlled applications of these techniques. Emphasis is upon the normative standard of photographic rendering. Formerly PF 211A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite for all upper-level photography courses. Priority enrollment to Media Arts majors; Multidisciplinary Fine Arts, Photo and Photo Studio minors. Not recommended for Foundation students.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAPH 202 - Introduction to Photography II

While consolidating the student's control of the medium, this course introduces the student to a departure from normative photographic rendering, techniques, and modes of expression and form. Strong emphasis on manipulation of materials, including traditional photographic methods as well as an introduction to computer manipulation. Formerly PF 211B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAPH 282, MAPH 201 or MAPH 221

Priority enrollment to Media Arts majors; Multidisciplinary Fine Arts and Photo and Photo Studio minors. Not recommended for Foundation students.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAPH 301 - Junior Photography Workshop

Exploration of photographic imagery through a series of problems aimed at personal vision and creative growth. Formerly PF 311A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAPH 202

Open to Photo and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors; Photo and Photo Studio minors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAPH 311 - Digital Photography Workshop

Concentrates on the production of creative digital photography; students are encouraged to experiment with new tools and techniques. Film and print scanners, CD-ROM discs, and digital cameras are used to produce images that are critiqued on the basis of both technical proficiency and aesthetic accomplishment. Portfolios are printed on digital output machines and four-color offset. Frequent readings, lectures, and site visits expand the ongoing studio experience. Formerly PF 315

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAPH 202

MAPH 282 - Photography for Illustrators

This course introduces Illustration majors to the fundamental techniques used in black-and-white photography, including camera operation, developing, and printing, as well as photographic digital imaging. Emphasis is placed on film selection and lighting for both the studio and environmental shooting. The fundamentals of Photoshop are employed for digital image manipulation. Lectures and projects are designed to provide the tools necessary for illustrators who wish to use photography in their work. Formerly PF 209

Prerequisites & Notes

Not open to Photography majors. Priority enrollment to Illustration and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors and Photo minors. Not recommended for Foundation students.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Discipline Emphasis: Media Arts Film

MAFL 201 - Introduction to Film I

A hands-on introduction to the principles and techniques of media production: shooting 16mm film and digital video, developing a sensitivity to the nuances of movement, understanding lighting and exposure, composition, and the logic of editing. We also survey the historical and aesthetic development of the medium in order to expand the students' sense of the possibilities of the medium. Formerly PF 210A

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Media Arts and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors, Film/Digital Video minors. Not recommended for Foundation students.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAFL 202 - Introduction to Film/Digital Video

This course offers an introduction to the basic practices of digital video editing and further creative exploration of the art of moving images. Students perform timing, staging, and blocking exercises to develop a feel for direction, experiment with more advanced film strategies, learn to edit digital video, and investigate relationships between sound and image. A final project integrates these explorations creatively. Formerly PF 210B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 201

Priority enrollment to Media Arts and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors, Film/Digital Video minors. Not recommended for Foundation students

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAFL 301 - Junior Cinema Production I

First part of a year-long film and digital video production class emphasizing independent filmmaking techniques and concepts. Students explore cinematic ideas through structured and personal filmmaking assignments that emphasize keen visual thinking, story development, and an understanding of film form and film language. Students are taught professional lighting, 16mm sync sound camera technologies, editing and soundtrack strategies, and laboratory procedures. Students also view and analyze significant films. Formerly PF 310A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 202

Open to Film/Digital Video majors and minors; and Film/Animation majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAFL 331 - Experimental Video

An intermediate-level course in digital audio and video production. In the context of screenings and readings drawn from the history of experimental media, students learn to use various digital and optical strategies to approach a variety of thematic issues. This course is a venue for the production of short, aesthetically energized works for a variety of screening environments, and encourages collaboration with Dance and Music majors. Formerly PF 322

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 202

Open to Film/Digital Video majors and minors; and Film/Animation majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Select one of the following three:

MACR 443 - Time: A Multidisciplinary Seminar

The concept of Time considered from a multidisciplinary perspective, drawing on readings in philosophy, literature, psychology, sociology, and film theory. Relevant works in film and video are screened. Students are responsible for a final term paper that interrelates two or more of the readings with one of the screened works. Formerly PF 424

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 302 or MAAN 302

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAFL 311 - Sync-Sound for Narrative Film

Students in this course explore creative sound design in finished films with instruction and practice in the use of sound recording equipment, sound transfers, building and editing multiple synchronous sound tracks, and preparing for the sound mix. Students work in groups to create and complete a five-minute sync sound film that incorporates the concept of "sound design." Formerly PF 320

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 202

Open to Film/Digital Video and Film/Animation majors; and Narrative Video minors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAFL 320 - Film Forum: Selected Topics

Concentrated study of a particular area of film, video, or animation. Courses deal with specific issues and have included: film theory; seminars in sound and installation; studies in Japanese media; the history of video art; and the history of animation. Formerly PF 324

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 202 or MAAN 202

Open to Media Arts and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors only. Repeatable for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Discipline Emphasis: Media Arts Animation

MAAN 201 - Introduction to Animation I

Through a series of drawn exercises concentrating on timing, movement, and weight, the student acquires an understanding of fundamental animation principles. Formerly PF 212A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FNDP 111, FNDP 121 or MMDI 101

Priority enrollment to Media Arts and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors and Animation minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAAN 202 - Introduction to Animation II

Students are introduced to under-the-camera animation using varied mediums such as puppets, cut-outs, and painting-on-glass. Special attention is given to non-narrative approaches to animation. A final project is created using one or more of the techniques explored during the semester. Formerly PF 212B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAAN 201 or MAFL 201

Priority enrollment to Media Arts and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors and Animation minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAAN 301 - Junior Animation Workshop I

The first half of this course is devoted to the creation of a short, client-based project. The second half involves an interdisciplinary group project aimed at refining students' knowledge of animation movement design. Formerly PF 312A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAAN 202

Open to Animation majors and minors; Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors and Film/Animation majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAAN 302 - Junior Animation Workshop II

This course focuses on the creation of a personal, 1.5 minute animated piece, starting from initial conception and ending with final output to digital or film media. Stages in the production cycle include storyboarding, animatics, animation, inking and painting, sound image editing, and final output. Formerly PF 312B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAAN 301

Open to Animation majors and minors; Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors and Film/Animation majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Select one of the following two:

MAAN 232 - 2-D Computer Animation

Using both raster- and vector-based programs, students explore how to build 2D animation sequences in the computer and how to translate hand-drawn animation into digitally composited animated pieces. Traditional animation principles are expanded upon and reinforced using 2D computer graphics and editing programs. Digital imagery and sound are integrated in class assignments designed to explore a wide variety of 2D styles. Formerly PF 316

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAAN 231 or MMDI 102

Priority enrollment to Animation majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAAN 331 - 3-D Computer Animation

Using industry-standard 3D computer software, students learn basic modeling, texturing, lighting, movement, and rendering techniques. This course prepares students for further 3D computer coursework and allow them to utilize 3D software in the development and creation of their Junior and Senior thesis work. Formerly PF 326

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAAN 231 or MMDI 102

Open to Animation majors and minors; Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors and Film/Animation majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Discipline Emphasis: Crafts Ceramics

CRCM 211 - Introduction to Throwing

Beginning studio work using the throwing process and related glazing and firing techniques. Problems are given with an emphasis on developing each student's potential for personal expression and artistic invention. Formerly CR 211A

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs
(take twice)

CRCM 213 - Introduction to Handbuilding

Beginning studio work with clay using the handbuilding processes of slab, coil pinch, and pressing form molds, plus related glazing and firing techniques. Problems given emphasize developing each student's potential for personal expression and artistic invention. Formerly CR 212A

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit..

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs
(take twice)

CRCM 221 - Introduction to Molding & Casting

A course in modelmaking, moldmaking, and casting techniques using plaster and synthetic compounds. Emphasis is on developing proficiency in slip casting for use in the artist's studio and in industry for serial production. Formerly CR 251

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Discipline Emphasis: Crafts Fibers

CRFB 211 - Introduction to Fibers: Mixed Media

An introduction to both traditional and experimental uses of materials and structural processes in the fabric media. Assignments focus on the exploration of two- and three-dimensional forms in preparation for versatile approaches to the fibers media. A range of off-loom mixed media techniques are covered. Formerly CR 221A

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRFB 212 - Introduction to Color and the Loom

Students explore the potential of two- and three-dimensional forms in preparation for versatile approaches to the fibers media. Loom, woven structures, tapestry, and woven color are covered. Formerly CR 221B

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRFB 221 - Fabric Resist & Embellishment

Extends students' basic color and drawing vocabulary through exposure to ancient techniques and tools of Indonesia, Japan, and Africa. Fabric dyeing and resist methods are addressed, including drawing and stamping with waxes, stitching and binding with threads, etc. Students acquire a broader sense of "mark-making," an understanding of the special color properties of dyes, and an ability to use non-Western traditional craft methods to create contemporary art fabric. Formerly CR 277

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRFB 222 - Introduction to Constructed Surface

Through a series of developmental assignments, students are provided with a solid technical and conceptual base in the fabric media. Non-loom constructions, color, and multifiber dye techniques are covered. Formerly CR 222

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRFB 223 - Fabric Printing

Focuses on the fundamental principles of translating drawings and photographs into designs and images for screen-printed fabric, using a fine art approach. Exploration of myriad possibilities in creating fabric using silkscreen and fabric pigments. Formerly CR 278

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

CRFB 227 - Experimental Costume and Performance

The garment provides a tangible yet pliable boundary between the space of self and the space of the world. In this introductory fibers studio, students learn costume construction fundamentals (hand and machine sewing, millinery, flat pattern design, etc.) and explore the garment as a vehicle for personal expression. Students are encouraged to experiment with technique, and a variety of both traditional and unconventional materials are used. Concurrent with studio work, students are introduced to the cultural, political, social, historic, and aesthetic dimensions of costume as it relates to contemporary art. The semester concludes with a collaborative performance. Formerly CR 229

Prerequisites & Notes

May be taken three times for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Discipline Emphasis: Crafts Wood

CRWD 211 - Introduction to Woodworking

Introduction to basic woodworking skills and processes, including sharpening and setting up hand tools and machinery, theory of solid wood joinery, and construction. In addition to building technical skills, emphasis is on contemporary and historical furniture design issues. Formerly CR 261A

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRWD 221 - Introduction to Furniture

This course presents a series of design problems emphasizing exploration of ideas through drawing and model making. Historic and contemporary examples are studied. Fundamental joinery techniques are covered, but the emphasis is on design exploration, imagination, and inventiveness. Students provide their own materials and some hand tools. Formerly CR 285

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRWD 223 - Wood Carving

An introductory course focused on the development of technical skills. A survey of historical and contemporary precedents exposes the student to the potential wood carving has as a vehicle for artistic expression. The class covers the selection, use, and sharpening of tools, materials and choice of woods, lamination and joinery used for carving, finishing techniques, and letter carving. Students provide their own carving tools. Formerly CR 286

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

CRWD 224 - Low-Tech Furniture

Using materials gathered from both nature and the urban environment, students make chairs, tables and other functional objects. Inspired by the design inherent in natural materials, branches and twigs, artifacts, and found objects, the class conceives and executes a series of projects. Basic, non-technical construction methods and simple hand tools are stressed. Formerly CR 287

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRWD 311 - Advanced Wood

Covers tools, joinery, methods, and materials. Content progresses with increasing complexity, involving machining, hand tools, finishing, and surface treatments. Senior Crafts majors taking this course may choose to spend all or part of their time producing thesis work to supplement the thesis component of Crafts Projects III. Formerly CR 386

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: 6 credits from courses: CRWD 211, CRWD 212

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Or take one of the Wood courses above a second time.

Discipline Emphasis: Crafts Metals

CRMT 211 - Introduction to Jewelry

An exploration of notions of jewelry and body adornment as a means of personal expression. Projects range from precious jewelry making to adornment that extends into performance. Basic goldsmithing skills are taught as essential, while three-dimensional sketching and experimentation in mixed media are encouraged. Successful integration of design, material, and process is the goal. Projects provide students with broad exposure to the many possibilities inherent in jewelry and ornament as related to the human form. Formerly CR 241A

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRMT 221 - Introduction to Metalsmithing

Metal is an extremely versatile material; though hard and durable, it is quite malleable and easily worked. This course covers direct working of metal. Sheet, wire, bar, and rod are given form by hammering, seaming, and bending, etc. The majority of work is done in bronze, brass and copper, though steel, stainless steel, aluminum, and precious metals may be used as well. Contemporary issues addressed include the object as sculpture, process as a source material, the importance of surface and detail, and functional objects made by artists. Formerly CR 242

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRMT 226 - Introduction to Metal Casting

Wax working for jewelry and small-scale sculpture, rubber molding processes, and lost wax/centrifugal casting of bronze and (optional) sterling silver and karat golds. Extensive technical information for students who are design-oriented. Assignments allow projects in all formats (design, one-of-a-kind jewelry, fine art, etc.) and students are encouraged to use techniques innovatively and expressively. Students taking the course a second time choose one aspect of the course (wax carving, wax modeling, wax impressions, vulcanized rubber molding, etc.) and produce a small body of work investigating that aspect in depth. Procedures for sending out work to professional contract casters are also covered. Formerly CR 280

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Select two of the following courses (not offered every semester):

CRMT 225 - Enameling

Enameling is the art of firing colored glass onto metal. The transparent, opaque, and opalescent enamel colors are layered to produce richness, detail, depth, and brilliance in this durable and painterly medium. Traditional techniques such as cloisonné, grisaille, Limoges, basse taille, plique-à-jour, and champlevé, as well as contemporary and experimental processes are explored. Once they have gained a facility with the medium, students produce jewelry or small jewel-like paintings. Formerly CR 249

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRMT 227 - Introduction to Electroforming

Electroforming is the process of electrically depositing (plating) metal onto a non-metallic surface or object. Metal may be built up on non-porous materials such as wax, plastic, Styrofoam, glass, stone, etc. Wax or foam may be removed from electroformed objects to leave a strong, lightweight, self-supporting metal shell. Students work in electroformed copper; assignments are structured to allow students to work in accustomed formats and/or combine electroforming with other materials or processes. Formerly CR 281

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRMT 228 - Metal Furniture

This course questions our cultural assumptions about furniture. Are common furniture forms dictated by functional requirements or arbitrary choices that have become traditional? Metal (steel, aluminum, bronze) is used for its strength and versatility; other materials are combined with metal according to student ideas and interests. Techniques include bending/forming of rod, tube and plate, oxyacetylene welding, brazing, mechanical fasteners/tap and die, riveting, and light blacksmithing. Typical student projects include small tables, lamps, chairs, outdoor/public furnishings, and experimental forms. Formerly CR 282

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRMT 229 - Small Scale Steelworking

This course covers light blacksmithing, thin-sheet welding, and other techniques suitable for working steel at tabletop size. Aluminum and other metals may also be used where appropriate. The focus is on the possibilities of metal for the contemporary craftsperson. Contemporary issues include the functional object, the decorative impulse, process as a source of inspiration, and the importance of surface detail. Formerly CR 283

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Discipline Emphasis: Crafts Glass

CRGL 211 - Introduction to Glass Blowing

Through demonstrations, assignments, and tutoring by the instructor, students are guided toward mastery in off-hand blowing. Blowing of well-balanced functional and non-functional forms is emphasized. Topics covered include the use of color in glass, two- and three-dimensional surface treatment, the relationship between volume and skin of forms, blowing into molds, and working in a variety of scales. The aesthetics of contemporary and historical glass are investigated as they relate to the student's work. Formerly CR 231A

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs
(take twice)

CRGL 221 - Stained Glass

Students work with transparent and opaque glass sheet to produce both two- and three-dimensional artwork. Techniques include glass cutting and grinding, use of coming and copper foil, soldering, enameling, sandblasting and carving, and kiln-firing. Typical projects include stained glass windows or panels, containers, and shallow bowls. Formerly CR 232

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CRGL 311 - Advanced Glass

Glass is considered as an expressive medium, and development toward a personal style is encouraged. Students work with hot glass in advanced offhand work, blowing into molds, casting, and enameling, as well as advanced stained glass work and incorporation of blown and cast pieces into two- and three-dimensional structures. Formerly CR 331

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: 6 credits from courses: CRGL 211, CRGL 212, CRGL 221

Priority to Crafts majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken four times for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

(take twice)

Multidisciplinary Menu Courses

Multidisciplinary Menu Courses are all of the 200 level course listed in the Discipline Emphasis area above.

Multimedia - Bachelor of Fine Arts

Program Total Credits: 123

Freshman Year Credits: 33

Fall Credits: 16.5

- CMAC Core/Discipline History (see list below) Credits: 3 cr
- Elective Credits: 1.5 cr

MMDI 101 - Visual Communication Studio

All communication takes place through language. However, not all language uses words. This course allows students to harness the power of visual language in order to convey messages and meaning. The elements of drawing and two-dimensional design that are covered include point, line, shape, composition, texture, color, type, and image. Although non-digital mediums are addressed, the exploration of digital tools for the screen is a primary goal. Individual creativity is stressed. Formerly MM 110

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MMDI 111 - Introduction to Interface Design

The software interface represents the focal point of user interaction with the various modes of multimedia communication. Readings by interface theorists inform discussions on the evolution of the software interface, conceptual models, prototypes, interaction design, deliverables, and basic concepts of human-computer interaction. Avenues for pursuing interactive media design in entertainment, publishing, and education are also addressed. Current technologies, including the trend from soft to hard interfaces are studied, in terms of their potential short- and long-term influence on communication and multimedia. Basic methods for rapid prototyping and testing are considered. Formerly MM 121

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MUSC 163 - Aural Concepts

For non-music majors. An introduction to the use of music and sound components of multimedia and their potential for enhancing communication. Recognizing the special background and needs of the non-music major student, the course examines the production of musical sound, basic notation and theory practices, and an in-depth overview of disparate musical styles illustrating the variety and depth of musical thought from around the world and its potential relationship to the visual image. Formerly MU 149A

Prerequisites & Notes

Not open to majors in the School of Music. Priority enrollment to Multimedia majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 101 - First-Year Writing I

First part of a year-long writing, reading and research course that teaches the fundamental skills of the responsible student-scholar. Students practice the kinds of academic writing, textual analysis, and library and Internet research required of university students and curious learners of any age. The first term explores writing from literature, philosophy, and art.

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Spring Credits: 16.5

- Multimedia Seminar (see list below)
- Elective Credits: 1.5 cr

MMDI 102 - Motion Graphics Studio

Motion graphics can be found in a wide range of media: broadcast, Web, animation, and film to name a few. This course allows students to explore the elements of time and space to convey messages and meaning through type, image, and sound for the screen. Individual creativity is stressed as well as the understanding and use of an industry-standard software for developing motion graphics. Both collaborative and individual exercises and assignments are given. Formerly MM 111

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 101

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MMDI 131 - Introduction to Interactive Programming

This course is an introductory programming class, appropriate for students with no prior programming experience. Traditionally, introductory programming teaches algorithmic problem-solving, where a sequence of instructions describe the steps necessary to achieve a desired result. In this course, students are trained to go beyond this sequential thinking – to think concurrently and modularly. By its end, students are empowered to write and read code for event-driven graphical user interfaces, client server chat programs, networked video games, and user interfaces. Formerly MM 101

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MUSC 460 - Introduction to MIDI and Electronic Technology

A detailed "hands-on" examination of the use of computers in the present-day composition environment. The course includes the uses of a computer, the language of MIDI, sequencing, audio sampling, analog, digital, and other forms of synthesis, and a survey of currently available music software. Strategies and technology of scoring and synchronizing to the visual image is emphasized through a final project. No prior computer or synthesis experience is needed. Formerly MU 415A

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Music and Multimedia majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 102 - First-Year Writing II

Continuation of LACR 101. During this term an inquiry-based research paper is the focus. A similar curriculum is examined in the context of history, literature, theory, philosophy, and art from a chosen period.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 101 or LACR 009

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Sophomore Year Credits: 31

Fall Credits: 15

- Elective Credits: 3 cr

Select one of the following:

LACR 210 - Texts & Contexts: Perspectives on the Humanities

Perspectives on the Humanities addresses significant works from the ancient world, the Renaissance, the Enlightenment and Romantic periods, and the present day. The course serves five functions: to help students develop their skills in critical reading and writing; to introduce study of traditionally defined periods in the history of culture; to introduce a thematic approach to Humanities topics; to examine key primary texts from various periods and consider them alongside comparable art works; to explore the possibility that conventional ideas of period studies are open to challenge and reinterpretation.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 22X - Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT)

The Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT) serves as a foundation for future studies in the natural and social sciences, in mathematics, and for life-long learning. Scholarship in these scientific disciplines has influenced our culture in significant ways — both directly as a result of ongoing research and indirectly as new scientific ideas and theories are developed and applied within the context of important issues and concerns in the larger society.

Prerequisites & Notes

For all SIFT courses, student must have first matriculated at UArts after Fall 2005. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam. Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

This is a description of the SIFT course category. Any course numbered LACR 22- will meet this requirement. For example:

- LACR 221 SIFT: Problem Solving

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

or

Spring Credits: 16

- Electives Credits: 3 cr

MMDI 220 - Documentation and Presentation

In this course, students learn how to document their work for professional presentation. It focuses on issues relating to digital documentation and includes skills such as documenting projects, cross platform digital presentation, editing trailers of videos and using a copy stand. Students document previously completed multimedia work and then present that work. Guest speakers augment classroom lectures and activities. Formerly MM 250

Prerequisites & Notes

Student must have completed the first semester of their Freshman year (15 credits).

Credits: 1 cr, 2 hrs

MMDI 320 - Business Seminar

In this course, students build on the skills learned in Documentation and Presentation. Students construct a digital portfolio of work that they have completed. They also create resumes, curriculum vitae, and project proposals. As part of this class, they participate in a mock interview for a job, go on an informational interview for an internship/job, and do a presentation in the form of their Multimedia Junior Review. Formerly MM 350

MMDI 420 - Exhibition and Promotion

In this course, students continue to build necessary professional and business skills. Students learn about promoting their work, writing business plans, applying for grants, ownership and patent issues, writing press releases, printing promotional materials, and getting their art/design shown. Students promote and exhibit their senior project to be completed in MMDI 401 or MMDI 402. Formerly MM 450

LAPI 8XX - Liberal Arts Period Interpretation - Pre-20th Century

Period Interpretations are an array of interdisciplinary courses that explore the process by which we understand cultural areas. Students consider both conventional and innovative interpretations of cultural history. All students are required to take two Period Interpretation courses, one 20th Century, and one pre-20th Century. Most students will take PI courses in the junior and/or senior years.

Prerequisites & Notes

CMAC Core/Discipline History

(must take all three)

CMMC 353 - Media Industries

This course investigates the range of organizations and economic forces involved in media production. Includes diverse production models, from mainstream and corporate, to public sector, to alternative, and comparisons with media industries in other cultural settings. The course focuses on business and policy issues and considers examples of media practice from broadcast and cable news, advertising, Hollywood and independent cinema, public media, and new media industries. The course includes a final research project. Formerly CM 260

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to College of Media and Communication students.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MMDI 141 - Collaboration and Spontaneity

Through a series of exercises, class discussions, and readings, students explore what it means to work as part of a team. Students learn to develop environments in which the creative process is encouraged to unfold. The basic assumptions that affect the formation of collaborative groups, such as personal responsibility, authority relations, leadership issues, individual differences, competition, the development of norms, and the generation and uses of power, are experienced, explicated, and examined. Students work within this collaborative environment to explore the connections between spontaneous verbal and nonverbal communication. Formerly MM 150

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

WRIT 141 - Storytelling: Theory and Practice

This course introduces students to storytelling as a way of structuring communication. Course material ranges from annual reports to ad campaigns to greeting cards to rap music to political campaigns, offering students an introduction to the many ways narrative can be exploited for a powerful effect. Students learn to apply theory and to explore the relationship of different types of media to different narrative forms. Formerly CMMC 141.

MMDI 202 - Web Design Studio

The World Wide Web is a medium where anyone with an internet connection can view and interact with websites. This course focuses on the creation of such sites through concepts and practical application of interactivity. Comprised of both lecture and practical exercises. Individual creativity is stressed as well as understanding and use of interactive devices in the communication of ideas. Both collaborative and individual exercises are assigned. Formerly MM 221

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 111

May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MMDI 212 - Game Design Studio

This course focuses on creating interactive games and exploring the concepts and practical application of game design. Games are developed for the Web, computer, and nondigital mediums. Course activities include lectures and studio practice, including completion of assignments, exercises, and projects. Individual creativity is stressed, as well as collaborative game development skills. Students leave the course having produced several games. Formerly MM 222

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 111

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MMDI 301 - Interactive Sound and Video

The course deals with the experience of producing complete multimedia installation works in a project-based environment focusing on interactive sound and video. Lectures and meetings augment this studio course. Individual creativity is stressed as well as collaboration in the creation of works through individual and group projects. Assignments vary in scale, and focus on appropriate planning and information architecture, as well as acquisition and creation of content in various media. Authoring environments used include but are not limited to MAX MSP, Isadora, and Macromedia Director. Previously introduced concepts and technology are re-explored with an emphasis on integration and effectiveness in the communication of the concept of the piece. Formerly MM 310

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 111

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Studio Choice

(must take a minimum of two courses; 6 credits)

CMMC 102 - Video Production Workshop

Acquaints students with the fundamentals of visual storytelling by providing hands-on experience translating the written word into images and sounds. Areas of study include framing images, lighting, using off-screen space and sound, editing, and postproduction. Students integrate their own writing to produce some of these projects. Formerly CM 290

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Communication, Writing for Film and Television, and Theater Management and Production majors and Web Drama minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CMMC 103 - Sound Communication

This introduction to the field of sound communication enables students to conceptualize the importance of sound in cultural life and prepares them in practical approaches to field recording and working with various types of sound. A survey of approaches to sound as a social communication through readings and a broad range of audio examples, including documentary, journalistic, theatrical, and experimental approaches. Training in digital and audio field and post-production equipment and complete practical field exercises and an intensive sound project. Formerly CM 120

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Communication and Film/Digital Video majors; and Narrative Video and Documentary Video minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 5 hrs

MAAN 232 - 2-D Computer Animation

Using both raster- and vector-based programs, students explore how to build 2D animation sequences in the computer and how to translate hand-drawn animation into digitally composited animated pieces. Traditional animation principles are expanded upon and reinforced using 2D computer graphics and editing programs. Digital imagery and sound are integrated in class assignments designed to explore a wide variety of 2D styles. Formerly PF 316

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAAN 231 or MMDI 102

Priority enrollment to Animation majors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAAN 331 - 3-D Computer Animation

Using industry-standard 3D computer software, students learn basic modeling, texturing, lighting, movement, and rendering techniques. This course prepares students for further 3D computer coursework and allow them to utilize 3D software in the development and creation of their Junior and Senior thesis work. Formerly PF 326

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAAN 231 or MMDI 102

Open to Animation majors and minors; Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors and Film/Animation majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAFL 201 - Introduction to Film I

A hands-on introduction to the principles and techniques of media production: shooting 16mm film and digital video, developing a sensitivity to the nuances of movement, understanding lighting and exposure, composition, and the logic of editing. We also survey the historical and aesthetic development of the medium in order to expand the students' sense of the possibilities of the medium. Formerly PF 210A

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Media Arts and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors, Film/Digital Video minors. Not recommended for Foundation students.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAPH 201 - Introduction to Photography I

Introduction to basic concepts, processes, and techniques of black-and-white photography, including camera operation, exposure, darkroom procedures, lighting, and their controlled applications of these techniques. Emphasis is upon the normative standard of photographic rendering. Formerly PF 211A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite for all upper-level photography courses. Priority enrollment to Media Arts majors; Multidisciplinary Fine Arts, Photo and Photo Studio minors. Not recommended for Foundation students.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MMDI 201 - Visual Concepts Studio

Visual problem solving in a digital environment. A project-based visual art/design studio that builds on skills developed in Motion Graphics Studio. This course allows students the time to concentrate on and refine the visual communications aspects of their craft through three fully realized pieces. Projects are assigned by the instructor, and conceived of and developed by the students. Projects may include: titling design and animation, visual interface design, graphic design, CD packaging design, poster and postcard design, digital painting and drawing, etc. Formerly MM 210

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 102

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MMDI 405 - Innovative Interfaces

The notion of the digital environment transcends the concept of the computer as we know it. These addresses and environments, although supported by digital technology, are non-computer-like in many respects. Building them calls for changes in the choice of interaction devices (using touch, voice, gestures, and possibly just user's intent as a basis for interaction), shape and size of computers (no boxes, but interactive surfaces), their location (floor, wall, pocket), as well as change in content structure. Using cross-disciplinary data from cognitive and computer sciences and social psychology, the students in this research/studio course focus primarily on the design and development of innovative ways of interacting with digital technology. Formerly MM 440

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 111

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

WRIT 111 - Dramatic Structure I

An intensive year-long writing course that introduces students to major principles of the three-act dramatic structure found in narrative screenplays. Topics of the course include sequences, creation of character, conflict, and setting. Students are required to complete focused and specific creative written work on a weekly basis. Workshops are held on a weekly basis. Formerly WM 113

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Writing for Film and Television and Discovery Year majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 4 hrs

Multimedia Seminars

(must take all five)

MMDI 150 - Information Concepts

Emphasis is on the importance of organizing and communicating information in a digital world. Students acquire a basic understanding of how computers operate and communicate with each other, as well as an understanding of the evolution of the personal computer and the industries that have spun out of this technology. Student assignments include readings, database projects, and written analyses. Formerly MM 130

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MMDI 250 - Survey of Multimedia

Examines the chronological evolution of digital technology and its inevitable application by the aesthetic community. Beginning with the development of digital technology in the mid-1940s, the course discusses the convergence of the scientific, military, and political environments that spawned the employment of digital technology, including the path that led to the digital dominance over analog. Includes the enhancement, exploitation, and embracing of digital technology by the corporate and aesthetic communities, the invention of the personal computer and its ancillary products, and the application of digital technologies in fields as diverse as medicine, communications, manufacturing, cognitive psychology, and in particular, the arts. Pioneers in all fields are identified and examined. Formerly MM 271

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 101

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MMDI 315 - Advanced Interface Seminar

A seminar course that builds on Introduction to Interface Design. Focuses on the issues involved in creating user interfaces in today's development platforms (hardware, software, input devices, cell phones, etc.). Lectures, discussions, readings, research, and writing constitute the body of this course. In addition to current interface trends, the process of developing the interfaces of tomorrow is addressed. Formerly MM 320

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 111

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MMDI 425 - Special Projects in Multimedia

This seminar is designed to give students direct contact with their soon-to-be peers in the various multimedia industries. The multimedia industries that may be covered include but are not limited to: fine art, interface design, installation art, game design, and electronic music. Timely and relevant issues concerning the craft, thought, and professional expectations of a multimedia artist/designer are the content of this course. Topics related to the multimedia industries in general and the instructor's specific industry experience are discussed. Readings, discussion, and a practical presentation or project make up the body of this course. Formerly MM 472

Prerequisites & Notes

Students must have completed the second semester of their Sophomore year (60 credits). May be taken three times for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

WRIT 204 - Writing for Media

A studio writing class developing skills in effective, clear, and persuasive writing in the areas of media and communication. Students work from a variety of source materials and write research papers, project proposals, project treatments, and a newspaper feature. Emphasis is on writing structure and style, editing and revising, suitability to specific audiences, and delivering material on time and at prescribed lengths. Formerly CM 211 and CMMC 204.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Priority enrollment to majors in the College of Media and Communication.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Popular electives for Multimedia students include:

From the College of Media and Communication:

CMMC 311 - Narrative Video Production Workshop

An opportunity to develop an understanding of and experience in producing narrative-based video projects. Students begin by reading essays and articles, screening scenes from films and television shows, and reviewing technical language and concepts. They learn to translate script ideas into production proposals, making clear how story ideas, characters, action, and point of view will be rendered in sound and image. Working both on their own projects and as team members, they plan production specifics and shoot/record and edit short narrative pieces in their medium and style of choice. Students present stages of production work, from planning to script to rushes to stages of edited material. Formerly CM 295

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: CMMC 101 or CMMC 102

Priority enrollment to Communication majors and Narrative Video minors. Repeatable for credit

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

CMMC 350 - Gender Images in Media

Explores representation of gender and sexuality in the media over the past century and how images of male and female both follow and create social change. Formerly CM 350

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MMDI 241 - Interactive Narrative

Introduces students to new ways of thinking about interactivity and storytelling. Students analyze how the interactive structure of an experience creates narrative. Short readings discussed in class range from Surrealist Dada and Fluxus language games to the experimental literature of Joyce and Burroughs to the literary theory of Barthes and Eco. Students examine contemporary examples of interactive media such as avatars, virtual realities, role-playing games and Internet sites. Formerly MM 223

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MMDI 499 - Multimedia Internship

Students are placed with regional companies to expose them to a professional work environment in the fields of multimedia, web design and information management. Formerly MM 499

Prerequisites & Notes

Student must have completed the first semester of their Sophomore year (45 credits). May be taken three times for credit.

Credits: 1 - 6 cr

WRIT 253 - History of Television

Provides an overview of the medium of television. The impact of television since its inception has become increasingly pervasive and has influenced an entire society through its ability to educate and entertain. Video examples of the medium are supplemented by class discussion and reading assignments. Formerly WM 253

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to CMAC majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

From the College of Performing Arts:

DAPF 830 - Modern Ensemble

Formerly DA 773

Prerequisites & Notes

Repeatable for credit. Open by audition. Only open to students in the School of Dance.

Credits: 1 - 3 cr

MUNM 111 - Guitar Class for Non-Majors I

One-hour class of guitar instruction in contemporary guitar. Course covers basic technique including fingering, scales, chords, and chord melodies. Not open to music majors specializing in guitar. Formerly MU 123A

Prerequisites & Notes

May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 1 cr, 1 hr

MUNM 131 - Composition for Non-Majors

Students develop basic skills in various aspects of composition, including form, melody, harmony, rhythm, color, texture, notation, improvisation, and orchestration. Formerly MU 111A

Prerequisites & Notes

Not open to Composition majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 1 cr, 1 hr

MUSC 461 - Recording I

A study of the recording process and the many facets of the recording studio. Designed to familiarize the student with conventional and creative recording techniques through practical experience in the studio. Formerly MU 413A

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to majors in the School of Music.

Credits: 2 cr, 2 hrs

THPD 123 - Scene & Lighting Technology

Introductory course in various phases of physical production dealing with the stage, house, backstage personnel and their duties, construction and painting of scenery, stage lighting, costumes, props, and makeup. Formerly TH 123

Prerequisites & Notes

Corequisite: THPD 125

Priority enrollment to majors in the School of Theater Arts.

Credits: 2 cr, 2 hrs

From the College of Art and Design:

FAPR 212 - Screenprinting

Introduction and investigation of stencil methods in screenprinting with water-based inks. Idea development and acquisition of visual skills in expression in color, line, and form through drawn, photographic, or computer-generated stencil processes. Formerly PR 202

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

GDES 212 - Typography Fundamentals

The course addresses the basic formal language of typography and the application of typographic principles to frame basic communication messages. Typographic investigations are achieved by both manual and digital means. Formerly GD 212

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: Completion of Foundation or MMDI 101, MMDI 102

Priority enrollment to Graphic Design majors and Typography minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

IDES 371 - Architectonics

An elective course intended as a multidisciplinary forum for the investigation, appreciation, and design of architectural space, structures, and systems. Using in-class exercises as a laboratory for creative and collaborative exchange, students learn alternative design processes, design vocabulary, user-centered experience and design. This course develops concepts and analytical studies of objects/spaces through various 2D and 3D drawing/modeling techniques and culminates in an actual built/alterd environment. Graduate students may register for this course under GRID 624. Formerly ID 312

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MACR 304 - Image and Performance

For artists and performers of all disciplines. An intensive cross-disciplinary workshop in which the students create their own short performance works using fusions of video, animation, dance, motion, and sound to explore the interactions between visual media and the performing arts. Formerly PF 331

Prerequisites & Notes

May be taken three times for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

From the Liberal Arts Department:

LAPR 951 - Art, Media and Society

A seminar exploring the identity crisis of the modern artist in the period since the industrial revolution and the rise of the middle class. Conflicts or collaborations between the fine arts and commercialism, including mass media and new technology, from Romanticism and the arts and crafts movement to Pop Art and the Web. Issues of authorship, production, quality, and permanence. Who determines taste, and why? Does high art have a future? Formerly HU 498

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPR 972 - Women and Sex Roles

An introduction to the history of women and to theories of gender. An interdisciplinary course combining history, literature, and the visual arts. Slide lectures on images of women in art, myth, and religions, from ancient times to modern. Economic and historical factors affecting how women have lived. Definitions of masculinity and femininity. The nature-nurture debate over hormonal differences. Formerly HU 497

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 876 - Psychology of Creativity

The course examines the problems involved in defining and attempting to measure creativity. The course is developmentally oriented, focusing on relationships between creativity and normal growth and development, and intelligence and personality. Problems that the artist encounters with productivity are explored, as well as the values of society toward creativity and the artist. Formerly HU 480

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LASS 871

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 931 - The City

A study of the city in history, the forces that shaped its development, and the impact the city has had on history. The American city from the seventeenth century to the present is used as the model for this study. Formerly HU 366

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Popular minors for Multimedia students include:

- E-music
- Game Design
- Narrative Video
- Photography
- Strategic Advertising
- Typography
- Web Design and Development

Multimedia Minor

The minor emphasizes the development of basic competencies in multimedia by offering students the ability to create media-rich, multisensorial, interactive experiences to complement their major course of study. The minor provides skills, concepts, and tools for students interested in multimedia as a creative and expressive art form. Majors in Multimedia and Communication may not declare a minor in Multimedia.

Requirements for the Minor

MMDI 101 - Visual Communication Studio

All communication takes place through language. However, not all language uses words. This course allows students to harness the power of visual language in order to convey messages and meaning. The elements of drawing and two-dimensional design that are covered include point, line, shape, composition, texture, color, type, and image. Although non-digital mediums are addressed, the exploration of digital tools for the screen is a primary goal. Individual creativity is stressed. Formerly MM 110

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MMDI 102 - Motion Graphics Studio

Motion graphics can be found in a wide range of media: broadcast, Web, animation, and film to name a few. This course allows students to explore the elements of time and space to convey messages and meaning through type, image, and sound for the screen. Individual creativity is stressed as well as the understanding and use of an industry-standard software for developing motion graphics. Both collaborative and individual exercises and assignments are given. Formerly MM 111

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 101

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MMDI 111 - Introduction to Interface Design

The software interface represents the focal point of user interaction with the various modes of multimedia communication. Readings by interface theorists inform discussions on the evolution of the software interface, conceptual models, prototypes, interaction design, deliverables, and basic concepts of human-computer interaction. Avenues for pursuing interactive media design in entertainment, publishing, and education are also addressed. Current technologies, including the trend from soft to hard interfaces are studied, in terms of their potential short- and long-term influence on communication and multimedia. Basic methods for rapid prototyping and testing are considered. Formerly MM 121

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MMDI 250 - Survey of Multimedia

Examines the chronological evolution of digital technology and its inevitable application by the aesthetic community. Beginning with the development of digital technology in the mid-1940s, the course discusses the convergence of the scientific, military, and political environments that spawned the employment of digital technology, including the path that led to the digital dominance over analog. Includes the enhancement, exploitation, and embracing of digital technology by the corporate and aesthetic communities, the invention of the personal computer and its ancillary products, and the application of digital technologies in fields as diverse as medicine, communications, manufacturing, cognitive psychology, and in particular, the arts. Pioneers in all fields are identified and examined. Formerly MM 271

Select one of the following:

MMDI 202 - Web Design Studio

The World Wide Web is a medium where anyone with an internet connection can view and interact with websites. This course focuses on the creation of such sites through concepts and practical application of interactivity. Comprised of both lecture and practical exercises. Individual creativity is stressed as well as understanding and use of interactive devices in the communication of ideas. Both collaborative and individual exercises are assigned. Formerly MM 221

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 111

May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MMDI 212 - Game Design Studio

This course focuses on creating interactive games and exploring the concepts and practical application of game design. Games are developed for the Web, computer, and nondigital mediums. Course activities include lectures and studio practice, including completion of assignments, exercises, and projects. Individual creativity is stressed, as well as collaborative game development skills. Students leave the course having produced several games. Formerly MM 222

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 111

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MMDI 301 - Interactive Sound and Video

The course deals with the experience of producing complete multimedia installation works in a project-based environment focusing on interactive sound and video. Lectures and meetings augment this studio course. Individual creativity is stressed as well as collaboration in the creation of works through individual and group projects. Assignments vary in scale, and focus on appropriate planning and information architecture, as well as acquisition and creation of content in various media. Authoring environments used include but are not limited to MAX MSP, Isadora, and Macromedia Director. Prerequisite: MMDI 111

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Museum Communication - Master of Arts

Program Total Credits: 45

Full-time Museum Communication students undertake a three-semester course of study and a six-week (120 hours) internship. Organized within the traditional academic semester framework, students participate in lectures, seminars, workshops, and study visits to museums, historic sites, galleries, and government cultural agencies. Courses welcome visiting scholars and museum professionals to give lectures and hold discussions groups on aspects of museum practice. The Department of Electronic Media and the College of Media and Communication contribute to graduate students' education through interdepartmental coursework, workshops, seminars, and interdisciplinary special projects. Students conclude their degree program through the submission of a written thesis and thesis defense.

Year One Credits: 30.0

Fall Credits: 15.0

GREM 601 - Electronic Media/Production I

Addresses the development of foundation computer skills in image scanning technology, desktop publishing, digital photographic technologies, and basic output procedures. Technical expertise and efficient working methodologies are applied to problems brought into the class from other design courses as well as from both individual and group-assigned projects. All software is standard to current graphic design industry practices. Meets with EMDI 201. In order to receive graduate credit, graduate students are expected to exceed undergraduate course expectations by applying the skills and competencies outlined in the syllabus to graduate-level concepts that typically relate to their major program of study. In this regard, graduate students taking this graduate elective are required to meet with the instructor prior to the start of class to determine and outline the nature of the requirements to be met. Formerly EM 601

Prerequisites & Notes

Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 600 - Museology

Introduction to the social and cultural theory underlying museum practice. The museum is studied as a dynamic institution. Its structure and functions are examined in the context of political, economic, and social change. A seminar/lecture course, students study the writings of the founders of modern museum theory focusing on the development of museums and their service to the public, learning as a central focus of contemporary museums, and the shift from private to public support and responsibility for museums. Formerly MS 600

Prerequisites & Notes

Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs. Priority enrollment to Museum Studies.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 601 - Museum Seminar: The Museum Society

Lecture/seminar course exploring the history, organization, and operation of the museum as a cultural/educational institution, an economic entity, and a management enterprise. Visiting lecturers bring a wide range of knowledge and practices from their respective institutions and consultancies to provide the student with insight into the differences between museums of different types, sizes, and missions. The course provides students with an overall understanding of the museum as an institution and an introduction to the many roles played by museum professionals. Offered in the evening. Formerly MS 501

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Museum Studies majors. Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 603 - The Museum Audience

Lecture into practice course focusing on the visitor experience through museum communications and learning. Designed to identify the characteristics of the museum visitor, the ways in which visitors experience museum exhibitions, cognitive and affective behavior, the relationship of museum exhibitions and educational programming, and the impact of institutions and visitor studies on the planning and design of institutions, museum exhibitions, and environments. Formerly MS 508

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Museum Studies majors. Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 614 - Museum Graphics

Writing, design, and production of museum graphic components. Graphic Design is defined as any visual information communicated through word and image. Formerly MS 620A

Prerequisites & Notes

Corequisite: GREM 601

Open to Museum Studies majors only. Computer literacy required.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 780 - Thesis Research

Examines the principle approaches to research. The nature of appropriate research methods for selected thesis topics; the approaches and benefits of various methodologies; and the steps in research design. Students identify a research problem, design a study, collect and analyze data, compile, interpret and report results. Formerly MS 740

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Museum Studies majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Spring Credits: 15.0

- Elective Credits: 3 cr

GRAD 651 - University Seminar: Art and Society

An interdisciplinary seminar in which students from all graduate programs examine theoretical issues relating to the place of art and design in society. Topics include the social role of the artist/designer, public policy and the arts, issues of post-modernism, and aesthetic and ethical implications of emerging arts communication technologies. (May be taken to satisfy Sociology/Anthropology corequisite for the MAT program.) Formerly GR 692

Prerequisites & Notes

Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 692 - Graduate Museum Project: Museum Communication

A culminating research project concerning museum studies, management, and exhibition. The project is completed in one semester and includes the study of research in the field. A team project with the Museum Exhibition Planning and Design, and Museum Education programs, and an individual project related to the student's main area of interest within the museum communication profession.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 702 - Issues in Museums Seminar

Presents and discusses current political and social issues, which may unexpectedly, sometimes problematically, affect museum practice, particularly in the public areas of exhibition, programming, and publications. Recent examples would include controversial exhibits, legal, gender, race, cultural, and religious issues impacting museums; and the public right to participate in the museum experience as an active contributor. Museum scholars, specialists, and university faculty offer in-depth examination of current topics. Students complete projects designed to develop professional ability to deal with emerging debates in the museum profession and the knowledge of the impact of politics and the mass culture on museum policies and practices. Formerly MS 601

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MSEM 601 or MSEM 600

Priority enrollment to Museum Studies majors. Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 783 - Thesis Development: Communication

Independent research and design in an area supporting the student's career objectives and interests.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: MSEM 780 Open to Museum Communication majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Year Two Credits: 15.0

Summer Credits: 3

MSEM 796 - Museum Internship: Museum Communication

A supervised practicum in a cooperating museum, gallery, or communication firm. The internship represents full-time employment equivalency under the mentorship of a professional. Provides practical on-site experience, in which the intern is integrated into the professional staff, assuming professional-level responsibilities and experience.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Fall Credits: 12.0

- Elective Credits: 3 cr

GRAD 650 - University Seminar: Structure and Metaphor

An interdisciplinary seminar in which students from the several graduate programs examine theoretical issues of structure and metaphor in relation to art and design. Topics include cognition and perception, meaning and representation, and systems of organization and expression. (May be taken to satisfy Aesthetics and Art Criticism co-requisites for the MAT program.) Formerly GR 691

Prerequisites & Notes

Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 641 - Museum Governance: Legal Issues, Ethics, and Museums

Legal status of the museum and its obligations to the public, governance, staffing, and policy-making as a nonprofit organization. Establishing collections policies, laws, regulations, conventions, and codes that affect acquisitions, deaccessions, loans, and collections care. The case study method is used to examine the issues, the law, and the decisions that affect today's museums. State, federal, and international legislation, common law, and the applications of administrative law in museums are examined. Examines the complex relations of museums and museum professionals with trustees, collectors, donors, dealers, outside interest groups, and artists. Formerly MS 602

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MSEM 601 or MSEM 600

Open to Museum Studies majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 784 - Thesis: Communication

Independent research and design in an area supporting the student's career objectives and interests.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MSEM 783

Open to Museum Communication majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Note:

Three credit hours of electives may be outside Museum Communication.

Museum Education - Master of Arts

Program Total Credits: 45

The Master of Arts in Museum Education is a concentrated program focused on the development and implementation of appropriate pedagogical practices and critical/interpretive skills for communicating to the public about culture and the arts. Coursework comprises three distinct areas: a broad education core addressing theory and methods, concentration in museum studies and practices, and a professional core including research and an internship with a cooperating museum.

Year One Credits: 30

AEDU 501 - Creative and Cognitive Development

This course is designed to develop skills in recognizing the developmental stages of children, adolescents, and adults according to the theories of Jean Piaget, Lawrence Kohlberg, Viktor Lowenfeld, and Erick Erickson. In addition, the course explores the learning theories of Jerome Bruner, B.F. Skinner, Howard Gardner, Madeline Hunter, and Bernice McCarthy toward understanding individual differences in creative and cognitive development and learning styles. Formerly AE 550

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Art Education majors and concentrations.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

GREM 601 - Electronic Media/Production I

Addresses the development of foundation computer skills in image scanning technology, desktop publishing, digital photographic technologies, and basic output procedures. Technical expertise and efficient working methodologies are applied to problems brought into the class from other design courses as well as from both individual and group-assigned projects. MSEM 600 - Museology

Introduction to the social and cultural theory underlying museum practice. The museum is studied as a dynamic institution. Its structure and functions are examined in the context of political, economic, and social change. A seminar/lecture course, students study the writings of the founders of modern museum theory focusing on the development of museums and their service to the public, learning as a central focus of contemporary museums, and the shift from private to public support and responsibility for museums. Formerly MS 600

Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs. Priority enrollment to Museum Studies.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 603 - The Museum Audience

Lecture into practice course focusing on the visitor experience through museum communications and learning. Designed to identify the characteristics of the museum visitor, the ways in which visitors experience museum exhibitions, cognitive and affective behavior, the relationship of museum exhibitions and educational programming, and the impact of institutions and visitor studies on the planning and design of institutions, museum exhibitions, and environments. Formerly MS 508

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Museum Studies majors. Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 614 - Museum Graphics

Writing, design, and production of museum graphic components. Graphic Design is defined as any visual information communicated through word and image. Formerly MS 620A

Prerequisites & Notes

Corequisite: GREM 601

Open to Museum Studies majors only. Computer literacy required.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 630 - Museum Education Practicum

This course is designed to develop the practiced insight and skills needed as a professional in a museum environment working with all age groups. It provides opportunities for preliminary observations and experience with professional museum educators and directors led by a professor who conducts the seminar in conjunction with the museum visits and guest speakers. Through this process students develop dynamic teaching techniques that explore and interpret information, concepts, and cultural values that a museum collection communicates. Hands-on techniques and experiences with curriculum development and methodology help students prepare for their research and internship. Formerly MS 510

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Museum Education majors. Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Spring Credits: 15

MSEM 621 - Media for Museum Communication

Computer literacy, familiarity with Macintosh operating system required. A laboratory/workshop course on utilization of appropriate technological media, with emphasis on the creation of visitor interaction. Formerly MS 622

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MSEM 614 or GREM 610

Open to Museum Studies majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 631 - Educational Programming for Museums

Prepares museum educators for the development of educational programs and plans for diverse types of museums and alternative learning sites. Exposes students to current issues and trends in museum education such as interdisciplinary and integrated learning, and issues of diversity. Methods of interpreting works of art, artifacts, and collections are studied. Extensive, "theory into practice" component provides students with the opportunity to apply theory to actual permanent collection and temporary exhibition projects at area museums. Formerly MS 615

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: MSEM 603, MSEM 630

Priority enrollment to Museum Education majors. Open to Museum Studies majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 690 - Graduate Museum Project

A culminating research project concerning museum studies, management, and education. The project is completed in one semester and includes the study of research in the field, a team project with the Museum Exhibition Planning and Design, and Museum Communication programs, and an individual project related to the student's main area of interest within the museum education profession. This course provides preparatory research for the culminating museum internship. Formerly MS 648

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Museum Education majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 695 - Museum Internship: Museum Education

Taken in a cooperating museum, the internship represents full-time employment equivalency under the mentorship of a professional museum educator. It is intended to provide practical on-site experience in which the intern is integrated into the museum staff, assuming professional-level responsibilities and experience. A University professor also observes, advises, and assesses the student during the internship. Formerly MS 658

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Museum Education majors only. Repeatable for credit.

Credits: 3 - 6 cr

or an elective from the list of possible electives below.

MSEM 780 - Thesis Research

Examines the principle approaches to research. The nature of appropriate research methods for selected thesis topics; the approaches and benefits of various methodologies; and the steps in research design. Students identify a research problem, design a study, collect and analyze data, compile, interpret and report results. Formerly MS 740

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Museum Studies majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Summer

Note: Students may elect to take one of their internships during the summer at no additional charge.

MSEM 695 - Museum Internship: Museum Education

Taken in a cooperating museum, the internship represents full-time employment equivalency under the mentorship of a professional museum educator. It is intended to provide practical on-site experience in which the intern is integrated into the museum staff, assuming professional-level responsibilities and experience. A University professor also observes, advises, and assesses the student during the internship. Formerly MS 658

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Museum Education majors only. Repeatable for credit.

Credits: 3 - 6 cr

Year Two Credits: 15

Fall Credits: 15

GRAD 651 - University Seminar: Art and Society

An interdisciplinary seminar in which students from all graduate programs examine theoretical issues relating to the place of art and design in society. Topics include the social role of the artist/designer, public policy and the arts, issues of post-modernism, and aesthetic and ethical implications of emerging arts communication technologies. (May be taken to satisfy Sociology/Anthropology corequisite for the MAT program.) Formerly GR 692

Prerequisites & Notes

Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 695 - Museum Internship: Museum Education

Taken in a cooperating museum, the internship represents full-time employment equivalency under the mentorship of a professional museum educator. It is intended to provide practical on-site experience in which the intern is integrated into the museum staff, assuming professional-level responsibilities and experience. A University professor also observes, advises, and assesses the student during the internship. Formerly MS 658

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Museum Education majors only. Repeatable for credit.

Credits: 3 - 6 cr

MSEM 785 - Thesis Development: Museum Education

Independent research and design in an area supporting the student's career objectives and interests.

Prerequisites & Notes

MSEM 780

Credits: 3 cr, 3hrs

- Electives - see list of possible electives below; 3 - 6 crs

Possible Electives

AEDU 531 - Multicultural Learning-Arts

The artistic expressions of Africa, Asia, the Americas, the Near and Middle East, and related societies are examined for their aesthetic and contextual meanings. Cross-cultural contributions to world art history are recognized through the study of characteristic styles and techniques, dynastic periods of art and artists, as well as the relationship of art to varied systems of belief. Formerly AE 531

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Art Education majors and concentrations.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

AEDU 602 - History of Ideas in Art and Museum Education

Seminar on major issues and trends in the history of art and museum education, with an emphasis on child-centered and content-centered theories and the theoretical antecedents of Discipline-Based Art Education, the Visual Culture movement, and standards-based education. Formerly AE 602

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to graduate Art Education and Museum Studies majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

AEDU 621 - Educational Media A: Teaching and Learning Online

This online course provides students with the knowledge, skills, and strategies to successfully integrate educational media into the teaching and learning of K-12 art. Areas of study include theoretical and conceptual basis for educational technology, instructional practices and strategies, approaches to integrating technology into the curriculum, training and development of technology skills, such as computer graphics, Web page design, and electronic presentations; and issues and problems related to technology use in education. Formerly AE 507

Prerequisites & Notes

Computer literacy required.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 601 - Museum Seminar: The Museum Society

Lecture/seminar course exploring the history, organization, and operation of the museum as a cultural/educational institution, an economic entity, and a management enterprise. Visiting lecturers bring a wide range of knowledge and practices from their respective institutions and consultancies to provide the student with insight into the differences between museums of different types, sizes, and missions. The course provides students with an overall understanding of the museum as an institution and an introduction to the many roles played by museum professionals. Offered in the evening. Formerly MS 501

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Museum Studies majors. Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 602 - Museum Seminar: The Exhibition and Educational Programming

Lecture/seminar course exploring the philosophy and history of museum exhibitions and the development of the museum exhibition discipline. Visiting lecturers bring a wide range of knowledge and practices from their respective professional disciplines and provide insight into museum exhibition practice. Provides students with an overall understanding of the role exhibitions can and do play in public institutions. Offered in the evening. Formerly MS 502

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Museum Studies majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 641 - Museum Governance: Legal Issues, Ethics, and Museums

Legal status of the museum and its obligations to the public, governance, staffing, and policy-making as a nonprofit organization. Establishing collections policies, laws, regulations, conventions, and codes that affect acquisitions, deaccessions, loans, and collections care. The case study method is used to examine the issues, the law, and the decisions that affect today's museums. State, federal, and international legislation, common law, and the applications of administrative law in museums are examined. Examines the complex relations of museums and museum professionals with trustees, collectors, donors, dealers, outside interest groups, and artists. Formerly MS 602

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MSEM 601 or MSEM 600

Open to Museum Studies majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 642 - Development, Fundraising, and Grantsmanship

An introduction to the development process as it relates to fundraising and, more specifically, grants writing. This course addresses the changing nature of funding for museums today, and sources of funds. In a lecture/workshop setting, students learn current techniques for formulating institutional funding requests under the guidance of an instructor and visiting experts in the museum field. Students acquire professional knowledge of museum practices in development and revenue generation; skills in developing a strategic fundraising plan and preliminary case statement plan, and carrying out its elements for specific institutions and for specific funding objectives. Formerly MS 650

Prerequisites & Notes

Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 644 - Video, Film and Technology for Museum Interpretation

Students become familiar with important historical, philosophical, and site-based interpretive uses for media in museum settings through a practicum that includes analysis of media (video, film, and technology) in transferring knowledge and information in the museum environment. Relates to the artistic, historical, and content techniques of a variety of moving image and multimedia approaches. Research, planning, supervision, outsourcing, and execution of media pieces for museum environments are explored. Computer literacy is expected. Formerly MS 619

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Museum Studies majors. Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs. Computer literacy required.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 646 - Publications, Public Relations, and Marketing

Organizational principles and practices as they relate to the processes of public relations and museum communication (primarily print media). Topics include public relations, interpretive and informational publications, advertising, identity, audience development, and marketing. Addresses the use and creation of publications, marketing plans, institution and exhibition-based public relations, the creation of effective identity programs, and audience development through membership and outreach programs. In a workshop setting, students learn to create effective publications and print media, and discuss Web-based communication. Students work under the guidance of a university professor and visiting experts in the museum field. Formerly MS 621

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MSEM 614

Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 702 - Issues in Museums Seminar

Presents and discusses current political and social issues, which may unexpectedly, sometimes problematically, affect museum practice, particularly in the public areas of exhibition, programming, and publications. Recent examples would include controversial exhibits, legal, gender, race, cultural, and religious issues impacting museums; and the public right to participate in the museum experience as an active contributor. Museum scholars, specialists, and university faculty offer in-depth examination of current topics. Students complete projects designed to develop professional ability to deal with emerging debates in the museum profession and the knowledge of the impact of politics and the mass culture on museum policies and practices. Formerly MS 601

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MSEM 601 or MSEM 600

Priority enrollment to Museum Studies majors. Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

- Liberal Arts - A variety of courses taken for graduate credit.

Museum Exhibition Planning and Design - Master of Fine Arts

Program Total Credits: 60

Representatives of cooperating museums and the University faculty offer a curriculum for Museum Exhibition Planning and Design that addresses the conceptualization, research, organization, design, and production of museum exhibits and educational presentations, utilizing a variety of techniques and media. It also explores exhibit programming, evaluation, and management methods applicable in a wide range of museum situations. Visiting experts teach many aspects of museum presentation, education, and management, and students make formal visits to design departments, production shops, galleries, exhibits, and programs in numerous museums, service providers, and consultancies in Philadelphia, the Mid-Atlantic Region, Washington, D.C., and New York. Students undertake a thesis project and a supervised museum internship related to their career interests during the second year of the program.

Year One Credits: 30

Fall Credits: 15

- Elective Credits: 3 cr

MSEM 601 - Museum Seminar: The Museum Society

Lecture/seminar course exploring the history, organization, and operation of the museum as a cultural/educational institution, an economic entity, and a management enterprise. Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 610 - Museum Exhibition Design Studio

The primary vehicle for exploring and developing museum exhibition planning, design, project organization, and presentation skills/techniques. This studio focuses on the foundations of museum exhibition development and design: space planning, color, light, informal education, communication, content, interaction, and crafting experiences. Formerly MS 610A

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Museum Exhibition Planning and Design majors only.

Credits: 6 cr, 12 hrs

MSEM 614 - Museum Graphics

Writing, design, and production of museum graphic components. Graphic Design is defined as any visual information communicated through word and image. Formerly MS 620A

Prerequisites & Notes

Corequisite: GREM 601

Open to Museum Studies majors only. Computer literacy required.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 616 - Exhibition Materials and Methods

This course gives students an in-depth acquaintance with exhibit fabrication/construction processes, techniques, methods and materials, how to research and specify appropriate materials, and how to use those materials in the best way. Formerly MS 623A

Prerequisites & Notes

Corequisite: MSEM 610

Open to Museum Exhibition Planning and Design majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 611 - Museum Exhibition Design Studio

The primary vehicle for exploring and developing museum exhibition planning, design, project organization, and presentation skills/ techniques. This studio focuses on the foundations of museum exhibition development and design: space planning, color, light, informal education, communication, content, interaction, and crafting experiences, with the addition of project management, model making, and group dynamics. Formerly MS 610B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MSEM 610

Open to Museum Exhibition Planning and Design majors only.

Credits: 6 cr, 12 hrs

MSEM 615 - Museum Lighting

A lecture/demonstration/workshop course dealing with the manipulation of light and color in the built environment, specifically museums. Formerly MS 620B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MSEM 616

Open to Museum Exhibition Planning and Design majors only.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 617 - Exhibition Materials and Methods

Demonstration/studio course directed at the problems of exhibit production, organization of drawings and packages, clear communication to suppliers of materials and services, and the use of Mac-based CAD (computer aided design), specifically Vectorworks. Formerly MS 623B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MSEM 616

Open to Museum Exhibition Planning and Design majors only.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

Year Two Credits: 30

Summer Credits: 3

MSEM 795 - Museum Internship

A supervised practicum in a cooperating museum, gallery, or design firm. The internship represents full-time employment equivalency under the mentorship of a professional. Provides practical on-site experience, in which the intern is integrated into the professional staff, assuming professional-level responsibilities and experience. Formerly MS 759

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Museum Studies majors only.

Credits: 1.5 - 3 cr, 1.5 to 3 hrs

Students with at least six months of direct exhibition-related experience in a museum, equivalent institution, or a museum consultancy may substitute one three-hour elective for the internship requirement.

Fall Credits: 15

GRAD 650 - University Seminar: Structure and Metaphor

An interdisciplinary seminar in which students from the several graduate programs examine theoretical issues of structure and metaphor in relation to art and design. Topics include cognition and perception, meaning and representation, and systems of organization and expression. (May be taken to satisfy Aesthetics and Art Criticism co-requisites for the MAT program.) Formerly GR 691

Prerequisites & Notes

Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 603 - The Museum Audience

Lecture into practice course focusing on the visitor experience through museum communications and learning. Designed to identify the characteristics of the museum visitor, the ways in which visitors experience museum exhibitions, cognitive and affective behavior, the relationship of museum exhibitions and educational programming, and the impact of institutions and visitor studies on the planning and design of institutions, museum exhibitions, and environments. Formerly MS 508

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Museum Studies majors. Restricted to students enrolled in graduate programs.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MSEM 711 - Museum Exhibition Design Studio

The primary vehicle for exploring and developing museum exhibition planning, design, project organization, project management, and presentation skills/techniques. This course focuses on the exhibition in its tangible/ physical form, taking concept into reality. Documentation, construction documents, schedules, budgets, and specifications are the deliverables. Formerly MS 710

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: MSEM 601, MSEM 611

Open to Museum Exhibition Planning and Design majors only.

Credits: 6 cr, 12 hrs

MSEM 781 - Thesis Development: Museum Exhibition Planning and Design

Independent research and design in an area supporting the student's career objectives and interests. Formerly MS 749A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MSEM 611 or MSEM 780

Open to Museum Exhibition Planning and Design majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Spring Credits: 12

Music Education - Master of Arts in Teaching

Program Total Credits: 36

The Master of Arts in Teaching – Music Education (MAT) is an advanced teacher certification program for professional musicians desiring a master's degree and certification to teach music in K-12 schools as well as in other educational settings and for related careers. It is a unique program in that candidates for the MAT typically will have completed undergraduate studies in applied music, composition, theory, musicology, or other professional areas. MAT graduates are eligible to receive K-12 certification from the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania Department of Education to teach music.

The MAT in Music Education is designed to develop and refine the student's intellectual, pedagogical, and musical skills. The program is a balance of intellectual foundations, curriculum design, and assessment; partnered with hands-on pedagogy and conducting courses developed to provide relevant experiences for the classrooms of today and leadership for the future of the profession. This preparation includes comprehensive instruction in the use of educational technology, field-based learning experiences, and site-based pedagogy courses, which provide direct feedback on instructional effectiveness.

The MAT curriculum comprises 36 credits and may be completed in one academic year if all corequisites are satisfied prior to matriculation. Corequisite requirements may be satisfied in a number of ways, including taking courses in the Music Education minor program. Working professionals may opt to complete the degree over an extended period of time on a part-time basis.

Music Education - Master of Arts in Teaching Credits: 36

The following listing represents the normal sequence of courses if completed within one year:

Fall Credits: 18

MUED 520 - Music Pedagogy III: Pre-K to Grade 4

Study of pedagogical issues and approaches for music instruction in classroom music settings for children from pre-kindergarten through grade 4. Topics include goal setting and lesson planning, selection of age-appropriate materials and methods, and assessment of learning.

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Masters in Teaching in Music Education only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MUED 521 - Music Pedagogy IV: Grades 5 to 8

Study of pedagogical issues and approaches for music instruction in classroom music in grades 5-8. Topics include goal setting and lesson planning, selection of age-appropriate materials and methods, and assessment of learning, as well as the development of advanced skills in functional piano, and writing/arranging for classroom ensembles. Particular emphasis is placed on the use of technology (i.e., Smart Music, Yamaha MIS etc.) and social instruments in the music classroom. This is a TI:ME Level II course.

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Masters in Teaching in Music Education only.

Credits: 2 cr, 2 hrs

MUED 530 - Alternative Ensembles

Students develop performance and rehearsal skills in alternative ensembles for use in school such as bucket drums, hand bells, samba percussion, and steel pans. Two to three ensembles are covered in any given semester. Age-appropriate rehearsal techniques are emphasized, along with rehearsal planning, appropriate repertoire, equipment selection and maintenance, and composing and arranging for such ensembles.

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Masters in Teaching in Music Education only.

Credits: 2 cr, 2 hrs

MUED 540 - Student Teaching – Elementary

Taken in a cooperating school, the internship represents full-time employment equivalency under the mentorship of a certified music teacher. It is intended to provide the practical experience in which the intern is integrated into the program, assuming professional-level responsibilities and experiences. A university supervisor observes, advises, facilitates the relationship between mentor and intern, and assesses the student during the internship.

Prerequisites & Notes

Corequisites: MUED 520, MUED 521, MUED 541

Open to Masters in Teaching in Music Education only.

Credits: 4 cr, hrs vary

MUED 541 - Student Teaching Seminar – Elementary

Discussion and analysis of field experiences, special workshops and field trips. Continuing development and refinement of skills in reflective practice is emphasized as well as the needs of special learners.

Prerequisites & Notes

Corequisite: MUED 540

Open to Masters in Teaching in Music Education only.

Credits: 1 cr, 1 hr

MUED 600 - Historical Foundations of Music Education

An intensive reading course in the history of educational thought and practices in music education in the United States from the Colonial Period to modern times. Students develop a basic understanding of the historical roots of Music Education in America and various movements, philosophies, and events that have had an impact on it. These movements and philosophies are analyzed in terms of their impact and effectiveness and why some have succeeded where others failed. An analysis of ideas and events reveal historical cycles, socio-political ramifications, and periodic reintroduction/revision of previous ideas and approaches. Current trends in American music education are analyzed through the use of historical perspective. Students also develop basic historical research and reporting skills.

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Masters in Teaching in Music Education only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MUED 601 - Philosophical Foundations of Music Education

An intensive reading course in the philosophical basis of music education. Emphasis is placed on how one's philosophic perspective informs and molds praxis with particular application to the curriculum and instruction in school music. The course moves chronologically from the roots of philosophy in Ancient Greece to today, but most emphasis is placed on twentieth and twenty-first century thought and movements in American education. Students develop a basic understanding of the philosophical perspectives of Music Education in America and various movements, philosophies, and events that have had an impact on it. Students become familiar with the basic schools and terminology of philosophy needed to be able to think about and discuss philosophical issues in music, education, and music education. Current trends in American music education are analyzed from a philosophical perspective. Students develop basic philosophical research and reporting skills.

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Masters in Teaching in Music Education only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Spring Credits: 18

MUED 522 - Music Pedagogy V: Grades 9 - 12

Study of pedagogical issues and approaches for music instruction in classroom music in grades 9-12. Topics include goal setting and lesson planning, selection of age-appropriate materials and methods, and assessment of learning. Particular emphasis is placed on the use of technology (i.e., Finale, etc.) in the music classroom and teaching composition and music theory at the secondary school level, as well as digital/audio recording. This is a TI:ME Level II course.

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Masters in Teaching in Music Education only.

Credits: 2 cr, 2 hrs

MUED 523 - Music Pedagogy VI Vocal/Choral

Study of pedagogical issues and approaches for music instruction in vocal/choral music. Topics include voice theory, vocal production, teaching methods, and instructional materials in K-12 settings. The physiology of the voice is studied with reference to principles of choral singing. Special problems of the child and adolescent are considered.

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Masters in Teaching in Music Education only.

Credits: 2 cr, 2 hrs

MUED 531 - Conducting and Rehearsal Techniques: High School and Community Ensembles

Continued refinement of conducting skills developed in MUED 431 Basic Conducting with application to secondary school and community-based adult performing ensembles. Appropriate rehearsal techniques are emphasized along with rehearsal planning, score study and analysis, repertoire evaluation and selection, and assessment and reflection skills. Special topics include issues related to program development and management.

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Masters in Teaching in Music Education only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MUED 542 - Student Teaching Secondary

Taken in a cooperating school, the internship represents full-time employment equivalency under the mentorship of a certified music teacher. It is intended to provide practical experience in which the intern is integrated into the program, assuming professional-level responsibilities and experiences. A university supervisor observes, advises, facilitates the relationship between the mentor and intern, and assesses the student during the internship.

Prerequisites & Notes

Corequisites: MUED 522, MUED 531, MUED 543

Open to Masters in Teaching in Music Education only.

Credits: 4 cr, hrs vary

MUED 543 - Student Teaching Seminar: Secondary

Discussion and analysis of field experiences, special workshops, and field trips. Continuing development and refinement of skills in reflective practice is emphasized as well as certification, job searching, career development, and instrument repair.

Prerequisites & Notes

Corequisite: MUED 542

Open to Masters in Teaching in Music Education only.

Credits: 1 cr, 1 hr

MUED 602 - Sociological Foundations of Music Education

An intensive reading course in the sociology of music education's role in society. Students develop a basic understanding of the sociological functioning of music in society and how education in music should, but often does not, meet the greater society's needs. Socialization in performing groups, group identity, and sociology of schools is studied. Current trends in American music education are analyzed from a sociological perspective. Students also develop basic sociological research and reporting skills.

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Masters in Teaching in Music Education only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MUED 603 - Curriculum and Assessment in Music Education

The course covers the development, writing, and evaluation of curriculum as a dynamic interactive process based on research. Students develop curriculum writing and evaluation skills through critical review of various curricula, analyses of curriculum models, and developing their own curricula. Measurement and assessment of learning, which is the crucial dynamic element in curricula, is covered in depth. Upon completion of the course, students should be able to critically analyze curricula, design curricula, and develop appropriate assessment tools for various music learning situations.

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Masters in Teaching in Music Education only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Music Education Minor

Professional musicians teach in various settings such as private lessons, classroom lectures, presentations at conferences, directing performing ensembles, and as artists in residence. The Music Education minor is open to all music majors desiring preparation for these roles.

The Music Education minor complements the degree studies of all music majors with two courses even counting within the liberal arts core of the student's bachelor degree. Coursework includes instruction in each of the instrument families, pedagogy of private instruction and improvisation, conducting, rehearsing jazz ensembles, the psychology of teaching and learning music, and the needs of special learners. Field experiences include working with ensembles in public and private schools.

Music Education minors will be able to complete the Master of Arts in Teaching degree (MAT) and receive teacher certification in one additional academic year. This "4 +1" option allows students to earn a MUED minor, bachelor's degree, master's degree, and teacher certification in only five years.

Coursework is based on current Pennsylvania Department of Education teacher certification requirements. This program may be revised as needed to accommodate new state requirements.

Students wishing to include a minor are governed by the following guidelines:

1. Students must meet eligibility requirements, which may include a satisfactory grade-point average, prerequisites, and departmental portfolio review.
2. An intent to complete a minor is declared by filing the completed Minor Declaration Form with the Office of the Registrar. The forms are available in the Office of the Registrar.
3. A student may not major and minor in the same program, except where indicated.
4. Courses applied to the minor may only be applied toward elective requirements.
5. All minors require a minimum of 15 credits, with the exception of E-Music for Music majors. Generally, no substitutions to the minor requirements are allowed. In exceptional situations where substitutions are granted, the approval of both the major and minor program advisors are required.
6. The requirements of the minor must be completed prior to graduation.
7. A student pursuing a minor may be required to complete more than the minimum number of credits required to complete the undergraduate degree in order to also complete the minor.
8. Minors are available only to undergraduate students.

Music Education Minor Credits: 20

MUED 110 - Brass Instruments

Students learn basic breathing, embouchure, sound-production, and fingerings for standard band and orchestra brass instruments, appropriate repertoire and pedagogy, and diagnosing typical problems of beginning performers. Musical Theater - Bachelor of Fine Arts

Program Total Credits: 123

The four-year Bachelor of Fine Arts Musical Theater Program prepares students for professional careers as performers in the musical theater or for continued study in graduate school. The program defines the term "musical theater" in a way that embraces the richness and diversity of this challenging interdisciplinary art form, which includes musical comedy, the musical play (in the Hammerstein-Sondheim tradition), new and alternative music theater, "Broadway opera," cabaret, and revue. Students receive the same technique training as do acting majors through their first five semesters. This training is complemented by training in vocal technique, musicianship, dance, and the study of the repertoire of the musical theater in print and recordings, as well as in rehearsal and performance.

Actor training in the School of Theater Arts lies at the heart of the two performance curricula. The training is designed to cultivate the actor's ability to "live truthfully under imaginary circumstances." Students develop an understanding that such truth begins with a shared interconnectedness between actors onstage.

Early technique studies, for majors in both acting and musical theater, emphasize the "reality of doing" as it is rooted in a full emotional life, driven by action and expressed with meaning, clarity, and theatricality. To this end, students are challenged to cultivate a fuller understanding of themselves and to continually exercise their skills as analysts of text and as observers of human behavior.

The program introduces students to a range of training methods (Linklater, Meisner, IPA, LeCoq, Williamson, Fitzmaurice, Laban) as a part of their training. The successful student should emerge from the program with a practicable performance technique in place, which enables her/him to develop and sustain a role from first rehearsal to closing night.

Students completing these programs are also expected to be knowledgeable about a variety of styles and types of drama, and the challenges presented by each; to work in a vocally and physically free and efficient manner; to be able to identify their character type and its potential range within the casting conventions of the industry; to have a sense of how to begin to establish a career as a performer; and to possess a work ethic that will support the collaborative nature of theatrical production.

Additionally, the Musical Theater Program seeks to train students who:

- use the singing voice in a vibrant, healthy, and dramatically effective manner;
- understand music as the singing actor's second text and clearly present its expressive intentions;
- have a solid dance technique and a command of the language of dance and movement; and
- integrate all component skills of musical theater performance to create consistently honest and expressive behavior.

Musical Theater Minor

College of Performing Arts sophomores including Voice, Acting, Theater Management and Production, and Dance majors who have earned a 3.0 GPA in their major are eligible, by audition, to enroll in a range of courses (usually 15 credit hours) leading to the fulfillment of a minor in musical theater. The faculty in the Schools of Dance, Music, and Theater conduct auditions required for admission to the minor, which is to be restricted for only those students most apt to succeed in cross-disciplinary training. In order to continue through the sequence of courses in the minor, students are required to earn a grade of B or better in the initial cross-discipline courses in Voice, Dance and/or Acting normally taken in the minor during the sophomore year.

This course of study is designed solely for students majoring in Voice, Acting, Theater Management and Production and Dance since their success in the minor is due in part to their continuing, concentrated study and growth in their individual majors. In other words, ongoing development as a dancer, actor, or vocal major enhances students' ability to succeed in the minor.

Students wishing to include a minor are governed by the following guidelines:

1. Students must meet eligibility requirements, which may include a satisfactory grade-point average, prerequisites, and departmental portfolio review.
2. An intent to complete a minor is declared by filing the completed Minor Declaration Form with the Office of the Registrar. The forms are available in the Office of the Registrar.
3. A student may not major and minor in the same program, except where indicated.
4. Courses applied to the minor may only be applied toward elective requirements.
5. All minors require a minimum of 15 credits, with the exception of E-Music for Music majors. Generally, no substitutions to the minor requirements are allowed. In exceptional situations where substitutions are granted, they must have the approval of both the major and minor program advisors.
6. The requirements of the minor must be completed prior to graduation.
7. A student pursuing a minor may be required to complete more than the minimum number of credits required to complete the undergraduate degree in order to also complete the minor.
8. Minors are available only to undergraduate students.

Narrative Video Minor - CAD

The minor in Narrative Video explores digital video as a medium for storytelling. It introduces students to various aspects of video production, including scriptwriting, storyboarding, editing, sound design, directing, and producing. Students develop their skills as they advance from scene exercises through a short film to a final year-long project. This minor is open to all UArts majors, except those in Film/ Digital Video. As this minor is co-hosted by the College of Media and Communications, CMAC students should refer to the CMAC section of this catalog for additional regulations regarding this minor.

Requirements for the Minor

CMMC 311 - Narrative Video Production Workshop

An opportunity to develop an understanding of and experience in producing narrative-based video projects. Students begin by reading essays and articles, screening scenes from films and television shows, and reviewing technical language and concepts. They learn to translate script ideas into production proposals, making clear how story ideas, characters, action, and point of view will be rendered in sound and image. Working both on their own projects and as team members, they plan production specifics and shoot/record and edit short narrative pieces in their medium and style of choice. Students present stages of production work, from planning to script to rushes to stages of edited material. Formerly CM 295

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: CMMC 101 or CMMC 102

Priority enrollment to Communication majors and Narrative Video minors. Repeatable for credit

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAFL 401 - Senior Cinema Production I

First part of a year-long course in which students produce their own thesis film or video. The students are also introduced to contemporary professional practices including resume writing, applying to film festivals, readings contracts, dealing with copyrights, and financing and distributing independent films. Formerly PF 410A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: CMMC 311 or MAFL 302

Open to Film/Digital Video and Film/Animation majors; and Narrative Video minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAFL 402 - Senior Cinema Production II

Second part of a year-long course in which students produce their own film or video. The students are also introduced to contemporary professional practices including resume writing, applying to film festivals, readings contracts, dealing with copyrights, and financing and distributing independent films. Formerly PF 410B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 401

Open to Film/Digital Video and Film/Animation majors; and Narrative Video minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

WRIT 220 - Writing for Film

A writing class introducing students to the basic elements of screenwriting. These include three act structure, creating a character, act design, and scene structure. Students complete a short screenplay by the end of the semester. Formerly WM 219

Prerequisites & Notes

Not open to Writing for Film and Television majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 4 hrs

Select one of the following:

CMMC 103 - Sound Communication

This introduction to the field of sound communication enables students to conceptualize the importance of sound in cultural life and prepares them in practical approaches to field recording and working with various types of sound. A survey of approaches to sound as a social communication through readings and a broad range of audio examples, including documentary, journalistic, theatrical, and experimental approaches. Training in digital and audio field and post-production equipment and complete practical field exercises and an intensive sound project. Formerly CM 120

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Communication and Film/Digital Video majors; and Narrative Video and Documentary Video minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 5 hrs

MAFL 311 - Sync-Sound for Narrative Film

Students in this course explore creative sound design in finished films with instruction and practice in the use of sound recording equipment, sound transfers, building and editing multiple synchronous sound tracks, and preparing for the sound mix. Students work in groups to create and complete a five-minute sync sound film that incorporates the concept of "sound design." Formerly PF 320

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 202

Open to Film/Digital Video and Film/Animation majors; and Narrative Video minors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Electives

Recommended electives for Communication and Writing for Film and Television majors include:

CMMC 341 - Documentary Media Production I

The conceptual, aesthetic, and pragmatic dimensions of producing video documentaries. Students are exposed to examples of a variety of documentary approaches through screenings and readings, which illustrate the range of choices and creative possibilities of communicating information and emotion through this form. They are also introduced to advanced digital video technologies as they work through a series of structured exercises and later work in teams to develop documentary projects. Project work includes pre-production research, interviews, original shooting in small crews, editing, and presenting finished work. Formerly CM 391

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: CMMC 102

Priority enrollment to Communication majors and Documentary Video minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MACR 443 - Time: A Multidisciplinary Seminar

The concept of Time considered from a multidisciplinary perspective, drawing on readings in philosophy, literature, psychology, sociology, and film theory. Relevant works in film and video are screened. Students are responsible for a final term paper that interrelates two or more of the readings with one of the screened works. Formerly PF 424

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 302 or MAAN 302

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAFL 460 - Professional Practices in Film/Digital Video

A series of mini seminars in various aspects of professional film and video production. Topics to be addressed include: studio operations, advanced sound recording, sound mixing, and gaffer and grip responsibilities. Independent producers are brought in to conduct workshops on topics of interest. This course supplements, but does not replace, Media Arts required courses. Formerly PF 423

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 302

Open to Film/Digital Video majors; and Film/Animation majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

WRIT 212 - Screenwriting II

An intensive screenwriting workshop where, in the first semester, students study scene structure and dialogue, and write a series of outlines for an hour-long screenplay. In the second semester, students write an hour-long screenplay and revise the script. Formerly WM 215

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: WRIT 211 or WRIT 220

Priority enrollment to Writing for Film and Television majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 4 hrs

WRIT 225 - Interactive Writing I

The first semester of a year-long studio course that builds upon the basic principles of dramatic writing by identifying and utilizing the Web environment as a unique medium for narrative storytelling. Through analysis and written exercises, students learn how multiple story and character arcs are designed and supported by specific interactive storytelling models. Formerly WM 225

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: WRIT 211, WRIT 220 or MMDI 202.

Credits: 3 cr, 4 hrs

WRIT 241 - Screenplay Analysis

A course devoted to the critical analysis of screenplays. Students are required to read numerous scripts and write critical papers on various dramatic structural principles highlighted. Formerly WM 243

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: WRIT 211 or WRIT 220

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

WRIT 261 - Cinema Arts

Introduction to the various cinematic production values, which directly influence the character of the dramatic product. Topics of study include cinematography, art and production design, editing, and sound as they relate to the writer's intention, and the quality of the final product. Formerly WM 241

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Painting/Drawing - Bachelor of Fine Arts

Program Total Credits: 123

Courses in the Painting/Drawing program evolve from the study of basic working methods and concepts to the refinements of personal vision and aesthetic judgment. In the final semester of the senior year, each student is required to complete a thesis project, which is presented in the combined form of a written paper and a solo exhibition. This project is open to the University community and is reviewed by a collegiate panel comprised of UArts professors from both the studio and liberal art disciplines.

Sophomore Year Credits: 30

Fall Credits: 15

- Liberal Arts Credits: 3 cr

FAPT 201 - Sophomore Painting

Studio work introduces the student to the domain of painting through projects that cover not only the basic elements of form, color, and technique, but also the fundamental conceptual challenges unique to painting. Students are exposed to the origins and purposes of painting and the range of possibilities offered by both traditional and contemporary approaches. Formerly PT 202A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: FNDP 111, FNDP 121

Priority enrollment to Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FAPT 211 - Drawing: Form and Space

An introduction to the issues of drawing, including perception, analysis, invention, and experimentation. A variety of thematic ideas, structural possibilities, and imaginative interpretations are explored. Students are exposed to a wide spectrum of precedents in the history of drawing and are encouraged to enlarge their working definitions of how form and space can be effectively expressed. Formerly FA 222

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FNDP 151, FNDP 161

Open to Fine Arts majors only. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Choose one course from the following three:

Painting/Drawing Majors must take one sculpture course and one printmaking course. These will be counted as electives outside of the Painting/Drawing offerings.

FAPR 201 - Relief/Monotype

Introduction to the graphic and expressive qualities of woodcut, linoleum, and collograph processes printed in monochrome and color. Monoprinting with direct drawing and painting on Plexiglass and metal plate are also explored. Formerly PR 201

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FNDP 111

Priority enrollment to Fine Arts majors. Student must have completed the first semester of their Freshman year (15 credits).

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FAPR 204 - Screenprint/Etching

The graphic qualities of expression in screenprinting and etching/intaglio are presented through historic and contemporary examples and demonstration of the methods, which convey ideas in these two media. Various stencil processes from direct-drawn to photographic and computer-generated are explored in screenprinting with water-based opaque and transparent inks. Handwork on the metal plate includes drawn drypoint, etching, and tonal processes. Emphasis is placed on the understanding of the qualities of these methods and the development of personal ideas. Formerly PR 204

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FNDP 111

Priority enrollment to Fine Arts majors. Student must have completed the first semester of their Freshman year (15 credits).

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FASC 201 - Sculpture I

Emphasizes the fundamental and formal aspects of sculpture. Projects are assigned to help the student experience and understand the unique expressive values of mass, space, plane, line, balance, rhythm, scale, movement, and time transformation. This course also serves to introduce the student to a variety of materials and techniques. Assigned projects, group critiques and slide lectures. Formerly SC 201

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: Completion of Foundation. Priority enrollment to Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Select one course from the following two:

LACR 210 - Texts & Contexts: Perspectives on the Humanities

Perspectives on the Humanities addresses significant works from the ancient world, the Renaissance, the Enlightenment and Romantic periods, and the present day. The course serves five functions: to help students develop their skills in critical reading and writing; to introduce study of traditionally defined periods in the history of culture; to introduce a thematic approach to Humanities topics; to examine key primary texts from various periods and consider them alongside comparable art works; to explore the possibility that conventional ideas of period studies are open to challenge and reinterpretation.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 22X - Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT)

The Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT) serves as a foundation for future studies in the natural and social sciences, in mathematics, and for life-long learning. Scholarship in these scientific disciplines has influenced our culture in significant ways — both directly as a result of ongoing research and indirectly as new scientific ideas and theories are developed and applied within the context of important issues and concerns in the larger society.

Prerequisites & Notes

For all SIFT courses, student must have first matriculated at UArts after Fall 2005. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam. Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

This is a description of the SIFT course category. Any course numbered LACR 22- will meet this requirement. For example:

- LACR 221 SIFT: Problem Solving

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Spring Credits: 15

- Liberal Arts Credits: 3 cr

FACR 215 - Subjects/Formats

This is a required studio course that explores Subject/Format issues that cross over between the traditional fine arts disciplines. Students in the Painting/Drawing, Sculpture, Printmaking and Multidiscipline tracks will work from a common syllabus and develop artworks within the traditional framework of their studio base. Three projects will be assigned over the course of the semester. Each project assignment will be limited by a specified subject matter and a specified format. Each of the three project periods will conclude with a group critique. This course is sequentially linked to FACR 216 Research Practices. Course begins Spring 2009.

Prerequisites & Notes

Corequisite: Research Practices

Open to Fine Arts, Media Arts and Crafts majors within the College of Art and Design. Priority enrollment to Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

FACR 216 - Research Practices

This course is designed to develop traditional and creative research strategies necessary for contemporary art practice. Students learn to find and use information that can both generate and enhance their ideas. This kind of "information Literacy" enriches the content factor in the form/content equation essential to artworks. Using numerous resources for collecting material, research will cover historical, cultural, social, and political contexts for art ideas. Various methods will be explored for recording, classifying and representing information, such as writing, mapping, diagramming, drawing, and other notational systems. This course is directly linked to the development of studio projects outlined in FACR 215 Subjects/Formats.

Prerequisites & Notes

Corequisite: FACR 215

Open to Fine Arts, Media Arts and Crafts majors in the College of Art and Design. Priority enrollment for Multidisciplinary Fine Arts Majors.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

FAPT 202 - Sophomore Painting

A continuation of the practices and purposes of FAPT 201. Formerly PT 202B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: FNDP 111, FNDP 121

FAPT 301 - Junior Painting

A continuation of FAPT 301. Formerly PT 302A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FAPT 201, FAPT 202

Priority enrollment to Painting/Drawing and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts major.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FAPT 303 - Color Studies

Studio group projects and independent projects consider the purposes and effects of color organization, color perception, and color theory. Color is approached as emotive, symbolic, descriptive, and structural. Formerly PT 340

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FAPT 202

Priority enrollment to Painting majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

FAPT 306 - Junior Seminar

A discussion format aimed at investigating and understanding the content of, the motivations for, and the influences on contemporary painting. Emphasis is on exploring the theories, questions, and issues that create the intellectual content for contemporary artists. Students are given reading assignments as preparation for the seminar dialogue. Selected texts include artists' documents, critical writings, and classic essays covering such areas as aesthetic principles, political and cultural realities, and psychological perspectives. Class sessions emphasize group discussions based on viewing slides, PowerPoint presentations and other appropriate visual material, reading assignments, and various written and oral forms of student presentations. Formerly PT 360

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FAPT 202 Open to Painting/Drawing majors only.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

FAPT 307 - Junior Drawing

This course will be a continuation of information and experiences encountered in FAPT 211: Drawing Form and Space and the introduction of more sophisticated concepts in pictorial art. Drawing will be considered as a preparatory form-making act in the painting process and as expression in its own right.

Prerequisites & Notes

FAMD 300 - Intermedia

This studio course is an advanced version of FACR 215 Subjects/Formats with emphasis on scholarly presentation by Liberal Arts faculty or outside visiting lecturers of significant contemporary topics of cultural interest. Art work formats will explore inter media, trans media, and interdisciplinary approaches.

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority to Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FAPT 302 - Junior Painting

Continuation of FAPT 301. Formerly PT 302B

FACR 401 - Senior Fine Arts Seminar

The artist's role in historic and contemporary contexts. Issues surrounding the various purposes of art and how culture deals with artists are explored through discussion with visiting artists, alumni, and faculty. Students work toward the acquisition of a professional profile in resume, artist statement, and slide preparation. Discussion of gallery practices and portfolio presentations cultivate an awareness of professionalism and career opportunities in the fields of painting, printmaking, and sculpture. Formerly FA 460

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: FAPT 301, FAPT 302 or FAPT 302

Open to Fine Arts majors only.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

FAPT 401 - Senior Painting

Critical commentary centers on four areas of concern: 1. The character of the work – its formal properties, its physical properties, aspects of intelligibility. 2. Intention – the investigation of motives and choices. 3. Context – ways that a work relates to a larger body of work, both generic and stylistic. 4. Quality – approaches to questions of value. There are individual critiques each week and periodic group critiques, sometimes involving the participation of a visiting artist. Formerly PT 402A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FAPT 302

Open to Painting/Drawing majors only.

Credits: 3 or 4.5 cr; 6 or 9 hrs

FAPT 403 - Drawing References

Advanced drawing projects focus on the relation between a given work and its references and resources. Emphasis is on understanding the nature of references or resource material and the manner in which references or resources influence the outcome of a work. This studio/critique course aims at enhancing students' ability to connect their personal and subjective interests to the larger context of nature, history, and culture. Formerly FA 425

LAAH 111 - Art History Survey I

A survey of Western visual arts and architecture from the earliest extant examples, cave painting and sculpture from Austrian and southern Europe, to the arts of the Renaissance in Europe in the fourteenth-fifteenth centuries. Students will be asked to visit and do research on the art in local museums and galleries in order to gain a foundation for the work from their textbook, and asked to place, evaluate, and comprehend the history of the world in which many of them make their art. Formerly HU 140A

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 112 - Art History Survey II

Following the first half of the Survey of Western Art, this course will consider Western visual arts and architecture from the Renaissance in Europe in the fourteenth-fifteenth centuries to the present. As in the first semester, students will be asked to visit and do research on the art in local museums and galleries, and consider this more modern world as it relates to their own art and thought. They will be tested regularly and expected to write short essays about the work they have studied firsthand. Formerly HU 140B

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 101 - First-Year Writing I

First part of a year-long writing, reading and research course that teaches the fundamental skills of the responsible student-scholar. Students practice the kinds of academic writing, textual analysis, and library and Internet research required of university students and curious learners of any age. The first term explores writing from literature, philosophy, and art.

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 102 - First-Year Writing II

Continuation of LACR 101. During this term an inquiry-based research paper is the focus. A similar curriculum is examined in the context of history, literature, theory, philosophy, and art from a chosen period.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 101 or LACR 009

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 210 - Texts & Contexts: Perspectives on the Humanities

LACR 22X - Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT)

The Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT) serves as a foundation for future studies in the natural and social sciences, in mathematics, and for life-long learning. Scholarship in these scientific disciplines has influenced our culture in significant ways — both directly as a result of ongoing research and indirectly as new scientific ideas and theories are developed and applied within the context of important issues and concerns in the larger society.

Prerequisites & Notes

For all SIFT courses, student must have first matriculated at UArts after Fall 2005. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam. Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

This is a description of the SIFT course category. Any course numbered LACR 22- will meet this requirement. For example:

- LACR 221 SIFT: Problem Solving

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPI 8XX - Liberal Arts Period Interpretation - Pre-20th Century

Period Interpretations are an array of interdisciplinary courses that explore the process by which we understand cultural areas. Students consider both conventional and innovative interpretations of cultural history. All students are required to take two Period Interpretation courses, one 20th Century, and one pre-20th Century. Most students will take PI courses in the junior and/or senior years.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 and LACR 210

Photography - Bachelor of Fine Arts

Program Total Credits: 123

This major prepares students for a wide range of careers in photography by providing a solid grounding in traditional photography and digital imaging. In the sophomore year, students receive in-depth training in craft and ideas fundamental to photographic imaging. Technical exercises emphasize electronic imaging as well as traditional black-and-white and color processes. The curriculum covers both descriptive photography and more experimental manipulated image-making.

During the junior year, students consider photographic forms beyond the traditional print, such as the photographic book, non-silver processes, and installation work. Large-format photography and studio practice with its control of artificial lighting are also part of the junior curriculum. In both the junior and senior years, students may pursue the study of specialized interests on an elective basis, including illustration and editorial photography, photojournalism, environmental portraiture, creative portfolio development, advanced digital imaging, and professional practice.

The senior year is primarily devoted to the production of an independent body of work of the student's own choosing and direction. The senior thesis provides the opportunity to begin the process of self-definition as photographer and artist. A required junior-level course in photographic criticism, coupled with required classes in the history of photography, exemplifies the strong emphasis that the department places on critical thinking and self-expression in words as well as through photographs.

Fall Credits: 15

- Electives Credits: 3 cr

MAFL 201 - Introduction to Film I

A hands-on introduction to the principles and techniques of media production: shooting 16mm film and digital video, developing a sensitivity to the nuances of movement, understanding lighting and exposure, composition, and the logic of editing. We also survey the historical and aesthetic development of the medium in order to expand the students' sense of the possibilities of the medium. Formerly PF 210A

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Media Arts and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors, Film/Digital Video minors. Not recommended for Foundation students.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Can be taken either in the fall or spring semester.

MAPH 201 - Introduction to Photography I

Introduction to basic concepts, processes, and techniques of black-and-white photography, including camera operation, exposure, darkroom procedures, lighting, and their controlled applications of these techniques. Emphasis is upon the normative standard of photographic rendering. Formerly PF 211A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite for all upper-level photography courses. Priority enrollment to Media Arts majors; Multidisciplinary Fine Arts, Photo and Photo Studio minors. Not recommended for Foundation students.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

LAAH 855 - History of Photography

An introduction to the significant photographers and their work in the history of the medium, including technical developments and their impact, the major visual and aesthetic trends in the development of photography and their relationship to art in general, and the larger social context in which photography has developed. Formerly HU 255

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 Priority enrollment to Photography majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Select one course from the following two:

LACR 210 - Texts & Contexts: Perspectives on the Humanities

Perspectives on the Humanities addresses significant works from the ancient world, the Renaissance, the Enlightenment and Romantic periods, and the present day. The course serves five functions: to help students develop their skills in critical reading and writing; to introduce study of traditionally defined periods in the history of culture; to introduce a thematic approach to Humanities topics; to examine key primary texts from various periods and consider them alongside comparable art works; to explore the possibility that conventional ideas of period studies are open to challenge and reinterpretation.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

While consolidating the student's control of the medium, this course introduces the student to a departure from normative photographic rendering, techniques, and modes of expression and form. Strong emphasis on manipulation of materials, including traditional photographic methods as well as an introduction to computer manipulation. Formerly PF 211B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAPH 282, MAPH 201 or MAPH 221

Priority enrollment to Media Arts majors; Multidisciplinary Fine Arts and Photo and Photo Studio minors. Not recommended for Foundation students.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAPH 211 - Color Concepts

Introduction to methods of color shooting and printing, leading to an exploration of the technical and creative possibilities of color in photography. Processes covered include negative and transparency films, filtration, chemical printing, and digital color controls with Photoshop. Formerly PF 217

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Photography majors; Photo and Photo Studio minors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. Not open to Foundation majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Select one course from the following two:

LACR 210 - Texts & Contexts: Perspectives on the Humanities

Perspectives on the Humanities addresses significant works from the ancient world, the Renaissance, the Enlightenment and Romantic periods, and the present day. The course serves five functions: to help students develop their skills in critical reading and writing; to introduce study of traditionally defined periods in the history of culture; to introduce a thematic approach to Humanities topics; to examine key primary texts from various periods and consider them alongside comparable art works; to explore the possibility that conventional ideas of period studies are open to challenge and reinterpretation.

Exploration of photographic imagery through a series of problems aimed at personal vision and creative growth. Formerly PF 311A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAPH 202

Open to Photo and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors; Photo and Photo Studio minors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAPH 303 - Basic Photography Studio I

Familiarizes the student with the tools, techniques, and language of studio photography. Entails extensive use of the 4" x 5" view camera. Deals with black-and-white materials, sheet film exposure, hand processing, printing large-format negatives, and digital capture and output. Formerly PF 313A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAPH 202 or GDES 331

Open to Photo majors; Photo and Studio Photo minors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAPH 311 - Digital Photography Workshop

Concentrates on the production of creative digital photography; students are encouraged to experiment with new tools and techniques. Film and print scanners, CD-ROM discs, and digital cameras are used to produce images that are critiqued on the basis of both technical proficiency and aesthetic accomplishment. Portfolios are printed on digital output machines and four-color offset. Frequent readings, lectures, and site visits expand the ongoing studio experience. Formerly PF 315

LAAH 111 - Art History Survey I

A survey of Western visual arts and architecture from the earliest extant examples, cave painting and sculpture from Austrian and southern Europe, to the arts of the Renaissance in Europe in the fourteenth-fifteenth centuries. Students will be asked to visit and do research on the art in local museums and galleries in order to gain a foundation for the work from their textbook, and asked to place, evaluate, and comprehend the history of the world in which many of them make their art. Formerly HU 140A

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 112 - Art History Survey II

Following the first half of the Survey of Western Art, this course will consider Western visual arts and architecture from the Renaissance in Europe in the fourteenth-fifteenth centuries to the present. As in the first semester, students will be asked to visit and do research on the art in local museums and galleries, and consider this more modern world as it relates to their own art and thought. They will be tested regularly and expected to write short essays about the work they have studied firsthand. Formerly HU 140B

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 855 - History of Photography

An introduction to the significant photographers and their work in the history of the medium, including technical developments and their impact, the major visual and aesthetic trends in the development of photography and their relationship to art in general, and the larger social context in which photography has developed. Formerly HU 255

Prerequisites & Notes

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 101 - First-Year Writing I

First part of a year-long writing, reading and research course that teaches the fundamental skills of the responsible student-scholar. Students practice the kinds of academic writing, textual analysis, and library and Internet research required of university students and curious learners of any age. The first term explores writing from literature, philosophy, and art.

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 102 - First-Year Writing II

Continuation of LACR 101. During this term an inquiry-based research paper is the focus. A similar curriculum is examined in the context of history, literature, theory, philosophy, and art from a chosen period.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 101 or LACR 009

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 210 - Texts & Contexts: Perspectives on the Humanities

Perspectives on the Humanities addresses significant works from the ancient world, the Renaissance, the Enlightenment and Romantic periods, and the present day. The course serves five functions: to help students develop their skills in critical reading and writing; to introduce study of traditionally defined periods in the history of culture; to introduce a thematic approach to Humanities topics; to examine key primary texts from various periods and consider them alongside comparable art works; to explore the possibility that conventional ideas of period studies are open to challenge and reinterpretation.

Photo Elective

May be selected from one of the following:

MACR 499 - Internship

Internship program in which the student, working closely with the Media Arts Department internship advisor, is placed in one of several professional situations. Placements include assisting in professional studios, practice in biomedical photography laboratories, and working for commercial and non-profit galleries, among others. Placements in film and animation are sponsored by local independent production houses and television stations, design firms, and free-lance artists; students of film may assist in location shooting, set production, editing, casting, scripting, and a myriad of other practical tasks. Formerly PF 499

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAFL 202, MAPH 202 or MAAN 202

Open to Media Arts majors only. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAPH 312 - Advanced Digital Photo Workshop

The study of advanced photo imaging techniques. Through a series of problem-solving assignments, students are expected to develop strong digital shooting, scanning, color management, and printing skills as well as competency in advanced Photoshop techniques. A final portfolio of a series of creative images is a course requirement. Formerly PF 333

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAPH 311

Priority enrollment to Media Arts majors; Photo and Studio Photo minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MAPH 320 - Selected Topics in Photography

Study of one or more various media, methods, or problems in still photography to be offered according to the instructor's interests and students' requests. Topics include: portraiture, documentary photography, digital imaging, color manipulation, photographic illustration, and photo-based mixed media. Formerly PF 323

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAPH 201

Open to Photo majors; Photo and Studio Photo minors only. May be taken four times for credit.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

MAPH 321 - Surface Altered Photographs

A concentration on the fundamental ideas and techniques for altering the surface of photographic prints, the emphasis is on one-of-a-kind prints, mixed media, and nontraditional materials. Techniques and materials covered include: traditional hand-coloring (oil paint, watercolor, acrylic, pastel, pencil, liquid dyes), toning and bleaching, graphic arts film, Polaroid transfer, photocopier transfer lifts, liquid emulsion, tin-types, and the preparation and painting of digital prints. Assignments, a research paper, slide lectures, and critiques center on creative possibilities, technical proficiency, and the development of increasingly more personalized visual and photographic statements. Formerly PF 334

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAPH 201

Priority enrollment to Media Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAPH 322 - Photojournalism

This course covers basic photojournalism with a focus on the picture story. Choice of subject depends on the students' individual style of photography and their point of view. The class is built on an intensive shooting schedule emphasizing photographic composition, regular feedback, and the use of appropriate equipment. The class covers selecting story ideas, picture editing, writing captions and preparing text blocks to accompany photographs, and business aspects of the field such as how and where to sell or publish work. Formerly PF 335

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAPH 201

Priority enrollment to Media Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAPH 323 - Fashion and Editorial Portrait Photography

This course explores the real world of fashion and editorial photography. Students learn to present both themselves and their work professionally. They visit professional studios and, on occasion, collaborate with art directors. They learn to interpret and execute assignments dealing with deadlines and other restrictions posed by commissions. Photographers, art directors, and studio assistants are invited into the class. Emphasis is placed on expanding and maintaining personal vision in a commercially oriented context. Formerly PF 336

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAPH 301 or MAPH 303

Open to Photo majors; Photo and Studio Photo minors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAPH 460 - Professional Practices

Study of the practice of professional photography, with attention to various career opportunities, portfolio presentation, business practices, professional ethics, photographic law, intellectual property in the age of digital duplication and personal objectives. A variety of professional guests visit the course. Formerly PF 413

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAPH 301 or MAPH 303

Open to Photo majors; Photo and Studio Photo minors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Photography Minor

The Photography minor stresses a fine-art approach to photography. It provides the basics of black-and-white as well as color photography and digital imaging. The emphasis is placed on gaining experience in a wide range of pictorial photographic applications. Once a student has mastered basic photographic technique, materials and processes that are used to manipulate photographic imagery are explored. Creativity and personal expression are emphasized in all of these courses. Photography majors may not declare a Photography minor.

Requirements for the MinorMAPH 202 - Introduction to Photography II

While consolidating the student's control of the medium, this course introduces the student to a departure from normative photographic rendering, techniques, and modes of expression and form. Strong emphasis on manipulation of materials, including traditional photographic methods as well as an introduction to computer manipulation. Formerly PF 211B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAPH 282, MAPH 201 or MAPH 221

Priority enrollment to Media Arts majors; Multidisciplinary Fine Arts and Photo and Photo Studio minors. Not recommended for Foundation students.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAPH 211 - Color Concepts

Introduction to methods of color shooting and printing, leading to an exploration of the technical and creative possibilities of color in photography. Processes covered include negative and transparency films, filtration, chemical printing, and digital color controls with Photoshop. Formerly PF 217

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Photography majors; Photo and Photo Studio minors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. Not open to Foundation majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAPH 301 - Junior Photography Workshop

Exploration of photographic imagery through a series of problems aimed at personal vision and creative growth. Formerly PF 311A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAPH 202

Open to Photo and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors; Photo and Photo Studio minors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAPH 311 - Digital Photography Workshop

Concentrates on the production of creative digital photography; students are encouraged to experiment with new tools and techniques. Film and print scanners, CD-ROM discs, and digital cameras are used to produce images that are critiqued on the basis of both technical proficiency and aesthetic accomplishment. MAPH 201 - Introduction to Photography I

Introduction to basic concepts, processes, and techniques of black-and-white photography, including camera operation, exposure, darkroom procedures, lighting, and their controlled applications of these techniques. Emphasis is upon the normative standard of photographic rendering. Formerly PF 211A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite for all upper-level photography courses. Priority enrollment to Media Arts majors; Multidisciplinary Fine Arts, Photo and Photo Studio minors. Not recommended for Foundation students.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAPH 282 - Photography for Illustrators

This course introduces Illustration majors to the fundamental techniques used in black-and-white photography, including camera operation, developing, and printing, as well as photographic digital imaging. Emphasis is placed on film selection and lighting for both the studio and environmental shooting. The fundamentals of Photoshop are employed for digital image manipulation. Lectures and projects are designed to provide the tools necessary for illustrators who wish to use photography in their work. Formerly PF 209

Prerequisites & Notes

Not open to Photography majors. Priority enrollment to Illustration and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors and Photo minors. Not recommended for Foundation students.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Post-Baccalaureate Certificate in Crafts

Crafts Studio Certificate Program

A Post-Baccalaureate Portfolio Development Program

The University's 30-credit certificate program offers an intensely focused education in crafts. The program is designed for those students with bachelor's degrees who wish to become proficient artists in one or more of the following areas: ceramics, fibers, jewelry, metalsmithing, or wood. Courses dealing with technique, philosophy, and contemporary issues are aimed to develop an individual's portfolio for further graduate study or a career as an independent studio artist or design professional.

The Crafts Studio Program offers the studio component of the University's undergraduate crafts program in a focused one-and-one-half or two-year period. Students accepted to the program take a minimum of six credits to a maximum of 12 credits per semester.

Certificate students must take a minimum of nine media-specific credits at the 300 level. The prerequisite for 300-level courses is two 200-level courses in that same medium. However, if an applicant's portfolio indicates enough experience in a particular medium, 200-level prerequisites may be waived at the time of acceptance. See the preceding section for a listing of media-specific courses.

Certificate students benefit from taking courses with degree candidates in a quality undergraduate program. In addition to technically oriented, media-specific courses, students take core courses involving design/theory issues, criticism, and professional/career practices.

Admission is by portfolio and interview. Students with little or no formal art training will be required to take Foundation courses. The program advisor (in consultation with the student) will set the number of required prerequisites. These credits must be taken in addition to the 30 required credits and can be completed in advance of or concurrently with the certificate program.

Post-Baccalaureate Teacher Program Credits: 12

Professional Semester

AEDU 503 - The Art of Teaching

Teacher preparation and knowledge of instructional techniques will be addressed, including professional image, teachers' rights and responsibilities, and aspects of group process. The course explores cultural and family factors that influence learning expectations conveyed by teachers and peer behavior and techniques of instruction and creativity. A retrospective analysis of each student's individual education experience and perceptions of teaching is explored through interactive simulation of classroom situations and teaching styles. May be taken during either the summer or spring semester. Formerly AE 552

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: AEDU 541

Open to Art Education majors and concentrations only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

AEDU 561 - Student Teaching: Elementary

An intensive, elementary-level field experience built around a seven-week student teaching internship, under the guidance and supervision of a highly qualified art teacher/mentor. It is intended to provide practical experience in which the intern assumes professional-level responsibilities and experiences in teaching art at the elementary level. A University supervisor observes, advises, facilitates the relationship between the mentor and intern, and assesses the student during the internship. AEDU 561 is taken concurrently with AEDU 565. (If students elect to take AEDU 561 one semester and AEDU 562 another semester, AEDU 565 must be taken both semesters.) Formerly AE 660

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: AEDU 533, AEDU 541, AEDU 542, AEDU 560 Corequisite: AEDU 565

Open to Art Education majors and concentrations only. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 4 cr, hrs vary (7 weeks)

AEDU 562 - Student Teaching: Secondary

An intensive, secondary-level field experience built around a seven-week student teaching internship, under the guidance and supervision of a highly qualified art teacher/mentor. It is intended to provide practical experience in which the intern assumes professional-level responsibilities and experiences in teaching art at the elementary level. A University supervisor observes, advises, facilitates the relationship between the mentor and intern, and assesses the student during the internship. AEDU 562 is taken concurrently with AEDU 565. (If students elect to take AEDU 562 one semester and AEDU 561 another semester, AEDU 565 must be taken both semesters.) Formerly AE 662

FAPR 201 - Relief/Monotype

Introduction to the graphic and expressive qualities of woodcut, linoleum, and collograph processes printed in monochrome and color. Monoprinting with direct drawing and painting on Plexiglass and metal plate are also explored. Formerly PR 201

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FNDP 111

Priority enrollment to Fine Arts majors. Student must have completed the first semester of their Freshman year (15 credits).

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FAPR 205 - Concepts/Works on Paper

Offers an opportunity for idea development, visual perception, and the organization of experience into compositions. Primary emphasis is on developing visual expression, skill in using various materials, and growth of critical evaluative abilities through group discussions and critiques. Contour drawing, collage, Xerox transfer and other experimental drawing and printing techniques are explored. Students are encouraged to combine media. Formerly FA 205

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FNDP 111

Open to Fine Arts majors only. Priority enrollment to Printmaking majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Select one course from the following two:

Printmaking majors take one sculpture course and one painting course, during the sophomore year.

FAPT 201 - Sophomore Painting

Studio work introduces the student to the domain of painting through projects that cover not only the basic elements of form, color, and technique, but also the fundamental conceptual challenges unique to painting. Students are exposed to the origins and purposes of painting and the range of possibilities offered by both traditional and contemporary approaches. Formerly PT 202A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: FNDP 111, FNDP 121

Priority enrollment to Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FASC 201 - Sculpture I

Emphasizes the fundamental and formal aspects of sculpture. Projects are assigned to help the student experience and understand the unique expressive values of mass, space, plane, line, balance, rhythm, scale, movement, and time transformation. This course also serves to introduce the student to a variety of materials and techniques. Assigned projects, group critiques and slide lectures. Formerly SC 201

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: Completion of Foundation. Priority enrollment to Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Select one course from the following two:

LACR 210 - Texts & Contexts: Perspectives on the Humanities

Perspectives on the Humanities addresses significant works from the ancient world, the Renaissance, the Enlightenment and Romantic periods, and the present day. The course serves five functions: to help students develop their skills in critical reading and writing; to introduce study of traditionally defined periods in the history of culture; to introduce a thematic approach to Humanities topics; to examine key primary texts from various periods and consider them alongside comparable art works; to explore the possibility that conventional ideas of period studies are open to challenge and reinterpretation.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 22X - Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT)

The Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT) serves as a foundation for future studies in the natural and social sciences, in mathematics, and for life-long learning. Scholarship in these scientific disciplines has influenced our culture in significant ways — both directly as a result of ongoing research and indirectly as new scientific ideas and theories are developed and applied within the context of important issues and concerns in the larger society.

Prerequisites & Notes

For all SIFT courses, student must have first matriculated at UArts after Fall 2005. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam. Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

This is a description of the SIFT course category. Any course numbered LACR 22- will meet this requirement. For example:

- LACR 221 SIFT: Problem Solving

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Spring Credits: 15

- Liberal Arts Credits: 3 cr

FACR 215 - Subjects/Formats

This is a required studio course that explores Subject/Format issues that cross over between the traditional fine arts disciplines. Students in the Painting/Drawing, Sculpture, Printmaking and Multidiscipline tracks will work from a common syllabus and develop artworks within the traditional framework of their studio base. Three projects will be assigned over the course of the semester. Each project assignment will be limited by a specified subject matter and a specified format. Each of the three project periods will conclude with a group critique. This course is sequentially linked to FACR 216 Research Practices. Course begins Spring 2009.

Prerequisites & Notes

Corequisite: Research Practices

Open to Fine Arts, Media Arts and Crafts majors within the College of Art and Design. Priority enrollment to Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

FACR 216 - Research Practices

This course is designed to develop traditional and creative research strategies necessary for contemporary art practice. Students learn to find and use information that can both generate and enhance their ideas. This kind of "information Literacy" enriches the content factor in the form/content equation essential to artworks. Using numerous resources for collecting material, research will cover historical, cultural, social, and political contexts for art ideas. Various methods will be explored for recording, classifying and representing information, such as writing, mapping, diagramming, drawing, and other notational systems. This course is directly linked to the development of studio projects outlined in FACR 215 Subjects/Formats.

Prerequisites & Notes

Corequisite: FACR 215

Open to Fine Arts, Media Arts and Crafts majors in the College of Art and Design. Priority enrollment for Multidisciplinary Fine Arts Majors.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

FAPR 204 - Screenprint/Etching

The graphic qualities of expression in screenprinting and etching/intaglio are presented through historic and contemporary examples and demonstration of the methods, which convey ideas in these two media. Various stencil processes from direct-drawn to photographic and computer-generated are explored in screenprinting with water-based opaque and transparent inks. Handwork on the metal plate includes drawn drypoint, etching, and tonal processes. Emphasis is placed on the understanding of the qualities of these methods and the development of personal ideas. Formerly PR 204

FAPR 301 - Attitudes and Strategies: Printmaking

The first semester of this course concentrates on general issues of contemporary artists' practices; the second semester continues with a focus on the printmaker's world. The student creates prints, exploring a variety of printmaking methods. Drawings to clarify the direction that a possible later series of prints might take are another expectation as well as completed drawing projects. Students should take at least one area of printmaking and develop technical skills beyond elementary proficiency. All three mediums: relief, intaglio, and lithography are to be used in making prints this semester. Formerly PR 333

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FAPR 301

Open to Printmaking majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FAPR 303 - Print Study Seminar I

Students meet at the Philadelphia Museum of Art in the Print Study room to discuss and study original prints and rare books from the museum collection. Masters of the 15th through the 18th centuries are introduced and researched. Various print processes that parallel the material covered in the course will be researched in the printmaking studios. Formerly PR 306A

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Printmaking majors only. Student must have completed the first semester of their Sophomore year (45 credits).

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

FAPR 305 - Lithography

All of the basic techniques of drawing, imagemaking and printing skills that are necessary to produce hand-pulled lithographs from stones and plates are taught. An emphasis is placed on visual expression and development of ideas through group discussions and critiques. Formerly PR 300

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: FAPR 201 and FAPR 204

Prerequisite: FACR 301

Open to Printmaking majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FAPR 304 - Book Arts: Concept and Structure

An opportunity to explore the integration of type and relief image in unique and editioned book structures. Hands-on experience in dealing with composition (metal) type and computer typesetting is on an intermediate level. Relief printing, photopolymer plates, color reduction printing, and related traditional and contemporary methods of multiple image making are pursued. Special emphasis on development of a personal visual language. Formerly PR 307

Prerequisites & Notes

Students must have completed the first semester of their Freshman year (15 credits). Priority enrollment to Printmaking majors and minors; and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FAPR 403 - Print Study Seminar II

The historical and conceptual context of prints, portfolios and book arts of the 19th and 20th centuries are studied at the Philadelphia Museum of Art. Written and printed expression of the ideas and processes involved are integrated into this course of study. Formerly PR 406

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Printmaking majors only. Students must have completed the first semester of their Sophomore year (45 credits).

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

FAPR 302 - Printmaking Workshop

An investigation into the combination of previously studied printmaking media including, but not confined to: relief, intaglio, screenprinting, lithography and photo & digital imaging. Students are encouraged to investigate unorthodox uses of materials and techniques through the creation of two-dimensional and three-dimensional work. Formerly PR 301

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: FAPR 201, FAPR 204

Priority enrollment to Printmaking majors.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

FAPR 401 - Advanced Workshop

Students continue to develop their ideas, images, and technique while establishing their direction and personal original expression. The workshop atmosphere permits a comfortable handling of all procedures and printmaking processes. Students are encouraged to be involved with adjacent expressive means such as drawing, painting, sculpture, photography, and crafts in combination with printmaking. Formerly PR 400

FACR 401 - Senior Fine Arts Seminar

The artist's role in historic and contemporary contexts. Issues surrounding the various purposes of art and how culture deals with artists are explored through discussion with visiting artists, alumni, and faculty. Students work toward the acquisition of a professional profile in resume, artist statement, and slide preparation. Discussion of gallery practices and portfolio presentations cultivate an awareness of professionalism and career opportunities in the fields of painting, printmaking, and sculpture. Formerly FA 460

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: FAPR 301, FAPT 302 or FASC 302

Open to Fine Arts majors only.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

FAPR 402 - Thesis Workshop

Offers the student the opportunity to develop a body of work in preparation for portfolio and exhibition presentation. An emphasis is placed on the development of ideas and content in the individual student's work, which is supported by a series of individual and group critiques by faculty and visiting artists. The student is expected to participate in group exhibitions as well as a solo exhibition and to present a professional portfolio of work. Formerly PR 420

LAAH 111 - Art History Survey I

A survey of Western visual arts and architecture from the earliest extant examples, cave painting and sculpture from Austrian and southern Europe, to the arts of the Renaissance in Europe in the fourteenth-fifteenth centuries. Students will be asked to visit and do research on the art in local museums and galleries in order to gain a foundation for the work from their textbook, and asked to place, evaluate, and comprehend the history of the world in which many of them make their art. Formerly HU 140A

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 112 - Art History Survey II

Following the first half of the Survey of Western Art, this course will consider Western visual arts and architecture from the Renaissance in Europe in the fourteenth-fifteenth centuries to the present. As in the first semester, students will be asked to visit and do research on the art in local museums and galleries, and consider this more modern world as it relates to their own art and thought. They will be tested regularly and expected to write short essays about the work they have studied firsthand. Formerly HU 140B

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 101 - First-Year Writing I

First part of a year-long writing, reading and research course that teaches the fundamental skills of the responsible student-scholar. Students practice the kinds of academic writing, textual analysis, and library and Internet research required of university students and curious learners of any age. The first term explores writing from literature, philosophy, and art.

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 102 - First-Year Writing II

Continuation of LACR 101. During this term an inquiry-based research paper is the focus. A similar curriculum is examined in the context of history, literature, theory, philosophy, and art from a chosen period.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 101 or LACR 009

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 210 - Texts & Contexts: Perspectives on the Humanities

Screenwriting Minor

The minor in Screenwriting provides instruction and applied experience in the craft of scriptwriting for motion pictures and episodic television. Topics include story structure, character, plot, beats, dramatic conflict, dialogue, and industry script formats. Students advance from scene exercises through short scripts to major, professional-length portfolio pieces. Majors in Writing for Film & Television and Communication may not declare a screenwriting minor.

Requirements for the Minor

WRIT 212 - Screenwriting II

An intensive screenwriting workshop where, in the first semester, students study scene structure and dialogue, and write a series of outlines for an hour-long screenplay. In the second semester, students write an hour-long screenplay and revise the script. Formerly WM 215

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: WRIT 211 or WRIT 220

Priority enrollment to Writing for Film and Television majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 4 hrs

WRIT 220 - Writing for Film

A writing class introducing students to the basic elements of screenwriting. These include three act structure, creating a character, act design, and scene structure. Students complete a short screenplay by the end of the semester. Formerly WM 219

Prerequisites & Notes

Not open to Writing for Film and Television majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 4 hrs

WRIT 241 - Screenplay Analysis

A course devoted to the critical analysis of screenplays. Students are required to read numerous scripts and write critical papers on various dramatic structural principles highlighted. Formerly WM 243

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: WRIT 211 or WRIT 220

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Select one of the following sequences:

WRIT 311 - Advanced Screenwriting I

Studio writing course preparing the student for the entire process of crafting a full-length script for film. In the first semester, students develop a concept, pitch the project, prepare an outline/ treatment for a full-length work, and draft the first act. The second semester is devoted to the completion of the full-length work and the revision process. Formerly WM 321

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: WRIT 212

Sculpture - Bachelor of Fine Arts

Program Total Credits: 123

The Sculpture Department's aim is to provide a sound, balanced exposure to all the formal, technical, and intellectual aspects of art, in preparation for the student's continued professional growth beyond the undergraduate years. To this end, our curriculum is structured to provide formal and technical instruction, while at the same time allowing for individual creative development. Seminar classes in the junior and senior years engage the student in discussions on sculpture theory, philosophy, and critical thought.

Sophomore Year Credits: 30

Fall Credits: 15

- Liberal Arts Credits: 3 cr

FASC 201 - Sculpture I

Emphasizes the fundamental and formal aspects of sculpture. Projects are assigned to help the student experience and understand the unique expressive values of mass, space, plane, line, balance, rhythm, scale, movement, and time transformation. This course also serves to introduce the student to a variety of materials and techniques. Assigned projects, group critiques and slide lectures. Formerly SC 201

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: Completion of Foundation. Priority enrollment to Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FASC 203 - Introduction to Figure Modeling

Modeling from life for the beginner, stressing direct observation, eye-hand coordination, and depth discrimination. Both perceptual and conceptual skills are developed and fundamental studio practices are taught, such as armature construction, clay utilization, and modeling techniques. Works are fired in clay or cast in plaster. Formerly FA 223

Prerequisites & Notes

FAPR 201 - Relief/Monotype

Introduction to the graphic and expressive qualities of woodcut, linoleum, and collograph processes printed in monochrome and color. Monoprinting with direct drawing and painting on Plexiglass and metal plate are also explored. Formerly PR 201

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FNDP 111

Priority enrollment to Fine Arts majors. Student must have completed the first semester of their Freshman year (15 credits).

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FAPR 204 - Screenprint/Etching

The graphic qualities of expression in screenprinting and etching/intaglio are presented through historic and contemporary examples and demonstration of the methods, which convey ideas in these two media. Various stencil processes from direct-drawn to photographic and computer-generated are explored in screenprinting with water-based opaque and transparent inks. Handwork on the metal plate includes drawn drypoint, etching, and tonal processes.

Emphasis is placed on the understanding of the qualities of these methods and the development of personal ideas.

LACR 22X - Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT)

The Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT) serves as a foundation for future studies in the natural and social sciences, in mathematics, and for life-long learning. Scholarship in these scientific disciplines has influenced our culture in significant ways — both directly as a result of ongoing research and indirectly as new scientific ideas and theories are developed and applied within the context of important issues and concerns in the larger society.

Prerequisites & Notes

For all SIFT courses, student must have first matriculated at UArts after Fall 2005. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam. Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

This is a description of the SIFT course category. Any course numbered LACR 22- will meet this requirement. For example:

- LACR 221 SIFT: Problem Solving

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Junior Year Credits: 30Fall Credits: 15

- FASC XXX - Sculpture Elective Credits: 1.5 cr
See Sculpture Electives below
- Electives Credits: 3 cr
- Liberal Arts Credits: 6 cr

FASC 300 - Junior Sculpture

This course is designed to help each student begin to understand his own aesthetic proclivities and to place these within an art historical context. The emotional, intellectual, philosophical, and historical implications of various movements in art history are explored in order to begin to understand their relationship to the personal artistic development of each student within the history of Sculpture. An emphasis is placed on the development of ideas and content in the individual student's work, which is supported by a series of individual and group critiques by faculty and visiting artists. Weekly class meetings will include slide talks related to current assignments, films, discussions, and field trips to exhibitions around the Philadelphia area. This will be followed by personal conferences with the instructor.

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Sculpture and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts Majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FASC 440 - Sculpture Since 1945

Lectures, discussions, projects concerning various artists, movements, concepts, philosophies, and critical theories influencing contemporary art with an emphasis on sculpture. Focus on the currents since 1945. Formerly SC 251

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: Completion of Foundation. Priority enrollment to Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 1.5 hrs

FACR 401 - Senior Fine Arts Seminar

The artist's role in historic and contemporary contexts. Issues surrounding the various purposes of art and how culture deals with artists are explored through discussion with visiting artists, alumni, and faculty. Students work toward the acquisition of a professional profile in resume, artist statement, and slide preparation. Discussion of gallery practices and portfolio presentations cultivate an awareness of professionalism and career opportunities in the fields of painting, printmaking, and sculpture. Formerly FA 460

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: FAPR 301, FAPT 302 or FASC 302

LAAH 111 - Art History Survey I

A survey of Western visual arts and architecture from the earliest extant examples, cave painting and sculpture from Austrian and southern Europe, to the arts of the Renaissance in Europe in the fourteenth-fifteenth centuries. Students will be asked to visit and do research on the art in local museums and galleries in order to gain a foundation for the work from their textbook, and asked to place, evaluate, and comprehend the history of the world in which many of them make their art. Formerly HU 140A

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 112 - Art History Survey II

Following the first half of the Survey of Western Art, this course will consider Western visual arts and architecture from the Renaissance in Europe in the fourteenth-fifteenth centuries to the present. As in the first semester, students will be asked to visit and do research on the art in local museums and galleries, and consider this more modern world as it relates to their own art and thought. They will be tested regularly and expected to write short essays about the work they have studied firsthand. Formerly HU 140B

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 101 - First-Year Writing I

First part of a year-long writing, reading and research course that teaches the fundamental skills of the responsible student-scholar. Students practice the kinds of academic writing, textual analysis, and library and Internet research required of university students and curious learners of any age. The first term explores writing from literature, philosophy, and art.

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 102 - First-Year Writing II

Continuation of LACR 101. During this term an inquiry-based research paper is the focus. A similar curriculum is examined in the context of history, literature, theory, philosophy, and art from a chosen period.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 101 or LACR 009

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 210 - Texts & Contexts: Perspectives on the Humanities

Perspectives on the Humanities addresses significant works from the ancient world, the Renaissance, the Enlightenment and Romantic periods, and the present day. The course serves five functions: to help students develop their skills in critical reading and writing; to introduce study of traditionally defined periods in the history of culture; to introduce a thematic approach to Humanities topics; to examine key primary texts from various periods and consider them alongside comparable art works; to explore the possibility that conventional ideas of period studies are open to challenge and reinterpretation.

Sculpture Electives

Choose from:

FASC 211 - Structure of the Figure

Anatomic and morphological analysis of male and female bodies for artists through a three-dimensional constructional method. Proportions, anatomic structure, surface topology, morphological variation, and the body in movement are covered. Directed toward two-dimensional artists as well as sculptors. The means by which the body's salient features can be recognized from any viewpoint in any pose is stressed. Formerly SC 260A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: Completion of Foundation. Priority enrollment to Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FASC 212 - Structure of the Figure

Anatomic and morphological analysis of male and female bodies for artists through a three-dimensional constructional method. Proportions, anatomic structure, surface topology, morphological variation, and the body in movement are covered. Directed toward two-dimensional artists as well as sculptors. The means by which the body's salient features can be recognized from any viewpoint in any pose is stressed. Formerly SC 260B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: Completion of Foundation. Priority enrollment to Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FASC 221 - Introduction to Sculpture Projects

An open studio oriented toward helping the development of individual initiative. Stress on how ideas are transformed into sculptural statements through aesthetic reasoning and the internal logic of a sculpture's color, material, and physical construction. Formerly SC 241

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: Completion of Foundation. Priority enrollment to Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FASC 222 - Introduction to Sculpture Projects

An open studio oriented toward helping the development of individual initiative. Stress on how ideas are transformed into sculptural statements through aesthetic reasoning and the internal logic of a sculpture's color, material, and physical construction. Formerly SC 242

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: Completion of Foundation. Priority enrollment to Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FASC 231 - Molding and Casting

Covers processes and techniques utilizing plaster, rubber, plastics, clays, and wax for making hard and flexible molds and for casting sculpture in durable materials. Provides a thorough foundation in foundry practices, including wax preparation, investing, pouring bronze or aluminum, chasing, finishing, and patinating finished metal casts. Formerly SC 220A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: Completion of Foundation or FNDP 104

Priority enrollment to Sculpture majors. May be taken three times for credit.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

FASC 232 - Molding and Casting

Covers processes and techniques utilizing plaster, rubber, plastics, clays, and wax for making hard and flexible molds and for casting sculpture in durable materials. Provides a thorough foundation in foundry practices, including wax preparation, investing, pouring bronze or aluminum, chasing, finishing, and patinating finished metal casts. Formerly SC 220B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: Completion of Foundation or FNDP 104

Priority enrollment to Sculpture majors. May be taken three times for credit.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

FASC 331 - Carving

Introduces the student to carving, one of the basic methods of forming sculpture. Students learn to prepare, maintain, and use the tools of the carver. They are introduced to the characteristics of suitable carving materials. Emphasis is placed on the exploration of the formal and expressive potentials of carved sculpture. Formerly SC 321

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: Completion of Foundation. Priority enrollment to Sculpture majors. May be taken three times for credit.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

FASC 363 - Medallion Sculpture

The Medallion Arts have a long history beginning with monetary coins in the ancient world, developing through Renaissance medals into a vital and international art form that now includes small free-standing sculpture. The link between all of these is not only size, but the need for the work to have a specific communicative function, while at the same time exploring the contemporary sculptural issues. This is a studio course with a lecture component to give the student a history of the discipline. Projects are designed to challenge the student conceptually and to introduce forms and techniques such as bas relief, carving, mold making casting and fabricating, all on a small scale. There will be annual opportunities to exhibit the finished sculpture internationally.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: Completion of Foundation. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

FASC 364 - Installation and Performance

This course explores the concepts and practice of installation and performance art and their development during the past century. Four primary aspects of Installation are explored: the multisensory immersive environment; the site-specific work – work responsive to the history, usage, or natural aspects of a particular site or location; interactivity or installations in which the audience is encouraged to participate; and the performance art ranging from theatrical situations through the private acts of the artist that explore particular behavioral, experiential, or social issues and is documented through photos, videos, etc. The history of installation and performance work is discussed through a series of lectures and video presentations that examine the art historical, social, cultural, and psychological concerns from which these art forms are derived. Students are expected to be resourceful and inventive when realizing their work.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: Completion of Foundation or MMDI 101, MMDI 102

May be taken three times for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FASC 411 - Advanced Figure Modeling

For students seriously involved with the figure, this course provides an atelier to continue figure modeling on increasingly advanced levels and a context to help formulate a personal figurative sculptural idiom. Works are sculptured at various scales, including life size, and independent projects are undertaken in consultation with the faculty. Critiques involving the meaning and sculptural significance of the works are an integral part of the ongoing class activity. Formerly SC 431

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FASC 203, FASC 211 or FASC 212

Priority enrollment to Sculpture majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FASC 412 - Advanced Figure Modeling

For students seriously involved with the figure, this course provides an atelier to continue figure modeling on increasingly advanced levels and a context to help formulate a personal figurative sculptural idiom. Works are sculptured at various scales, including life size, and independent projects are undertaken in consultation with the faculty. Critiques involving the meaning and sculptural significance of the works are an integral part of the ongoing class activity. Formerly SC 432

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FASC 203, FASC 211 or FASC 212

Priority enrollment to Sculpture majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FASC 413 - Projects in Figure Modeling

Allows the student to move beyond modeling the figure as an academic study. Exploration using the figure in expressive contexts is emphasized. Formerly SC 433

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FASC 203, FASC 211 or FASC 212

Priority enrollment to Sculpture majors. May be taken four times for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FASC 421 - Advanced Projects

Provides a studio context where maturing self-initiated areas of concentration in sculpture can be developed to fruition on an advanced level. Whatever the direction, a critical emphasis is placed through both open and devised assignments on how materials and forms compatible to personal statements are found. Graduate students may register for this course under GRSC 621. Formerly SC 441

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FASC 221 or FASC 222

Priority enrollment to Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FASC 422 - Advanced Projects

Provides a studio context where maturing self-initiated areas of concentration in sculpture can be developed to fruition on an advanced level. Whatever the direction, a critical emphasis is placed through both open and devised assignments on how materials and forms compatible to personal statements are found. Graduate students may register for this course under GRSC 621. Formerly SC 442

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: FASC 221 or FASC 222

Priority enrollment to Fine Arts majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

FASC 433 - Metals

Forming metal sculpture has contributed much to the history of sculpture, particularly in the present, where the idiom has become as familiar as carving and modeling. Concurrently offering both basic and advanced technical instruction in welding and forging, using both ferrous and non-ferrous metals, this course is concerned with both the technical and aesthetic aspects of metal sculpture. Formerly SC 421

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: Completion of Foundation. Priority enrollment to Sculpture majors. May be taken three times for credit.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

Note:

Electives must include at least nine studio credits outside the Sculpture offerings.

Studio Photography Minor

This minor is designed to give the student mastery of the full range of camera formats from a 35mm small format up to a 4x5 studio view camera. Technical training covers electronic strobe and tungsten studio lighting, as well as color transparency film and conventional black-and-white, and color photographic print materials and techniques. Advanced-level classes concentrate on design and creative approaches to staged and directed shooting. Photography majors may not declare a Studio Photography minor.

Requirements for the Minor

MAPH 211 - Color Concepts

Introduction to methods of color shooting and printing, leading to an exploration of the technical and creative possibilities of color in photography. Processes covered include negative and transparency films, filtration, chemical printing, and digital color controls with Photoshop. Formerly PF 217

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Photography majors; Photo and Photo Studio minors and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors. Not open to Foundation majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAPH 303 - Basic Photography Studio I

Familiarizes the student with the tools, techniques, and language of studio photography. Entails extensive use of the 4" x 5" view camera. Deals with black-and-white materials, sheet film exposure, hand processing, printing large-format negatives, and digital capture and output. Formerly PF 313A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAPH 202 or GDES 331

Open to Photo majors; Photo and Studio Photo minors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAPH 304 - Basic Photography Studio II

Continuation of MAPH 303. This course furthers the students' familiarization with the tools, techniques, and language of studio photography and entails extensive use of the 4" x 5" view camera. This semester covers the introduction of color transparency films and strobe lighting, digital capture and output. Formerly PF 313B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAPH 303

Open to Photo majors; Photo and Studio Photo minors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Select one of the following two:

MAPH 201 - Introduction to Photography I

Introduction to basic concepts, processes, and techniques of black-and-white photography, including camera operation, exposure, darkroom procedures, lighting, and their controlled applications of these techniques. Emphasis is upon the normative standard of photographic rendering. Formerly PF 211A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite for all upper-level photography courses. Priority enrollment to Media Arts majors; Multidisciplinary Fine

Arts, Photo and Photo Studio minors. Not recommended for Foundation students.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAPH 282 - Photography for Illustrators

This course introduces Illustration majors to the fundamental techniques used in black-and-white photography, including camera operation, developing, and printing, as well as photographic digital imaging. Emphasis is placed on film selection and lighting for both the studio and environmental shooting. The fundamentals of Photoshop are employed for digital image manipulation. Lectures and projects are designed to provide the tools necessary for illustrators who wish to use photography in their work. Formerly PF 209

Prerequisites & Notes

Not open to Photography majors. Priority enrollment to Illustration and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors and Photo minors. Not recommended for Foundation students.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Select one of the following three:

GDES 331 - Photographics I

Develops a designer's methodology and viewpoint to achieve both structure and meaning in photography, and as a way to extend the range of how objects and nature can be seen and translated using photographic processes. Students use both traditional photography and digital software to create hybrid photographic images. Formerly GD 310A

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Graphic Design majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAPH 202 - Introduction to Photography II

While consolidating the student's control of the medium, this course introduces the student to a departure from normative photographic rendering, techniques, and modes of expression and form. Strong emphasis on manipulation of materials, including traditional photographic methods as well as an introduction to computer manipulation. Formerly PF 211B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAPH 282, MAPH 201 or MAPH 221

Priority enrollment to Media Arts majors; Multidisciplinary Fine Arts and Photo and Photo Studio minors. Not recommended for Foundation students.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MAPH 311 - Digital Photography Workshop

Concentrates on the production of creative digital photography; students are encouraged to experiment with new tools and techniques. Film and print scanners, CD-ROM discs, and digital cameras are used to produce images that are critiqued on the basis of both technical proficiency and aesthetic accomplishment. Portfolios are printed on digital output machines and four-color offset. Frequent readings, lectures, and site visits expand the ongoing studio

experience. Formerly PF 315

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MAPH 202

Open to Photo and Multidisciplinary Fine Arts majors; Photo and Photo Studio minors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Theater Design and Technology - Bachelor of Fine Arts

Program Total Credits: 124

The Bachelor of Fine Arts (BFA) in Theater Design and Technology is dedicated to providing foundation training in the entire range of theatrical design principles and in technical production as a prelude to the student's declaring an area of emphasis upon which they focus during their final two years at UArts. Design/Tech students focus on the creation of costumes, scenery, lighting and sound design for theatrical production, as well as on developing the skills for the prospective technical director. In the classic approach to such training, students are instructed in all of these areas and as they move into their junior year, select a discipline in which they will concentrate their energies over the final two years. Built into the curriculum are design and technical responsibilities within the SOTA production season, as well as internship experiences with professional companies as part of one's senior year experience. As a prelude to assuming primary design or technical responsibility for a given production, students will also be afforded the opportunity to work closely and to network with guest designers, who are regularly brought in to work on UArts productions. As with the Theater Management and Production program, students' course of study will be capped through a series of production practica and independent study projects. Students completing this program are prepared to enter the industry in either the design or technical direction or may pursue further studies at the graduate level.

Freshman Year Credits: 33

Fall Credits: 16.5

FNDP 101 - Sketching and Drawing

This course provides individuals who are not majoring in visual arts with basic skills required to represent the form of simple objects and the presence of space on a two-dimensional surface. No prior drawing experience or portfolio of work is required to enroll in this course. In-class projects focus on fundamental principles, while homework assignments support the students as they develop the ability to sketch and draw, and think and plan, using manual drawing tools and materials. Formerly FP 101

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Theater Design and Technology students. Not open to students in the College of Art and Design.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

THEA 151 - Survey of Theater Arts

Designed to foster students' intellectual engagement with drama and theater, from classical to contemporary, by introducing them to the basic terminology and methodology used in understanding plays and performances. A range of critical perspectives are applied to a variety of plays from different periods and places; additionally, a number of contexts for theater study are introduced, including theater history and production elements. Formerly TH 113

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to majors in the School of Theater Arts.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

THPD 123 - Scene & Lighting Technology

Introductory course in various phases of physical production dealing with the stage, house, backstage personnel and their duties, construction and painting of scenery, stage lighting, costumes, props, and makeup. Formerly TH 123

Prerequisites & Notes

Corequisite: THPD 125

Priority enrollment to majors in the School of Theater Arts.

Credits: 2 cr, 2 hrs

THPD 125 - Scene & Lighting Tech Lab

Supports Scene and Lighting Technology. Formerly TH 123L

Prerequisites & Notes

Corequisite: THPD 123

Open to Theater Management and Production and Theater Design and Technology majors only.

Credits: 1 cr, 1.5 hrs

THST 131 - Introduction to Design

The fundamentals of design for the theater including costume, lighting, and scenery. Review of the designer's role in the production process, design requirements, and aesthetics. Emphasis on the basic principles of two-dimensional art and graphic forms through various media and study of color and color theory. Formerly TH 139

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Theater Design and Technology majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 101 - First-Year Writing I

First part of a year-long writing, reading and research course that teaches the fundamental skills of the responsible student-scholar. Students practice the kinds of academic writing, textual analysis, and library and Internet research required of university students and curious learners of any age. The first term explores writing from literature, philosophy, and art.

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAAH 111 - Art History Survey I

A survey of Western visual arts and architecture from the earliest extant examples, cave painting and sculpture from Austrian and southern Europe, to the arts of the Renaissance in Europe in the fourteenth-fifteenth centuries. Spring Credits: 16.5

FNDP 102 - Sketching the Human Figure

This course provides individuals who are not majoring in visual arts with an introduction to some of the materials, strategies, and methods useful when drawing the human figure. No prior experience or portfolio of work is required. The course uses the figure as subject. Analytical and responsive approaches are compared and a range of materials are used. The figure, its volume and structure, and immediate spatial environment are studied, and the ability to capture the gesture, appropriate scale, proportion, and mass of the figure are stressed. Homework assignments apply principles learned in class. Formerly FP 102

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Theater Design and Technology majors. Not open to students in the College of Art and Design.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

THEA 152 - Script Analysis

Introduces the student to practical analysis of texts/scripts. The course explores the concepts of conflict, human action, character, action/ reaction cycle, dramatic structure, translations and resources external to the script (historical perspective). At the course's end, the student should possess a firm understanding of the process involved in script analysis, be thoroughly familiar with the composite types of dramatic literature, begin to understand the nature of an informed aestheti, and understand the consequences of each element of a performance on its audience. Formerly TH 213

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: THEA 151 or LACR 102

Priority enrollment to majors in the School of Theater Arts.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

THPD 124 - Costume & Property Technology

Introductory course in various phases of physical production dealing with the stage, house, backstage personnel and their duties, construction and painting of scenery, stage lighting, costumes, props, and makeup. Formerly TH 124

Prerequisites & Notes

Corequisite: THPD 126 Priority enrollment to majors in the School of Theater Arts.

Credits: 2 cr, 2 hrs

THPD 126 - Costume & Property Tech Lab

Laboratory experience for students in SOTA's Theater Management and Production and Design-Tech program. Students receive foundation training in scenery construction and rigging, lighting and electrical production, costume and property construction, and provide production support serving as primary assistants to professional designers working on SOTA shows. Weekly hours may vary depending upon assignment. Formerly TH 124L

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Theater Management and Production and Theater Design and Technology majors only.

Credits: 1 cr, 1.5 hrs

THST 132 - Set Design

An exploration of and instruction in techniques for theatrical scenic design. This class includes lectures, individual guidance, discussions and projects investigating the aesthetic, technical, and practical problems of designing scenery for the stage. Repeatable for elective credit, with advanced projects for repeating students. Formerly TH 239

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: THST 131 and FNDP 101

Priority enrollment to Theater Design and Technology majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 102 - First-Year Writing II

Continuation of LACR 101. During this term an inquiry-based research paper is the focus. A similar curriculum is examined in the context of history, literature, theory, philosophy, and art from a chosen period.

FNDP 103 - Color Basics

This course provides individuals who are not majoring in the visual arts with basic skills required to work with color. No prior experience or portfolio of work is required. The course introduces the basic color vocabulary and begins training the eye to perceive and apply the distinctions of hue, value, tone, and temperature. Methods of color classification set the stage for a sequence of projects designed to help students develop the ability to begin working with color formally and descriptively. Homework assignments apply principles learned in class. Formerly FP 103

Prerequisites & Notes

Not open to majors in the College of Art and Design. Priority enrollment to Theater Design and Technology majors.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

THEA 351 - Theater History I

Two-semester survey of the history of theater: its dramatic literature, theater structures and production methods, styles of acting, and historical trends, through readings, discussions and lectures. The course explores the history of theater through its artistic, spiritual, political, and cultural sources of empowerment. Students are provided with the historical background to apply acting, directing, and designing techniques to the theater of other periods of history. Formerly TH 311A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: THEA 152

Open to majors in the School of Theater Arts only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

THPD 220 - Production Crew

Advanced technical production assignments for School of Theater Arts productions. This course continues the study of theatrical production begun in theater tech classes and labs. This course is meant for students with non-performance majors in the School of Theater Arts.

Credits: 0.5 cr, hrs vary

THST 181 - Acting for Non-Majors I

This course introduces the non-actor to improvisation, character development, and the basic idea of action and objective in performance. The first four weeks acclimate the new actor to being expressive in a group using body and voice through improvisation, theater games, and movement; breathing and relaxation techniques are also taught. The student is introduced to script analysis and asked to write and develop monologues to create dramatic characters for performance. Grading is based on class participation and progress with the work on monologues. Formerly TH 100A

Credits: 2 cr, 4 hrs

THST 231 - Lighting Design

Procedures for lighting, with emphasis on the functions of theatrical stage lighting. Discussions and projects investigating the problems of lighting design, including electrical principles, instrumentation, color, media, equipment control, planning, and rigging. This course and its projects are studio-based in approach. Repeatable for elective credit, with advanced projects for repeating students. Formerly TH 339

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: THST 131 and THPD 123

Priority enrollment to Theater Design and Technology majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPR 850 - Introduction to Aesthetics

An introduction to the philosophy of art. After a brief examination of analytic philosophical methods and the history of aesthetics, we consider some of the fundamental problems in aesthetics, such as the intention of the artist, the physical object/aesthetic object distinction, and the nature and comparison of different kinds of media. The relationship between language and art are central to the course. Formerly HU 270

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Select one course from the following two:

LACR 210 - Texts & Contexts: Perspectives on the Humanities

Perspectives on the Humanities addresses significant works from the ancient world, the Renaissance, the Enlightenment and Romantic periods, and the present day. The course serves five functions: to help students develop their skills in critical reading and writing; to introduce study of traditionally defined periods in the history of culture; to introduce a thematic approach to Humanities topics; to examine key primary texts from various periods and consider them alongside comparable art works; to explore the possibility that conventional ideas of period studies are open to challenge and reinterpretation.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 22X - Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT)

The Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT) serves as a foundation for future studies in the natural and social sciences, in mathematics, and for life-long learning. Scholarship in these scientific disciplines has influenced our culture in significant ways — both directly as a result of ongoing research and indirectly as new scientific ideas and theories are developed and applied within the context of important issues and concerns in the larger society.

Prerequisites & Notes

For all SIFT courses, student must have first matriculated at UArts after Fall 2005. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam. Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

This is a description of the SIFT course category. Any course numbered LACR 22- will meet this requirement. For example:

- LACR 221 SIFT: Problem Solving

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Spring Credits: 17

- Electives Credits: 3 cr

FNDP 104 - Materials, Tools and Form

This course instructs students in those basic manual skills that help them build three-dimensional objects and spatial works. No prior experience with manual media or a portfolio of work is required. Paper and wood are the primary materials used and all assignments include instruction on how to best use these materials. Assignments that focus on the design of spaces and environments are included. Instruction is conducted in the Foundation studio and wood shop, and all students are given an orientation to the safe use of that facility and all its power tools. Formerly FP 104

Prerequisites & Notes

Not open to students in the College of Art and Design. Priority enrollment for Theater Design and Technology majors.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

THEA 352 - Theater History II

Two-semester survey of the history of theater: its dramatic literature, theater structures and production methods, styles of acting, and historical trends, through readings, discussions, and lectures. The course explores the history of theater through its artistic, spiritual, political, and cultural sources of empowerment. Students are provided with the historical background to apply acting, directing, and designing techniques to the theater of other periods of history. Formerly TH 311B

THPD 220 - Production Crew

Advanced technical production assignments for School of Theater Arts productions. This course continues the study of theatrical production begun in theater tech classes and labs. This course is meant for students with non-performance majors in the School of Theater Arts.

Credits: 0.5 cr, hrs vary

THPD 261 - Fundamentals of Stage Management I

An examination of the role of the stage manager in theatrical production. Practice in the techniques of pre-production activity, coordinating and maintaining rehearsal discipline, developing a prompt script and calling a show. Formerly TH 227

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: THPD 124

Open to majors in the School of Theater Arts only. Priority enrollment to Theater Management and Production.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

THST 232 - Costume Design

Investigation of materials and principles, tools, supplies and techniques of costume design and construction, with emphasis on projects and discussions involving aesthetic, technical, and practical elements. Repeatable for elective credit, with advanced projects for repeating students. Formerly TH 439

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: Take THST 131, THPD 124 and FNDP 102

THPD 264 - Technical Direction

Discussions and projects investigating the role of the technical director in theatrical production, including production scheduling, coordinating, planning, budgeting, familiarity with materials, equipment and purchasing procedures. Repeatable for elective credit, with advanced projects for repeating students. Formerly TH 237

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: THST 132 and THPD 123

Open to majors in the School of Theater Arts only. Priority enrollment to Theater Design and Technology majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

THPD 320 - Production Practicum

Practical application of training to experiences in a wide range of production areas: dramaturgy, design, technology, theater management, etc. May include realized studio, workshop or project assignments. Formerly TH 349

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: THPD 120 or THPD 261

Open to Applied Theater Arts and Theater Design and Technology majors only. Repeatable for credit.

Credits: 1 cr, hrs vary

THST 331 - Sound Design

Fundamental procedures for sound creation and reproduction, with emphasis on the function and practice of theatrical sound design. Lectures, discussions, demonstrations, and projects investigating the problems of sound design for the stage, including sound production, modification, amplification, balance, instrumentation, character of sound, media, equipment control, planning and rigging in stage space, and working with stage management to set cues for the live performances.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: THST 232

Priority enrollment for Design Tech majors. May be taken 3 times for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

THST 361 - Fundamentals of Directing

An overview of the directorial process. Discusses the various facets of a director's job, especially in the early phases of a production, e.g. working with the actor, casting, table work and rehearsal, and culminates with each student directing a scene of his/her own. The emphasis is on empowering the students as theater practitioners, within the rehearsal process, by introducing them to the basic problems encountered by the stage director, with whom all theater participants work. Formerly TH 317

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: THST 232, THPD 261 or THST 201

Open to Acting, TMP and Technology majors only. Instructor permission required.

Theater Design and Technology Major Courses

To remain in good standing for casting consideration or production assignments in the School of Theater Arts, a student must receive a grade of 'B' or better in the core courses listed below. In the view of the faculty, a student whose work fails to meet this level of achievement will be considered non-competitive by professional standards.

Review Minimum Grade Requirements within the School of Theater Arts Special Requirements and Regulations .

FNDP 101 - Sketching and Drawing

This course provides individuals who are not majoring in visual arts with basic skills required to represent the form of simple objects and the presence of space on a two-dimensional surface. No prior drawing experience or portfolio of work is required to enroll in this course. In-class projects focus on fundamental principles, while homework assignments support the students as they develop the ability to sketch and draw, and think and plan, using manual drawing tools and materials. Formerly FP 101

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Theater Design and Technology students. Not open to students in the College of Art and Design.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

FNDP 102 - Sketching the Human Figure

This course provides individuals who are not majoring in visual arts with an introduction to some of the materials, strategies, and methods useful when drawing the human figure. No prior experience or portfolio of work is required. The course uses the figure as subject. Analytical and responsive approaches are compared and a range of materials are used. The figure, its volume and structure, and immediate spatial environment are studied, and the ability to capture the gesture, appropriate scale, proportion, and mass of the figure are stressed. Homework assignments apply principles learned in class. Formerly FP 102

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Theater Design and Technology majors. Not open to students in the College of Art and Design.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

FNDP 103 - Color Basics

This course provides individuals who are not majoring in the visual arts with basic skills required to work with color. No prior experience or portfolio of work is required. Theater Management and Production - Bachelor of Fine Arts
(formerly Applied Theater Arts)

Program Total Credits: 124

Theater artists must be well-versed in a variety of disciplines, each vital in itself and intimately related to all that occurs in a production effort. Students majoring in Theater Management and Production are called upon to develop competencies across a spectrum of these disciplines. As such, they study stage management, directing, playwriting, combat, mask, arts administration, theater history and dramatic literature—all in a context that supports theatrical production. This program is designed to provide practical training for the student who possesses a collaborative perspective. The BFA in Theater Management and Production (TMP) allows the students, in their junior year, to move toward a concentration in a particular area of emphasis, such as many of those mentioned here.

The Bachelor of Fine Arts in Theater Management and Production allows students with a range of theatrical interests to shape their own individualized course of study. It is designed to give students the practical, artistic, and intellectual foundation necessary for a successful professional life in live theater and allied disciplines.

Practical studio and production training, received in the student's first two years, is enriched by an understanding of the theater as an art, an industry, and an institution with a history and a vital role in society.

This foundation training prepares the students to emphasize one or more of the above-mentioned disciplines at the upper-division levels and to shape their own curriculum. Upon declaring a concentration in one of these fields, students complete their course of study via a series of production practica and independent study projects. Internships, arranged through the School's outstanding relationship with area professional theaters, further strengthen the students' skills and enhance their professional viability. Students completing this program are prepared to enter the industry on either the production or the administrative end and may pursue a range of career options or choose to pursue further study in the above fields.

This program is a good choice for students who are drawn to the collaborative nature of theater. It is an ideal program of study for the student who has a profound passion for theater and/or the entertainment field, but whose long-term interest may lie outside performing. At the same time, it is a curriculum that places that student at the heart of the production process. The program is also well-suited to students who may have an interest in advanced or graduate study in theater.

An exploration of Dante's journey in the Divine Comedy, his search for order, for answers to ultimate questions and his inspiration of artists in various media, such as Baudelaire, T.S. Elliot, Tchaikovsky, Puccini, Rodin, Rauschenberg. The main subject for the study is Inferno, with references to the Purgatorio and the Paradiso.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LALL 963 - American Film Genres

A consideration of a particular film genre and style in cinema, which may include film noir, horror, comedy, political film and independent film, and varying from semester to semester.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 Repeatable once for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPR 850 - Introduction to Aesthetics

An introduction to the philosophy of art. After a brief examination of analytic philosophical methods and the history of aesthetics, we consider some of the fundamental problems in aesthetics, such as the intention of the artist, the physical object/aesthetic object distinction, and the nature and comparison of different kinds of media. The relationship between language and art are central to the course. Formerly HU 270

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPR 851 - Arts Criticism

A writing course designed to promote understanding and interpretation of the arts across a multidisciplinary spectrum and to provide students with the basic tools of critical analysis. Group discussion and selected readings. Formerly HU 323

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPR 950 - Aesthetics Seminar

Advanced philosophic problems that are related to works of art and discourse about works of art. Focus varies from year to year but may include Postmodernism, Neo-Marxism, reception aesthetics, gender and sexuality identity.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: LACR 102 and LAPR 850

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LAPR 962 - Diaghilev and the Ballet Russes

An investigation of the role of the impresario Serge Diaghilev and his Ballets Russes in both shaping and echoing the course of artistic revolution in Paris from c. 1909-1929. Several Diaghilev ballets will be introduced, viewed, and critiqued. Particular attention will be given to Picasso and Stravinsky, Fitzgerald and Pound. In passing, students look at the ideas of Sigmund Freud on the unconscious and invented myths, particularly as they are reflected in Nijinsky's ballets, Rites, Faun, Jeux and Spectre.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Theater Management and Production Major Core Courses

To remain in good standing for casting consideration or production assignments in the School of Theater Arts, a student must receive a grade of 'B' or better in the core courses listed below. In the view of the faculty, a student whose work fails to meet this level of achievement will be considered non-competitive by professional standards.

Review Minimum Grade Requirements within the School of Theater Arts Special Requirements and Regulations .

CMMC 102 - Video Production Workshop

Acquaints students with the fundamentals of visual storytelling by providing hands-on experience translating the written word into images and sounds. Areas of study include framing images, lighting, using off-screen space and sound, editing, and postproduction. Students integrate their own writing to produce some of these projects. Formerly CM 290

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Communication, Writing for Film and Television, and Theater Management and Production

majors and Web Drama minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

LALL 873 - Playwriting

This workshop course introduces students to the discipline of writing for theater and radio. Focusing on the elements necessary for the creation of producible scripts, the student develops practical skills leading to the creation of a short work for stage or radio by the end of the semester. Formerly HU 322

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

THEA 161 - Collaboration in Theater

A study of how the functions of the various role-players in theatrical production intersect. Special focus is given to the behind-the-scenes production staff and the creative artists whose work intertwines on its way to final public presentation. Discussions embrace working within the production bureaucracy, the need to work within means, and the spirit of teamwork that yields a successful production experience. Formerly TH 121

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

THEA 460 - Business of Theater

Exploration of the business and legal aspects of careers in the professional theater: the roles of agents, managers, producers, and managing directors are explored. Involves lectures on various topics such as unions, contracts, taxes, management and representation as well as occasional visits by professionals in the field. Formerly TH 419

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: THST 302, THST 461 or THST 330

Instructor permission required. Open to majors in the School of Theater Arts only.

Credits: 1 cr, 1.5 hrs

THPD 120 - Crew

Four different production assignments for School of Theater productions. Continues the classroom instruction in theater tech skills, providing an increased understanding of Technical Production. Formerly TH 103L

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to majors in the School of Theater Arts only. Repeatable for credit.

Credits: 0 cr, hrs vary

THPD 123 - Scene & Lighting Technology

Introductory course in various phases of physical production dealing with the stage, house, backstage personnel and their duties, construction and painting of scenery, stage lighting, costumes, props, and makeup. Formerly TH 123

Prerequisites & Notes

Corequisite: THPD 125

Priority enrollment to majors in the School of Theater Arts.

Credits: 2 cr, 2 hrs

THPD 124 - Costume & Property Technology

Introductory course in various phases of physical production dealing with the stage, house, backstage personnel and their duties, construction and painting of scenery, stage lighting, costumes, props, and makeup. Formerly TH 124

Prerequisites & Notes

Corequisite: THPD 126 Priority enrollment to majors in the School of Theater Arts.

Credits: 2 cr, 2 hrs

THPD 125 - Scene & Lighting Tech Lab

Supports Scene and Lighting Technology. Formerly TH 123L

Prerequisites & Notes

Corequisite: THPD 123

Open to Theater Management and Production and Theater Design and Technology majors only.

Credits: 1 cr, 1.5 hrs

THPD 126 - Costume & Property Tech Lab

Laboratory experience for students in SOTA's Theater Management and Production and Design-Tech program. Students receive foundation training in scenery construction and rigging, lighting and electrical production, costume and property construction, and provide production support serving as primary assistants to professional designers working on SOTA shows. Weekly hours may vary depending upon assignment. Formerly TH 124L

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Theater Management and Production and Theater Design and Technology majors only.

Credits: 1 cr, 1.5 hrs

THPD 220 - Production Crew

Advanced technical production assignments for School of Theater Arts productions. This course continues the study of theatrical production begun in theater tech classes and labs. This course is meant for students with non-performance majors in the School of Theater Arts.

Credits: 0.5 cr, hrs vary

THPD 261 - Fundamentals of Stage Management I

An examination of the role of the stage manager in theatrical production. Practice in the techniques of pre-production activity, coordinating and maintaining rehearsal discipline, developing a prompt script and calling a show. Formerly TH 227

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: THPD 124

Open to majors in the School of Theater Arts only. Priority enrollment to Theater Management and Production.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

THPD 262 - Theater Management

An introduction for the Applied Theater Arts student to the important role that theater managers and their administrative staffs play in the day-to-day operations of theater companies. A close-up look at all the facets of running a successful theater: fundraising and audience development, marketing and public relations, fiscal organization and board relations, box office and house management, and educational outreach. Formerly TH 228

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: THPD 261

Open to majors in the School of Theater Arts only. Priority enrollment to Theater Management and Production majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

THPD 320 - Production Practicum

Practical application of training to experiences in a wide range of production areas: dramaturgy, design, technology, theater management, etc. May include realized studio, workshop or project assignments. Formerly TH 349

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: THPD 120 or THPD 261

Open to Applied Theater Arts and Theater Design and Technology majors only. Repeatable for credit.

Credits: 1 cr, hrs vary

THPD 361 - Advanced Stage Management

Advanced study of the stage manager's function in theatrical production. Coordination of production personnel and the management responsibilities in the pre-rehearsal, rehearsal, and production periods. Formerly TH 327

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: THPD 261

Priority enrollment to Applied Theater Arts majors. Open to majors in the School of Theater Arts.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

THPD 460 - Management and Production Seminar (short title: M&P Seminar)

Analysis and study of contemporary practices and trends in non-performance disciplines of theatrical production. Students engage in readings, discussions and writing projects dealing with their experiences to date in their chosen field of theatrical endeavor. The course may require field trips and/or attendance at special events to place current trends in larger social and practical contexts, and to help the student develop strength and perspective within his or her own work. Formerly TH 460

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: THEA 499

Open to Applied Theater majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

THPD 461 - Senior Project

Faculty-approved and supervised capstone experience in a student's area of concentration. May be a School of Theater Arts-sponsored project or one with a reputable outside company recognized by the faculty and area professionals. Formerly TH 451

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: Two semesters THDP 320

Open to Applied Theater Arts and Theater Design and Technology majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

THPD 462 - Senior Project

Faculty-approved and supervised capstone experience in a student's area of concentration. May be a School of Theater Arts-sponsored project or one with a reputable outside company recognized by the faculty and area professionals. Formerly TH 452

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: THPD 461

Open to Applied Theater Arts and Theater Design and Technology majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

THST 101 - Acting Studio I

An introductory studio focusing on the fundamentals of acting including basic skills for stage communication, voice, and movement; involves centering and exercises designed to increase physical and emotional stamina, identify and strengthen technique, develop focus and concentration, and introduce the student to the demands of the theater. In the process of demystifying the craft, the student discovers the energy, power, and vulnerability of self. Formerly TH 103A

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Acting, Applied Theater Arts and Musical Theater majors only. Instructor permission required.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

THST 120 - Acting Theory and Technique

This course introduces the actor and future director to both the theory and practical application of acting preparation. The semester progresses from a basic understanding of the Meisner approach to active listening and connection utilizing repetition exercises; a working actor based script analysis identifying objectives and actions; and applying those lessons to scene work for evaluation. Grading is based on participation and progress.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: THEA 161

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

THST 361 - Fundamentals of Directing

An overview of the directorial process. Discusses the various facets of a director's job, especially in the early phases of a production, e.g. working with the actor, casting, table work and rehearsal, and culminates with each student directing a scene of his/her own. The emphasis is on empowering the students as theater practitioners, within the rehearsal process, by introducing them to the basic problems encountered by the stage director, with whom all theater participants work. Formerly TH 317

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: THST 232, THPD 261 or THST 201

Open to Acting, TMP and Technology majors only. Instructor permission required.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

THST 440 - New Play Workshop

This workshop explores the collaborative relationship between the playwright, director, and actor in the practical creation of a new work. Within a supportive environment that encourages risk and exploration, the new work is developed through dramaturgical investigation, class discussion and critiques by the instructor, and results in an informal reading of the piece. Formerly TH 412

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: THST 361

Priority enrollment to Applied Theater Arts majors. Open to majors in the School of Theater Arts. Instructor permission required.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

THST 461 - Directing Studio

A thorough investigation of the directing vocabulary, exercises in space and composition, exploration of scripts from the director's point of view, and practical experience with ground plans. The student is asked to demonstrate his/her understanding of blocking values and textual analysis by conceptualizing and then staging simple scenes. Introduces the basics of acting coaching and is coordinated with script analysis and dramatic criticism. Formerly TH 417

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: THST 361

Priority enrollment to Applied Theater Arts majors. Open to majors in the School of Theater Arts

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Typography Minor

The student learns the basic visual grammar of typography, incorporating this knowledge into information-based interpretations. Intermediate studies are concerned with the informational and editorial uses of typography, as well as multi-page formats. The advanced level develops a sophisticated expertise in solving complex messages through typographic expression. Graphic Design majors may not declare a Typography minor.

Requirements for the Minor

It is recommended that EMDI 201 and GDES 311 be taken concurrently, when possible.

It is recommended that EMDI 202 and GDES 312 be taken concurrently, when possible.

EMDI 201 - Electronic Media/Production I

Addresses the development of foundation computer skills in image scanning technology, desktop publishing, digital photographic technologies, and basic output procedures. Technical expertise and efficient working methodologies are applied to problems that are brought into the class from other design courses as well as from both individual and group-assigned projects. All software is standard to current graphic design industry practices. Graduate students may register for this course under GREM 601. Formerly EM 201

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Graphic Design majors and Typography minors only.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

EMDI 202 - Electronic Media/Production II

An extension of EMDI 201. Addresses the development of advanced computer skills in image scanning, technology, desktop publishing, pre-press production, color, output technology, and digital photographic technologies. Special attention is given to comparative study of output technologies and the translation of the on-screen image to offset lithography. Technical expertise and efficient working methodologies are applied to problems that are brought into the class from other design courses as well as from both individual and group-assigned projects. All software is standard to current graphic design industry practices. Formerly EM 202

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: EMDI 201

Open to Graphic Design majors and Typography minors only.

Credits: 1.5 cr, 3 hrs

GDES 212 - Typography Fundamentals

The course addresses the basic formal language of typography and the application of typographic principles to frame basic communication messages. Typographic investigations are achieved by both manual and digital means. Formerly GD 212

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: Completion of Foundation or MMDI 101, MMDI 102

Priority enrollment to Graphic Design majors and Typography minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

GDES 311 - Typographic Systems

This course investigates and defines the principles of typography in a communication context. Directed research based upon typographic norms addresses the issues of informational hierarchies achievable through visual form and structure as well as the editorial and expressive potentials of typography. Coursework is completed both using traditional and computer technologies. Students must have working knowledge of Adobe InDesign and basic Macintosh operation or be concurrently enrolled in EMDI 202. Working knowledge of Adobe Illustrator is preferred. Formerly GD 306A

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: EMDI 201, GDES 212

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

GDES 312 - Typographic Systems

This course is an extension and continuation of Typographic Systems GDES 311. The course addresses the typographic principles of the grid, text typography, text hierarchies, and image integration, all within the context of a multipage format. Students must have working knowledge of Adobe InDesign, image scanning, and basic knowledge of Photoshop or be concurrently enrolled in Electronic Media/Production II EMDI 312 to gain admission to this course. Additional working knowledge of Adobe Illustrator is preferred. Formerly GD 306B

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: GDES 311, EMDI 202

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

GDES 411 - Advanced Typography

This elective course addresses typography as a primary vehicle to communicate information and as a support to images. Assignments range from informational design to expressive, content-based problems, to intuitive investigations and formal experiments. Although traditional methods of conceptualizing are used within a thorough visual process, extensive computer work is involved. Students should have expertise in Adobe InDesign, Adobe Illustrator, and Adobe Photoshop. Formerly GD 426

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: GDES 312

Priority enrollment to Graphic Design majors and Typography minors. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Visual Arts - Master of Arts in TeachingProgram Total Credits: 42

The Master of Arts in Teaching in Visual Arts is a professional degree program incorporating preparation for the Pennsylvania Instructional I Certificate to teach Art K-12, including a student teaching practicum. Additional coursework includes the history, theory, and practice of art education. Depending on the completeness of the student's background, the MAT Program provides a flexible mix of professional education, advanced studio, and liberal arts study in a 42-credit program that may be completed in three full semesters (if prerequisites have been met) or three semesters and one summer.

Visual Arts - Master of Arts in Teaching Credits: 42Fall Credits: 15

AEDU 509 is required of all students who do not pass the Art Education Department Writing Proficiency Exam with a score of 80 percent or higher. It must be taken and passed in the first semester of full-time enrollment, and it does not fulfill any credit requirements for the MAT program. Those who score below 70 percent on the Professional Writing Proficiency Exam after completing the Professional Writing course may not continue in the MAT program.

- Graduate Elective Credits: 3 cr

AEDU 501 - Creative and Cognitive Development

This course is designed to develop skills in recognizing the developmental stages of children, adolescents, and adults according to the theories of Jean Piaget, Lawrence Kohlberg, Viktor Lowenfeld, and Erick Erickson. In addition, the course explores the learning theories of Jerome Bruner, B.F. Skinner, Howard Gardner, Madeline Hunter, and Bernice McCarthy toward understanding individual differences in creative and cognitive development and learning styles. Formerly AE 550

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Art Education majors and concentrations.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

May be taken during either the summer or fall semester

AEDU 509 - Professional Writing Intensive

This course is required for students entering all art education programs (pre-certification, MAT, MA, MA+EM) who have not passed the Art Education Department writing proficiency exam. It addresses the use of effective and cogent written communication for the teacher, artist, and administrator to classes, groups, or clients. Formerly AE 599

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Art Education majors and concentrations only.

Credits: 2 cr, 2 hrs

AEDU 533 - Art and Inclusionary Education

This course is designed to provide the full scope of methodologies, techniques and innovative strategies needed to teach special education students effectively. Using the arts as a means for adapting to diverse learning methods, the K-12 classroom is regarded as a dynamic setting for inclusionary learning. The impact of special needs art education is further realized through direct school and community engagement; programs and national as well as local organizations are made available to assist in developing field placements. Arranged field placement opportunities include a broad range of community resources. Formerly AE 533

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Art Education majors and concentrations.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs field work (8 weeks)

This course has a required field placement, and may be taken in either fall or spring semester.

AEDU 541 - Program Design & Methods: Elementary

Through review of current literature, lectures, discussion, field observation, and miniteaching, students explore various educational philosophies and develop and implement effective classroom curricula based on prevailing theories of learning and child development. Topics include management issues; interdisciplinary content and teaching of art; evaluation and assessment of teaching and learning; and the integration of digital technology. Formerly AE 547

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: AEDU 201

Priority enrollment to Art Education majors and concentrations.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs; 3 hrs field work (8 weeks)

This course has a required field placement, and may be taken in either fall or spring semester.

AEDU 606 - Research in Education: Methods and Trends

A graduate education seminar on principal approaches to research for art and museum education. The course examines types of research, applications and recent studies for their methodologies and findings, grant writing, and assessment techniques. Formerly AE 606

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to graduate Art Education and Museum Studies majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Spring Credits: 15

- Graduate Elective Credits: 3 cr
- Art Education Technology Elective (AEDU 635, 621 or 622) 3 cr

AEDU 542 - Program Design & Methods: Secondary

Students in this course will explore current educational “best practices” in the field of secondary art education. Focus areas for learning will include curriculum development, lesson planning, classroom leadership, collaborative learning, student assessment, learning environments, materials ordering, and time budgeting. Class structure includes weekly outside reading assignments, group discussions, methods demonstrations, studio production activities, reflective writing, and field observation. Formerly AE 548

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: AEDU 541 or AEDU 560

Open to Art Education majors and concentrations only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs; 8 hrs field work

These courses have a required field placement, and may be taken in either the fall or spring semester

AEDU 560 - Saturday Practicum

Students are involved in various aspects of the Saturday Arts Lab. They observe classroom instruction, plan and teach lessons, and exhibit student work under the supervision of cooperating master teachers and through the instruction of a professor in the seminar portion of the course. Formerly AE 559

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Art Education majors and concentrations only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs field work (10 weeks)

These courses have a required field placement, and may be taken in either the fall or spring semester

AEDU 602 - History of Ideas in Art and Museum Education

Seminar on major issues and trends in the history of art and museum education, with an emphasis on child-centered and content-centered theories and the theoretical antecedents of Discipline-Based Art Education, the Visual Culture movement, and standards-based education. Formerly AE 602

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to graduate Art Education and Museum Studies majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

May be taken during either the summer or spring semester

PRAXIS

The Instructional I PRAXIS tests must be successfully completed by the end of the first full-time semester.

Fall Credits: 12

AEDU 503 - The Art of Teaching

Teacher preparation and knowledge of instructional techniques will be addressed, including professional image, teachers' rights and responsibilities, and aspects of group process. The course explores cultural and family factors that influence learning expectations conveyed by teachers and peer behavior and techniques of instruction and creativity. A retrospective analysis of each student's individual education experience and perceptions of teaching is explored through interactive simulation of classroom situations and teaching styles. May be taken during either the summer or spring semester. Formerly AE 552

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: AEDU 541

Open to Art Education majors and concentrations only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

AEDU 561 - Student Teaching: Elementary

An intensive, elementary-level field experience built around a seven-week student teaching internship, under the guidance and supervision of a highly qualified art teacher/mentor. It is intended to provide practical experience in which the intern assumes professional-level responsibilities and experiences in teaching art at the elementary level. A University supervisor observes, advises, facilitates the relationship between the mentor and intern, and assesses the student during the internship. AEDU 561 is taken concurrently with AEDU 565. (If students elect to take AEDU 561 one semester and AEDU 562 another semester, AEDU 565 must be taken both semesters.) Formerly AE 660

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: AEDU 533, AEDU 541, AEDU 542, AEDU 560 Corequisite: AEDU 565

Open to Art Education majors and concentrations only. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 4 cr, hrs vary (7 weeks)

The two field placements may be taken over two semesters. If this option is elected, the full 15-week seminar that accompanies the field placement must be taken in both semesters.

AEDU 562 - Student Teaching: Secondary

An intensive, secondary-level field experience built around a seven-week student teaching internship, under the guidance and supervision of a highly qualified art teacher/mentor. It is intended to provide practical experience in which the intern assumes professional-level responsibilities and experiences in teaching art at the elementary level. A University supervisor observes, advises, facilitates the relationship between the mentor and intern, and assesses the student during the internship. AEDU 562 is taken concurrently with AEDU 565. (If students elect to take AEDU 562 one semester and AEDU 561 another semester, AEDU 565 must be taken both semesters.) Formerly AE 662

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: AEDU 533, AEDU 541, AEDU 542, AEDU 560 Corequisite: AEDU 565

Open to Art Education majors and concentrations only. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 4 cr, hrs vary (7 weeks)

The two field placements may be taken over two semesters. If this option is elected, the full 15-week seminar that accompanies the field placement must be taken in both semesters.

AEDU 565 - Student Teaching Seminar: Elementary/Secondary

Discussion and analysis of: field experiences; special workshops; Literacy: Reading and Writing Across the Curriculum: Professional Teaching Portfolios; One-Year Curriculums for an Elementary and a Secondary Grade. Continuing development and refinement of skills in reflective practice is emphasized as well as the needs of special learners. AEDU 565 is taken concurrently with AEDU 561 and AEDU 562. (If students elect to take AEDU 561 and AEDU 562 over two semesters, AEDU 565 Student Teaching Seminar must be taken both semesters.) Formerly AE 661

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: AEDU 533, AEDU 541, AEDU 542, AEDU 560

Open to Art Education majors and concentrations only. May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 1 cr, 2 hrs

Note:

Courses to satisfy requirements for the MAT are offered at varying times, allowing graduate students' programs to be customized to their needs.

Web Design and Development Minor

The minor in Web Design and Development provides the skills, concepts, and tools for students interested in acquiring the knowledge required of today's Web 2.0 processes and technologies. The skills learned enhance the preparedness of students wishing to create dynamic Web applications. This minor is only available to students majoring in Multimedia or students enrolled in Web Design minors.

Minor RequirementsCMMC 103 - Sound Communication

This introduction to the field of sound communication enables students to conceptualize the importance of sound in cultural life and prepares them in practical approaches to field recording and working with various types of sound. A survey of approaches to sound as a social communication through readings and a broad range of audio examples, including documentary, journalistic, theatrical, and experimental approaches. Training in digital and audio field and post-production equipment and complete practical field exercises and an intensive sound project. Formerly CM 120

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Communication and Film/Digital Video majors; and Narrative Video and Documentary Video minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 5 hrs

CMMC 301 - Communication Production Workshop

This production course offers students an opportunity to work on a project in a specific communication medium or genre otherwise unavailable. Students work collaboratively on projects in this medium and present their work to an audience of peers and/or professionals. Topics include: Web radio/streaming audio sites, producing television commercials, producing advanced audio projects, or developing online publications. Formerly CM 360

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to CMAC students by permission of the instructor. May be taken six times for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MMDI 231 - Dynamic Web Development

Creating dynamic web solutions is an essential aspect of web development today. In this course, students build upon existing concepts learned in Intro to Interactive Programming. The focus is on client and server side programming and relational database design for the web. Examples of dynamic web applications include context management systems, custom audio and video players, and e-commerce solutions.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 131

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MMDI 241 - Interactive Narrative

Introduces students to new ways of thinking about interactivity and storytelling. Students analyze how the interactive structure of an experience creates narrative. Short readings discussed in class range from Surrealist Dada and Fluxus language games to the experimental literature of Joyce and Burroughs to the literary theory of Barthes and Eco. Students examine contemporary examples of interactive media such as avatars, virtual realities, role-playing games and Internet sites. Formerly MM 223

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Select one of the following:

CMMC 102 - Video Production Workshop

Acquaints students with the fundamentals of visual storytelling by providing hands-on experience translating the written word into images and sounds. Areas of study include framing images, lighting, using off-screen space and sound, editing, and postproduction. Students integrate their own writing to produce some of these projects. Formerly CM 290

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Communication, Writing for Film and Television, and Theater Management and Production majors and Web Drama minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MMDI 202 - Web Design Studio

The World Wide Web is a medium where anyone with an internet connection can view and interact with websites. This course focuses on the creation of such sites through concepts and practical application of interactivity. Comprised of both lecture and practical exercises. Individual creativity is stressed as well as understanding and use of interactive devices in the communication of ideas. Both collaborative and individual exercises are assigned. Formerly MM 221

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 111

May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Can be used for minor or studio choice; not for both

Web Design Minor

The minor in Web Design provides skills, concepts, and tools for students interested in Web design as a creative medium of expression, as a form of communication, or as a profession. The skills learned enhance the preparedness of students wishing to enter the design, communication, and media industries. Fine artists interested in the role that Internet-based technologies and interactivity play in their work will also find this minor to be broadening. Multimedia and Communication majors may not declare a Web Design minor.

Requirements for the MinorCMMC 301 - Communication Production Workshop

This production course offers students an opportunity to work on a project in a specific communication medium or genre otherwise unavailable. Students work collaboratively on projects in this medium and present their work to an audience of peers and/or professionals. Topics include: Web radio/streaming audio sites, producing television commercials, producing advanced audio projects, or developing online publications. Formerly CM 360

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to CMAC students by permission of the instructor. May be taken six times for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MMDI 101 - Visual Communication Studio

All communication takes place through language. However, not all language uses words. This course allows students to harness the power of visual language in order to convey messages and meaning. The elements of drawing and two-dimensional design that are covered include point, line, shape, composition, texture, color, type, and image. Although non-digital mediums are addressed, the exploration of digital tools for the screen is a primary goal. Individual creativity is stressed. Formerly MM 110

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MMDI 111 - Introduction to Interface Design

The software interface represents the focal point of user interaction with the various modes of multimedia communication. Readings by interface theorists inform discussions on the evolution of the software interface, conceptual models, prototypes, interaction design, deliverables, and basic concepts of human-computer interaction. Avenues for pursuing interactive media design in entertainment, publishing, and education are also addressed. Current technologies, including the trend from soft to hard interfaces are studied, in terms of their potential short- and long-term influence on communication and multimedia. Basic methods for rapid prototyping and testing are considered. Formerly MM 121

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MMDI 202 - Web Design Studio

The World Wide Web is a medium where anyone with an internet connection can view and interact with websites. This course focuses on the creation of such sites through concepts and practical application of interactivity. Comprised of both lecture and practical exercises. Individual creativity is stressed as well as understanding and use of interactive devices in the communication of ideas. Both collaborative and individual exercises are assigned. Formerly MM 221

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 111

May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Select one of the following:

MMDI 102 - Motion Graphics Studio

Motion graphics can be found in a wide range of media: broadcast, Web, animation, and film to name a few. This course allows students to explore the elements of time and space to convey messages and meaning through type, image, and sound for the screen. Individual creativity is stressed as well as the understanding and use of an industry-standard software for developing motion graphics. Both collaborative and individual exercises and assignments are given. Formerly MM 111

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 101

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

MMDI 131 - Introduction to Interactive Programming

This course is an introductory programming class, appropriate for students with no prior programming experience. Traditionally, introductory programming teaches algorithmic problem-solving, where a sequence of instructions describe the steps necessary to achieve a desired result. In this course, students are trained to go beyond this sequential thinking – to think concurrently and modularly. By its end, students are empowered to write and read code for event-driven graphical user interfaces, client server chat programs, networked video games, and user interfaces. Formerly MM 101

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

MMDI 241 - Interactive Narrative

Introduces students to new ways of thinking about interactivity and storytelling. Students analyze how the interactive structure of an experience creates narrative. Short readings discussed in class range from Surrealist Dada and Fluxus language games to the experimental literature of Joyce and Burroughs to the literary theory of Barthes and Eco. Students examine contemporary examples of interactive media such as avatars, virtual realities, role-playing games and Internet sites. Formerly MM 223

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Web Drama Minor

The minor in Web Drama allows students to learn and apply dramatic storytelling techniques to the Web. It focuses on the fundamentals of scriptwriting and interactivity, the acquisition of basic video and animation techniques, and the overall adaptation of these elements to the Internet. The minor allows students to combine the principles necessary to write for television, film, or video with those of interactivity required for Web production. Upon completion of this minor, students will have written and produced a dramatic story that is suitable for Web distribution. Because of the structure of their major, Communication majors may not declare a minor within CMAC.

Requirements for the Minor

WRIT 225 - Interactive Writing I

The first semester of a year-long studio course that builds upon the basic principles of dramatic writing by identifying and utilizing the Web environment as a unique medium for narrative storytelling. Through analysis and written exercises, students learn how multiple story and character arcs are designed and supported by specific interactive storytelling models. Formerly WM 225

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: WRIT 211, WRIT 220 or MMDI 202.

Credits: 3 cr, 4 hrs

WRIT 226 - Interactive Writing II

The second semester of a year-long studio course that extends the interactive storytelling knowledge gained in Interactive Writing I to a project-based and dialogue-driven narrative. Working in writing teams, students create and write two short Web drama scripts based on models studied in Interactive Writing I. As a final project, each student completes a formal Web drama proposal, outline, and script for a potential production in the culminating course, Web Drama Studio. Formerly WM 226

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: WRIT 225

Credits: 3 cr, 4 hrs

WRIT 360 - Web Drama Studio

A capstone course in which students are required to begin with an already-completed and approved Web drama proposal and script. Each student then works to produce his or her own Web drama script online, while collaboratively supporting other writer/producers on their projects. Formerly WM 330

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: WRIT 226

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Select one of the following:

MMDI 202 - Web Design Studio

The World Wide Web is a medium where anyone with an internet connection can view and interact with websites. This course focuses on the creation of such sites through concepts and practical application of interactivity. Comprised of both lecture and practical exercises. Individual creativity is stressed as well as understanding and use of interactive devices in the communication of ideas. Both collaborative and individual exercises are assigned. Formerly MM 221

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: MMDI 111

May be taken twice for credit.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

WRIT 220 - Writing for Film

A writing class introducing students to the basic elements of screenwriting. These include three act structure, creating a character, act design, and scene structure. Students complete a short screenplay by the end of the semester. Formerly WM 219

Prerequisites & Notes

Not open to Writing for Film and Television majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 4 hrs

Not applicable as minor credit for Writing for Film and Television majors. Required for Multimedia majors.

Select one of the following:

CMMC 103 - Sound Communication

This introduction to the field of sound communication enables students to conceptualize the importance of sound in cultural life and prepares them in practical approaches to field recording and working with various types of sound. A survey of approaches to sound as a social communication through readings and a broad range of audio examples, including documentary, journalistic, theatrical, and experimental approaches. Training in digital and audio field and post-production equipment and complete practical field exercises and an intensive sound project. Formerly CM 120

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Communication and Film/Digital Video majors; and Narrative Video and Documentary Video minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 5 hrs

CMMC 311 - Narrative Video Production Workshop

An opportunity to develop an understanding of and experience in producing narrative-based video projects. Students begin by reading essays and articles, screening scenes from films and television shows, and reviewing technical language and concepts. They learn to translate script ideas into production proposals, making clear how story ideas, characters, action, and point of view will be rendered in sound and image. Working both on their own projects and as team members, they plan production specifics and shoot/record and edit short narrative pieces in their medium and style of choice. Students present stages of production work, from planning to script to rushes to stages of edited material. Formerly CM 295

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisites: CMMC 101 or CMMC 102

Priority enrollment to Communication majors and Narrative Video minors. Repeatable for credit

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Not applicable as minor credit for Writing for Film and Television majors

MMDI 241 - Interactive Narrative

Introduces students to new ways of thinking about interactivity and storytelling. Students analyze how the interactive structure of an experience creates narrative. Short readings discussed in class range from Surrealist Dada and Fluxus language games to the experimental literature of Joyce and Burroughs to the literary theory of Barthes and Eco. Students examine contemporary examples of interactive media such as avatars, virtual realities, role-playing games and Internet sites. Formerly MM 223

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

Not applicable as minor credit for Multimedia majors

Writing for Film and Television - Bachelor of Fine Arts

Program Total Credits: 123

Freshman Year Credits: 30

Fall Credits: 15

MMDI 141 - Collaboration and Spontaneity

Through a series of exercises, class discussions, and readings, students explore what it means to work as part of a team. Students learn to develop environments in which the creative process is encouraged to unfold. The basic assumptions that affect the formation of collaborative groups, such as personal responsibility, authority relations, leadership issues, individual differences, competition, the development of norms, and the generation and uses of power, are experienced, explicated, and examined. Students work within this collaborative environment to explore the connections between spontaneous verbal and nonverbal communication. Formerly MM 150

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Fulfills three credits of the discipline history requirement.

WRIT 111 - Dramatic Structure I

An intensive year-long writing course that introduces students to major principles of the three-act dramatic structure found in narrative screenplays. Topics of the course include sequences, creation of character, conflict, and setting. Students are required to complete focused and specific creative written work on a weekly basis. Workshops are held on a weekly basis. Formerly WM 113

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Writing for Film and Television and Discovery Year majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 4 hrs

WRIT 141 - Storytelling: Theory and Practice

This course introduces students to storytelling as a way of structuring communication. Course material ranges from annual reports to ad campaigns to greeting cards to rap music to political campaigns, offering students an introduction to the many ways narrative can be exploited for a powerful effect. Students learn to apply theory and to explore the relationship of different types of media to different narrative forms. Formerly CMMC 141.

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to CMAC students.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Fulfills three credits of the discipline history requirement.

WRIT 251 - Narrative Cinema I

A two-part chronological film history course of various schools of film, styles, and genres from both the domestic and international film community that are studied chronologically, emphasizing the influence and integration of the various forms with one another. The course requires bi-weekly screenings of the work being studied. Formerly WM 251

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

LACR 101 - First-Year Writing I

First part of a year-long writing, reading and research course that teaches the fundamental skills of the responsible student-scholar. Students practice the kinds of academic writing, textual analysis, and library and Internet research required of university students and curious learners of any age. The first term explores writing from literature, philosophy, and art.

Prerequisites & Notes

Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Spring Credits: 15

WRIT 112 - Dramatic Structure II

An intensive year-long writing course that introduces students to major principles of the three-act structure found in narrative screenplays. Focus on such topics as act design, creation of character, conflict, and setting. Students will be required to complete major written work and participate in workshops of written material. Formerly WM 114

Prerequisites & Notes

Open to Writing for Film and Television majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 4 hrs

WRIT 252 - Narrative Cinema II

A two-part chronological film history course of various schools of film, styles, and genres from both the domestic and international film community that are studied chronologically, emphasizing the influence and integration of the various forms with one another. The course requires bi-weekly screenings of the work being studied. Formerly WM 252

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

WRIT 253 - History of Television

Provides an overview of the medium of television. The impact of television since its inception has become increasingly pervasive and has influenced an entire society through its ability to educate and entertain. Video examples of the medium are supplemented by class discussion and reading assignments. Formerly WM 253

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to CMAC majors only.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 102 - First-Year Writing II

Continuation of LACR 101. During this term an inquiry-based research paper is the focus. A similar curriculum is examined in the context of history, literature, theory, philosophy, and art from a chosen period.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 101 or LACR 009

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 22X - Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT)

The Scientific Inquiry Foundation Track (SIFT) serves as a foundation for future studies in the natural and social sciences, in mathematics, and for life-long learning. Scholarship in these scientific disciplines has influenced our culture in significant ways — both directly as a result of ongoing research and indirectly as new scientific ideas and theories are developed and applied within the context of important issues and concerns in the larger society.

Prerequisites & Notes

For all SIFT courses, student must have first matriculated at UArts after Fall 2005. Successful completion of LACR 009 or LACR 100 where required as a result of English placement exam. Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

This is a description of the SIFT course category. Any course numbered LACR 22- will meet this requirement. For example:

- LACR 221 SIFT: Problem Solving

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Sophomore Year Credits: 30

Fall Credits: 15

- Liberal Arts Credits: 3 cr
- Elective Credits: 3 cr

Select one of the following two:

- WRIT 211 - Screenwriting I Credits: 3 cr, 4 hrs
- WRIT 220 - Writing for Film Credits: 3 cr, 4 hrs

CMMC 102 - Video Production Workshop

Acquaints students with the fundamentals of visual storytelling by providing hands-on experience translating the written word into images and sounds. Areas of study include framing images, lighting, using off-screen space and sound, editing, and postproduction. Students integrate their own writing to produce some of these projects. Formerly CM 290

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to Communication, Writing for Film and Television, and Theater Management and Production majors and Web Drama minors.

Credits: 3 cr, 6 hrs

WRIT 242 - Film Story Analysis

The course examines various narrative film genres, identifying the unique and distinctive qualities of screenwriting conventions utilized. Screenings and analysis highlight the devices employed by screenwriters to tell a good story. Weekly screenings followed by critical papers of each screening. Formerly WM 343

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Spring Credits: 15

- Elective Credits: 3 cr

WRIT 212 - Screenwriting II

An intensive screenwriting workshop where, in the first semester, students study scene structure and dialogue, and write a series of outlines for an hour-long screenplay. In the second semester, students write an hour-long screenplay and revise the script. Formerly WM 215

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: WRIT 211 or WRIT 220

Priority enrollment to Writing for Film and Television majors.

Credits: 3 cr, 4 hrs

WRIT 241 - Screenplay Analysis

A course devoted to the critical analysis of screenplays. Students are required to read numerous scripts and write critical papers on various dramatic structural principles highlighted. Formerly WM 243

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: WRIT 211 or WRIT 220

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LACR 210 - Texts & Contexts: Perspectives on the Humanities

Perspectives on the Humanities addresses significant works from the ancient world, the Renaissance, the Enlightenment and Romantic periods, and the present day. The course serves five functions: to help students develop their skills in critical reading and writing; to introduce study of traditionally defined periods in the history of culture; to introduce a thematic approach to Humanities topics; to examine key primary texts from various periods and consider them alongside comparable art works; to explore the possibility that conventional ideas of period studies are open to challenge and reinterpretation.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102 Enrollment in BS, BFA, or BM degree program required.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

LASS 810 - Modern American History

A study of contemporary developments, values, and issues as a product of twentieth century phenomena. The course seeks to understand the dramatic changes that have occurred in American society over the last fifty years. Formerly HU 264

Prerequisites & Notes

Fulfills three credits of the liberal arts elective requirement.

Spring Credits: 15

- Electives Credits: 3 cr

CMMC 353 - Media Industries

This course investigates the range of organizations and economic forces involved in media production. Includes diverse production models, from mainstream and corporate, to public sector, to alternative, and comparisons with media industries in other cultural settings. The course focuses on business and policy issues and considers examples of media practice from broadcast and cable news, advertising, Hollywood and independent cinema, public media, and new media industries. The course includes a final research project. Formerly CM 260

Prerequisites & Notes

Priority enrollment to College of Media and Communication students.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

Fulfills three credits of the discipline history requirement.

WRIT 204 - Writing for Media

A studio writing class developing skills in effective, clear, and persuasive writing in the areas of media and communication. Students work from a variety of source materials and write research papers, project proposals, project treatments, and a newspaper feature. Emphasis is on writing structure and style, editing and revising, suitability to specific audiences, and delivering material on time and at prescribed lengths. Formerly CM 211 and CMMC 204.

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: LACR 102

Priority enrollment to majors in the College of Media and Communication.

Credits: 3 cr, 3 hrs

WRIT 312 - Advanced Screenwriting II

Studio writing course preparing the student for the entire process of crafting a full-length script for film. In the first semester, students develop a concept, pitch the project, prepare an outline/ treatment for a full-length work, and draft the first act. The second semester is devoted to the completion of the full-length work and the revision process. Formerly WM 322

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: WRIT 311

Credits: 3 cr, 4 hrs

WRIT 324 - Screenplay Adaptation

The vast number of theatrical and television films adapted from fictional and nonfiction sources make it essential that emerging screenwriters understand the art of adaptation. Following an introduction to the basics of adaptation, this course analyzes three movies adapted from fictional sources (novels, short stories, etc.) and three from nonfiction sources (e.g. books and magazine journalism). Creative written work from both is integrated into the course. Formerly WM 314

Prerequisites & Notes

Prerequisite: WRIT 212 or WRIT 220

Undergraduate Degree Requirements

Click on a link to be taken to the entry below.

- Liberal Arts (42 credits)
- Major (varies by program)
- Free Electives (9)

Understanding the degree requirements is crucial to the smooth progression to graduation. Students, both new freshman and transfers, are encouraged to consult with their academic advisors regularly to ensure that they are making appropriate progress toward their degree and to consult their advisor and the Office of the Registrar for assistance and clarification of degree requirements. An overview of the degree requirements for the baccalaureate follows. Please refer to the section of the catalog that describes the major programs and to the Division of Liberal Arts section for specific course requirements. Students should also keep in close contact with their academic advisors regarding official departmental and major-specific requirements.

Most UArts undergraduate degrees require from 123 to 129 credits. A full-time student, however, may enroll for as many as 18 credits per semester, resulting in a possible 144 credits over four years. Students who are interested in additional electives, or who wish to fulfill a minor by taking additional electives, are strongly encouraged to consult with their advisor to develop an effective plan for completion of their degree requirements and fulfillment of their personal educational goals.

Liberal Arts (42 credits)

Art both shapes and is shaped by its society. It lasts; it holds the public mind and imagination, sometimes for generations. Thus, the University holds that student artists must be well educated in the Liberal Arts so that they better understand the world their art serves. UArts students will therefore spend a third of their coursework in Liberal Arts classes developing the skills and intellectual curiosity that will make them active, life-long learners.

Major (varies by program)

Major requirements have been carefully designed by the faculty to provide the student a professional education in his or her chosen field of study. Refer to the appropriate section of the catalog for specific major and departmental requirements.

Free Electives (9 credits)

Free electives play an important role in the University's mission of providing a dynamic milieu for creative exploration, innovation, and intellectual investigation, extending the practice and understanding of the arts and the arts professions. They give the student the opportunity to explore subjects beyond those offered or required by the major department and encourage educational autonomy on the student's part.

An elective is defined as any studio or liberal arts course that is neither a requirement for the student's major nor a requirement for the University's liberal arts core. Electives are courses that a student can choose freely without restriction. While advisors may make recommendations regarding electives, the final choice for elective courses must rest with the student. Obviously, prerequisites and corequisites apply to any course that a student may elect to take.

Every major undergraduate program at the University contains at least nine credits of free electives. Please refer to the program requirements for further information on specific department requirements; some programs have as many as 21 credits of electives built into the degree requirements.
